Roosevelt Meets Halifax Ship, Drives With Him to Embassy; Envoy Appeals for Quick Aid

NEW ENVOY AND WIFE WELCOMED TO AMERICA—Navy Secretary Frank Knox (left) showed a broad grin to Lord and Lady Halifax and clasped the new British Ambassador's hand as they prepared to leave the Presidential yacht Potomac last night at Annapolis, Md.

New English Ambassador Arrives on Battleship; Declares British People 'United as Never Before'

Greeted under the guns of a British battleship by a history-making handshake from President Roosevelt, Viscount Halifax, the new Ambassador from Great Britain, arrived in Washington last night with a plea to America to "give us the help we need."

The tall British peer, whose luggage included a steel helmet and a gas mask, landed late yesterday at Annapolis, Md., after a mystery dash across the Atlantic aboard Britain's new 35,000-ton battleship King George V.

President Roosevelt, who welcomed Lord Halifax to the United States in a manner never before accorded to any foreign envoy, met the Ambassador six miles out in fog-blanketed Chesapeake Bay, brought him ashore in the Presidential yacht Potomac and then drove with him to the door of the British Embassy on Massachusetts Avenue.

Before he even stepped ashore, Lord Halifax stood on the rain-whipped deck of the Presidential yacht and, in the weird glow of photographers' flares, frankly told the purpose of his mission:

"I have come here as a member of the War Cabinet serving as His Majesty's Ambassador, to make known to the Government and people of the United States from time to time in what ways, if they are willing, they can best give us the help we need. The more quickly your generous help can be made effective, the sooner shall we be able to break this Nazi power that is trying to enslave Europe and the world."

Britain 'United as Never Before'

With Lady Halifax, who accompanied him from England, standing silently at his side, the Ambassador added this message of hope:

"We have assuredly a rough, difficult and perhaps a very long road before us; but the British people are united as never before in history, and I have no doubt that with your help we can win through and so save those causes on which your civilization and ours depend."

There was no roll of drums when the President, seated aboard his yacht, pressed the hand of the Ambassador of King George VI. But even so Lord Halifax, in talking to reporters, appeared aware that his arrival had been accorded all the pomp and circumstance a democracy can muster, tempered by war-time secrecy.

"The President has done my country the great honor of coming to greet us on arrival," Lord Halifax said.

The event rivalled in significance the visit here in 1939 of the British King and Queen.

President Roosevelt, with an unerring flair for the dramatic, turned the arrival of Lord Halifax into a demonstration of friendship between a democracy fighting for its life and a democracy intent on becoming an "arsenal" to ensure a victorious outcome for that fight.

Lord and Lady Halifax were dressed almost as though they were going to Downing Street for tea with their Prime Minister.

Envoy Wears Bowler, Carries Umbrella

When he stepped ashore, the Ambassador wore a bowler hat, a heavy black ulster, a white-dotted blue necktie and a striped white shirt. He carried a rolled black umbrella. Lady Halifax wore a black fur coat a black hat with veil, trimmed in blue, and fur-topped overshoes.

The British envoy, successor to the late Marquess of Lothian, equaled his predecessor in geniality. Despite chill winds and the driving rain, he stood smiling on the yacht's deck, graciously striking poses for photographers.

Military Mission

After coffee, the Ambassador went out on deck under crown, read his message to America from a prepared statement, using his familiar horn-rimmed spectacles.

Then Mr. Roosevelt, Lord and Lady Halifax and Gen. Watson motored together 35 miles to Washington and at 9:15 p. m. the President dropped his guests at the doorstep of their embassy, bidding them good night.

An American military mission to Britain, including Gen. John C. H. Lee and Rear Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley, also arrived aboard the battleship with the new envoy. Charles Peake, private secretary to Lord Halifax, also was in the party.

The King George V, one of Great Britain's newest war vessels, was making its maiden voyage. It stood off Annapolis in Chesapeake Bay and could not be seen from the shore.

The mighty man o' war, camouflaged in "Mediterranean blue" paint, was the first naval vessel of a belligerent nation to arrive in this country since the war started.

Its presence in Chesapeake Bay posed a legal problem, because under international law the heavily gunned craft must leave within 24 hours unless her officers can prove that she lacks fuel or provisions to reach the

Congress Gets Reform Bill for U.S. Agencies

Acheson Proposes Hearing Commission; Courts' Control Is Held Adequate

By Turner Catledge.
Copyright by New York Times

A comprehensive and detailed plan for improving the often-criticized procedure of Federal administrative agencies, covering yet going far beyond the subject matter of the recently-vetoed Logan-Walter bill, was laid before Congress yesterday by Attorney General Jackson.

It was the product of nearly two years of study by a group of lawyers and scholars, headed by Dean G. Acheson, newly-appointed Assistant Secretary of State and former Undersecretary of the Treasury.

The committee sided with opponents of the Logan-Walter bill, passed by Congress but vetoed by President Roosevelt, which provided for judicial review of agency decisions. It held that there is adequate provision in present law for ultimate review of such decisions by the courts and that further machinery of that sort was unnecessary.

Speeds Settlements

In the main the plan provides a new mechanism for speedier and more independent adjudication of disputes between private interests and the various Federal agencies, together with definite steps aimed at narrowing still further the field of controversy. Whereas the Logan-Walter bill concerned itself chiefly with subjecting the rules and decisions of certain agencies to the review of existing courts under strictly prescribed procedures, this new proposal, its authors claim, goes more directly and effectively toward the root of the problem of administrative procedure.

A detailed bill accompanying the committee's voluminous report would:

1. Create a new office of Federal administrative procedure to review the practices of administrative agencies; carry on a continuing study of their work; receive complaints from the public and periodically recommend desirable improvements.

2. Set a new corps of relatively independent officers within each particular agency to be known as "hearing commissioners" to hear and decide litigated disputes between the agencies and private citizens, leaving the agency heads to act, so far as the quasi-judicial functions are concerned, wholly as appellate tribunals.

Wider Separation

3. Effect further separation of judicial and prosecutive functions within the agencies by providing that persons investigating and presenting cases shall have no hand in deciding them.

4. Regularize rules and regulations of the many agencies; insure the public a larger share in their making and a greater knowledge of their existence and meaning, and provide a lapse of time

80,000 Germans Reported Taken Out of Rumania

Belgrade, Jan. 24.—Eighty thousand German troops have been withdrawn from Rumania in the last four days, according to information from foreign military sources here tonight.

Some diplomatic circles here tonight believed the troops were sent back to the Reich at Moscow's suggestion.

Expect Gas Attack

British Await 'Mightiest Onslaught'

By Drew Middleton,
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 24.—Informed military and diplomatic circles in London seriously expect the mightiest onslaught in history, with bombing on an unimaginable scale and the use of every modern weapon including flame-throwers and gas, to be launched upon the British Isles within three months.

"Germany will try to break Britain and win the war before May," one source said.

Britain, these informants believe, will beat off the German invasion attempt, but only after sacrificing half of her airforce, three-quarters of her battle fleet and at least 250,000 troops.

Along the beaches and behind them tonight Britain tightened the lines of preparation for the expected assault, particularly the threat of gas.

Authorities considered requiring a gas mask as an admission "ticket" to bomb shelters and the Ministry of Home Security weighed plans for civilian gas alarm practices to shake Britons back into consciousness of this menace.

Conjectures continued, meanwhile, about the Axis plans and how Adolf Hitler would try to land his Nazi forces on the islands. Some believed that in addition to a possible attempt to send hundreds of thousands of his troops across the North Sea and the English Channel in boats and barges, he might try to drop shock troops from trains of gliders towed by planes. All observers seemed convinced that the Axis effort would be the greatest assault ever launched by any army.

Nazi Demand For Tunisia Splits Vichy

Darlan Favors Idea, But Weygand May Fight, Berne Is Told

By International News Service

Berne, Jan. 24.—The French government tonight was reported divided in tense discussion on a new German demand for the Axis use of strategic French Tunisia in Africa as a war base designed to cut the spinal cord of the British Mediterranean fleet.

The demand was said to have been served formally on Marshal Petain last Monday, and apparently aroused fears in Vichy that France once more might be plunged into war, this time against Great Britain.

At the same time, there were indications that any Axis effort to land troops on the Tunisian coast of North Africa might provoke armed resistance by units of Gen. Maxime Weygand's huge French army. The Resident Governor of Tunisia, Admiral Esteva, was reported to have notified Vichy he is opposed to the granting of the German demand.

Darlan Reported in Favor

Information reaching Berne stated the 84-year-old Petain is opposed to permitting Axis use of Tunisia, but that his naval minister, Vice Admiral Jean Francois Darlan, favors the idea. Former Vice Premier Pierre Laval, with whom Petain effected a reconciliation last week-end, was understood to be urging the French chief of state to submit to the German proposal.

Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, a staunch advocate of close French-German collaboration, was reported wavering between opposition and acceptance.

The Sicilian channel between Sicily and Tunisia is the narrowest section of the Mediterranean and therefore the most vulnerable stretch in British naval communications between the west and east.

A dispatch direct from Vichy said Petain was holding a secret meeting with his newly created national advisory council. This dispatch, passed by the Vichy censor, said: "If the Germans attempt to use Tunisia, this would provoke extremely grave consequences in all Africa."

Germany was believed to have at least two mechanized divisions in Sicily, ready to land at Tunisia.

Italy to Put Hitler's Picture on Stamp

Rome, Jan. 24 (AP).—To emphasize Italian-German unity Italy will release on January 30 a new stamp bearing pictures of Premier Mussolini and Adolf Hitler as well as those of an Italian and German soldier.

A similar stamp, it is understood here, is being issued in Germany.

Too Hot in Cirene

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Jan. 24.—Rodolfo Graziani, commander of Italy's army in Libya, was reported to have abandoned his headquarters at Cirene, 50 miles west of Derna, apparently under heavy bombardment by British airmen.

With one-half of his effectives and the considerably greater part of his equipment lost in the Egyptian-Libyan compaign to date, Graziani quit Cirene for a spot more difficult for R. A. F. bombers to find, the British said.

(This was the first indication of the exact whereabouts of Graziani since the British began their African offensive.)

British and Australian patrols were reported already west and south of Derna, Libyan port 95 miles beyond Tobruk, and military observers believed the drive might be aimed straight across the Cirenaican "hump," skirting Derna for a direct assault on Bengasi, another port 150 miles to the west.

The number of Italian prisoners taken at Tobruk has swelled to more than 20,000, the British Middle East command announced.

Push 80 Miles Into Eritrea

With their strong aviation support the British land forces pushed steadily westward toward Derna, which is now said to be almost an undefended town. It was heavily bombed yesterday as were the Italian air bases of Apollonia and Maraua, west of Derna.

Meanwhile in East Africa, said reports reaching Cairo, the British have pushed more than 80 miles into the Italian colony of Eritrea in pursuit of nearly two full Italian divisions routed from Kassala a week ago.

The high command said the Fascists have abandoned the outposts of Keru and Aicota.

Aided by the wily Haile Selassie, the dethroned Lion of Judah now back on his native Ethiopian soil, the British reported new blows against the Italians both inside and around Ethiopia.

Casualties were reported inflicted on the Italians in Ethiopia itself by Ethiopian patriots on the warpath

Minority Charges 'Gag' at Hearing On Lend-Lease Bill

A Democratic majority for the lend-lease bill last night summoned the Nation's military chiefs for a last word on its national defense import before speeding the measure to the House next week.

Over-riding minority charges of "gag," Navy, Army and Air Corps heads were invited by House Foreign Affairs Democrats to testify in closed session Monday.

Only one major change in the bill as now drawn—a two-year time limit on the President's powers—was proposed by the committee leadership. It was privately estimated that the committe has the votes to report the bill in that form, though some further concessions are planned.

Sitting late in the evening to expedite hearings, the House commit-

Misguided Learning

Like World, The Almanac Goes Awry

The men who put together the World Almanac, it is generally agreed, know everything. The 1941 edition includes figures on New York's water consumption in 1911, a treatise on the Aurora Borealis and the text of the Republican platform of 1940.

But the men who mail out the "Book of Facts," it appeared yesterday, are human.

The first evidence of fallibility in the mailing room of the New York World-Telegram, publisher of the almanac, came from the office of Justice Frankfurter, where a leather-bound complimentary copy of the almanac had arrived.

No Criticism of Book

There was nothing wrong with the book itself. The time of high tide at 51 points along the Atlantic Coast was there. So was the text of the Hatch Act and the list of famous train wrecks. But on the cover of the book, stamped in gold-leaf letters, was the name of Marguerite LeHand, personal secretary to President Roosevelt.

Ann Murray, 12-year-old English refugee now staying with Justice and Mrs. Frankfurter, was sent a copy stamped with the name of Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Justice Frankfurter's almanac arrived at the home of Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Post. Meyer's copy turned up at the office of Justice Murphy.

A secretary in Justice Murphy's office said she felt bothered every time she consults the almanac. "It's as though I was looking at some-

House Votes Funds for 200 Cargo Ships

Smith Proposal To Bar 'Closed Shop' Agreement Beaten

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

An emergency $313,500,000 fund for building 200 merchant ships was voted by the House yesterday, after an attempt to bar "closed shop" labor agreements in shipyards was beaten amid heated debate.

Representative Smith (Democrat), Virginia, proposed the amendment, declaring it was intended to stop "labor racketeers" from "levying tribute" on men required for defense projects. He said he would offer a similar restriction on all bills providing funds for national defense.

Majority Leader McCormack and Representative Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, who was in charge of the bill, opposed the proposal on the ground it might delay the shipbuilding program, which seeks to avert a world shipping shortage caused by submarine and air attacks.

Admit "Racket" Exists

Both leaders, however, and others who opposed the Smith proposal in the stormy session, admitted the existence of a "fee racket" on some defense jobs. They urged that the problem be considered "in the regular way," so that a solution can be considered after hearings are held and all sides of the matter are viewed.

"We mustn't condemn all labor for the acts of a few," McCormack urged.

Representative Woodrum declared

Traffic Council Approves Modified Observer Plan

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

Revival of a modified version of the citizens traffic observers' corps as an immediate method of striking at motoring lawlessness in Washington was voted last night by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Council.

Following a hectic, three-hour discussion, the council agreed to meet in special session February 7 to act on recommendations of a committee appointed to iron out details of the program. Concrete proposals will then be submitted to the Commissioners.

On motion of Council Member George Kenelpp, the advisory group indorsed in general "some form of a citizen traffic observers' committee to work in cooperation with the Department of Vehicles and Traffic." Specific procedure of the proposed citizen unit was left to a special committee headed by A. Julian Brelawski.

Strike Threatens to Shut Down Allis-Chalmers Power Plant

By the Associated Press

With its production already paralyzed by a C. I. O. strike, the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. at Milwaukee last night faced a threatened shutdown of its $2,000,000 power plant.

The company has about $26,000,000 in defense orders, chiefly for naval equipment. The power shutdown was threatened as leaders of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers Union sought to require A. F. of L. maintenance men to sign statements agreeing not to participate in any A. F. of L. organizing activities.

The signatures were a prerequisite to the granting of permission to enter the plant.

A major issue of the C. I. O. strike at the plant is the C. I. O. union's demand for a union shop.

Labor trouble also broke out during the day in the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s big plant at Bethlehem, Pa., which holds millions of dollars of defense contracts. A company official said 300 men went on "a sit-down strike." An official of the C. I. O. steel workers' organizing committee said workers staged a demonstration and that as a result about 3,000 workers were "thrown out" and "locked out" of the plant.

In Washington, President Roosevelt asserted at his press conference that strikes in defense industries had been ver[illegible] labor situation [illegible] very good.

Asked the policy of th[illegible] ment regarding these strikes, said each case stood by itself.

At Mobile, Ala., operations of the Alabama Drydock & Shipbuilding Co.'s yards were virtually at a standstill while negotiations for a wage increase were carried on.

a preview of the Sunday Post

How the R. A. F. Does It

"So many owe so much to so few!" A stirring tribute to the R. A. F., whose brilliant defense of the British Isles has been the outstanding feat of the Hitler War. Dr. Nathaniel F. Silsbee (whose "Wings Over America" was so popular with Post readers) discusses in detail the reasons why Britain's pilots have come through despite overwhelming odds and compares the dependability of American-made planes with those of the British. The first of a series of Sunday Post articles.

"Gates of the Morning"

The usual triangle becomes a quadrangle in this Sunday Post novel. Jeremy, an R. A. British Assets Selling Well, Expert Says

By the Associated Press

Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury, said yesterday that liquidation of British securities in the United States was "progressing very satisfactorily."

Phillips said that was the gist of a report he made to Treasury and Securities and Exchange Commission officials at a conference in the office of Secretary Morgenthau.

Morgenthau recently disclosed a British estimate that at the beginning of the year the British-owned $616,000,000 of "market" securities and $900,000,000 of direct investments in the United States.

His liquidation report, Phillips explained, referred to the "market" securities.

The British official told reporters he also was negotiating with "a very large number" of American investment trusts for the sale of the direct investments.

This phase of liquidation, it was explained, was awaiting the arrival in the United States of a high British official carrying a list of these investments. The name of the official was not learned, but he was said to have arrived in Lisbon to take a clipper plane for the United States.

Phillips was accompanied by T. J. Carlyle Gifford, British liquidating agent in New York, who has been handling the piecemeal sale of the "market" securities. These are well known stocks and bonds which are listed on leading securities exchanges.

G. H. S. Pinsent, financial attache of the British Embassy, also attended. The Securities Commission was represented by Ganson Purcell, director of the trading and exchange division, and David Schencker, head of the investment trust division.

Treasury conferees besides Morgenthau were Undersecretary Daniel W. Bell, Merle Cochran, director of the stabilization fund, and Harry D. White, director of monetary research.

Roosevelt Greets Halifax on Bay nearest British port or that she needs repairs to make her seaworthy.

The King George cost $28,000,000, carries ten 14-inch guns, six forward and four aft, and the gunners are protected from shrapnel by steel enclosed turrets. Her normal crew calls for 1,500 officers and men.

It was officially explained that the battleship had been employed for the trip to give it a "shakedown cruise."

President Roosevelt scrapped every rule in the diplomatic code book by going in person to meet Lord Halifax. Strict protocol, observed for centuries, calls for a new Ambassador to pay his respects and present credentials to the ruler of the foreign country to which he has been sent. Never before had an American President received a foreign envoy on the water.

The passage of the battleship King George V up the bay had been heralded all day long by observation planes.

It was the first time since the war of 1812 that a British war vessel in battle dress had entered Chesapeake Bay. Then, the British captured Washington and burned the Capitol and the White House.

Yesterday, however, the British warship bore not hostile troops but the envoy from a friendly, invasion-menaced nation, seeking closer cooperation from an America preparing to become an "arsenal of democracy."

Roosevelt Leaves in Rain

Without officially disclosing his destination, President Roosevelt left the White House by car at 1:40 in the afternoon in a pouring rain.

Even at his morning press conference 3 hours before Mr. Roosevelt had refused to say whether Lord Halifax would arrive, explaining only that human lives were at stake. This cryptic phrase was a reminder that German submarines, lurking in the Atlantic, have recently taken a heavy toll of British warships and merchant vessels.

A few minutes afterward, the admiral's barge, a smaller vessel, left the wharf with an official party from the British Embassy and the Canadian and Australian Legations.

Representing Great Britain on the barge were Charge d'Affaires Butler, Counselor of Embassy S. L. Childs, First Secretary F. R. Hoyer-Millar and naval, military and air attaches.

South African Minister Ralph William Close arrived at the wharf too late to make the brief trip out into the bay, but awaited Lord Halifax's arrival ashore.

The full text of the statement by Lord Halifax follows:

Lady Halifax and I are very glad to be here, and we have had a voyage which we shall always remember.

It has been something of a rest for me, for this is almost the first time I have been out of daily and nightly touch with the war cabinet in London since the war began a year and a half ago.

The Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill came to the port from which we sailed to say goodby to us, and now the President has done my country the great honor of coming to greet us on arrival. His action in meeting H. M. S. King George V has been tremendously appreciated by the whole ship's company, from the captain to the last joined member of the crew, as it must certainly be in Great Britain and in every part of the British Empire.

I expect you know more of the latest news of what is going on in the world than I do, for I have been rather cut off from news for the past week or so, and I have therefore nothing much to say to you on that score.

I have come here as a member of the war cabinet serving as His Majesty's Ambassador, to make known to the Government and people of the United States from time to time in what ways, if they are willing, they can best give us the help we need. The more quickly your generous help can be made effective, the sooner shall we be able to break this Nazi power that is trying to enslave Europe and the world.

I shall thus be continuing the work begun by my predecessor, Lord Lothian, whose death has been such a loss to his country and who, I know, is mourned by the many friends he made in the United States.

We have assuredly a rough, difficult and perhaps a very long road before us; but the British people are united as never before in history, and I have no doubt that with your help we shall win through and so save those causes on which your civilization and ours depend.

Axis Covets Whole World, Early Says

By the Associated Press

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 24.—Stephen Early, secretary to the President, said tonight this Nation was committed to a policy of all-out defense because it is convinced there was a "movement on the other side of the water which seriously contemplates the domination of the entire world."

Early, in an address prepared for delivery to the Minnesota Editorial Association and over the C. B. S. network, said the defense policy meant:

"Defense for the present, for the nearby future and for the long-range future. It means defense by building, now, the most modern fighting equipment. It means defense by building the plant so that it can keep on producing the most modern equipment as long as may be necessary.

"It means defense by putting that equipment where it can best serve the interests of the United States."

The latter statement apparently referred to the Administration's lease-lend proposal for aiding Britain. Until the "dream of universal domination" is ended, early said, "no one in the world can feel safe; such safety as there is abides in the strength of our arms."

Early said that to establish dictatorship and totalitarianism, society must be destroyed as it has been "destroyed in Germany and Italy."

He added: "If you want to destroy society, you must destroy the press and the radio. And that is what has happened to the newspapers and radio in the totalitarian countries. To say that they are subject to censorship is to tell less than half the truth. What they contain is ordered from above, all of it."

that the conduct of some labor leaders in "exacting large and unconscionable fees before men may work on defense jobs" was "reprehensible," but contended that the "great open shop versus closed shop issue" couldn't be settled by an amendment offered on the floor of the House.

"We undoubtedly have to meet this question," he added, "but let's meet it head on by direct legislation, not piecemeal treatment."

Smith told the House that constituents who have sought jobs on defense projects in nearby Virginia have had to pay union initiation fees ranging from $23 to $150 in order to be hired. His amendment would have barred use of any of the money appropriated for building the ships where joining or not joining a union was a condition of employment.

It was defeated through the substitution of a prohibition against employment of workers who advocate overthrow of the Government by force. The Smith amendment also contained such a prohibition.

Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, said that he "wouldn't say some unions hadn't made some mistakes, or that some leaders had done no wrong." Enactment of the Smith amendment, however, he contended, would "repeal the National Labor Relations Act" and would cause strikes that would tie up the whole shipbuilding program.

After his amendment was defeated, Smith took the floor to announce he was introducing a bill to carry out the terms of his proposal and would demand a hearing on it.

The shipbuilding appropriation was approved without a record vote after it was indorsed on both sides of the House. Under the measure, which now goes to the Senate, 200 steel cargo vessels would be built within the next two years.

President Roosevelt sent Congress a special message asking $175,000,000 to enable the Army to contract immediately for clothing and equipment for its expanding personnel, which, he said, would reach 1,400,000 enlisted men and trainees by next summer.

Congressional sources disclosed that Mr. Roosevelt, within the next ten days plans to ask for $1,200,000,000 in supplemental funds for this year's defense program.

Army Weighs Women's Unit For Air Defense

By the Associated Press

Boston, Jan. 24.—Possibility of establishing the Nation's first permanent women's unit for aerial defense work on a voluntary basis was seen today by Army officials as the air defense command completed four-day maneuvers in the northeastern United States.

A blinding snowstorm halted New England's maneuvers a few hours earlier than scheduled, but when defense planes were grounded, officers said they had won 35 theoretical victories out of a possible 50 over "enemy" bombers since the "attack" was launched early Tuesday morning.

Praising the work of 180 women who had worked at the Boston information center of the maneuvers, handling the evaluation information telephoned by thousands of civilian "spotters," Capt. Thomas J. Cody, the center's commanding officer, said:

"The maneuvers proved most definitely that women can do this work and do it efficiently."

He declared Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney, commander of aircraft warning maneuvers for the New York and New England areas during the tests, had expressed the hope that the women "will see fit to remain subject to call in the event of an emergency or for any training that may be scheduled in the future."

The closing in of "thick weather" and the incidence of icing conditions in the clouds stopped today's maneuvers after the defense had scored ten interceptions out of a possible 11. So bad was the weather that only three out of 22 pursuit craft ordered out of the area were able to reach their base at Mitchel Field, N. Y.

Fifteen were grounded at Hillsgrove, R. I., and three others at Suffolk Airport Long Island.

In the mock attacks, accompanied by air raid warnings in New England industrial communities, "victories" were claimed by the defense in "fights" waged over Fitchburg, North Wilmington, Scituate, Boston, Providence and Groton, Conn.

Price of Zinc Scrap Too High, U. S. Contends

By the Associated Press

The contention that prices of scrap and secondary zinc were unduly high was advanced yesterday by the Defense Commission following a conference with representatives of the industry.

Leon Henderson, defense commissioner in charge of price stabilization, said the group agreed to submit a report in a few days on how requirements may be met.

"Although the price of primary zinc has remained at 7.25 cents per pound at East St. Louis for the last four months, some producers of secondary zinc have recently been charging premiums above the price," the commission said. "At the same time the price of zinc scrap, source of the secondary zinc, has jumped sharply.

An Unsettling Influence

"It is clear that the actual tonnage of metal which has been sold above the base prices is very small compared to the total sales of primary and secondary zinc. Nevertheless, the sales are undoubtedly an unsettling influence on the market.

"At the same time, some secondary producers and scrap dealers have contributed to the situation by 'overreaching'—trying for the highest price obtainable."

Lumber Prices Falling

Lumber prices are fixed by the law of supply and demand and the trend is definitely downward, spokesmen for the industry said, after they had been told by Henderson that Government price fixing would be sought if present quotations do not drop. M. L. Fleishel, chairman of the lumber and timber products defense committee, said:

"The Government now is getting all the lumber it wants. Prices on cheaper grades of lumber are coming down. And the public should know that plenty of lumber is available now for small homes at reasonable prices."

Hope for Lumber Price Cut Here Grows

Hope for a reduction in lumber prices in order that building of small homes may be stimulated came from Washington dealers yesterday.

Approving Thursday's action by Leon Henderson, Defense Commissioner, in warning the lumber industry that prices must be cut, Sidney L. Hechinger, owner of the Hechinger Co., said: "I am glad that Mr. Henderson has taken up the matter because unless something is done regarding the reduction in the price of lumber it will be a retardant to building. I do feel that the increase in prices was brought on due to the competitive buying of the various Government agencies, chief among which was the buying for the Army camps.

"All retail lumber dealers hope that Mr. Henderson's action will prove effective in driving the price down so that small home owners will continue with their buying plans. Already the market shows a sign of a decline."

"A Little Too High"

W. K. Wimsapp, of Johnson & Wimsapp, commented: "I think the price of common grades of lumber has gone a little too high. If the Government takes over the lumber mills it will cost them twice as much.

George W. Huguely, of the Gallicher & Huguely Lumber Co., asserted:

"If the Government had a little bit better system of purchasing I believe that the price structure would not have gone up as rapidly or as high as it has gone. It is all based on the law of supply and demand. It has not helped our business any because we have no more spread than we had a year ago. It has discouraged a great many local builders from going ahead with operations they had planned."

The Gallup Poll

71 Per Cent Say Nazi Victory Over Britain Would Have Adverse Effects on Their Lives

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 24.—Since the invasion of the Low Countries by Nazi troops last spring virtually every study of American public opinion has shown a growing desire to increase the scale of United States aid to Britain. What are some of the basic American attitudes underlying such a trend?

At least a partial answer to that question is given today in a survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The survey shows that since last spring a growing number of Americans have come to believe a German victory in Europe would affect their own lives and fortunes directly or indirectly; that America's economic security no less than her military security might be at stake.

Whether American men and women are right or wrong in holding such alarms may have far less importance during 1941 than the fact that they do hold them—and that the desire to aid Britain may increasingly flow from this source.

Whereas only 47 per cent of those interviewed in a Nation-wide survey last March thought that a German victory would affect them, 71 per cent now think they would be affected.

Less than half of one per cent indicated a belief they might be beneficially affected by the victory of Adolf Hitler's "New Order" in Europe.

Voters in successive surveys were asked:

"Suppose the United States does not go into the war, and Germany defeats England—do you think you, personally, would be affected by this German victory?"

	Af-	Not Af-	Don't
	fected	fected	Know
March, 1940	47%	35%	18%
May (after Low-lands invasion)	64	24	12
June (after defeat of French)	58	27	15
July	67	24	9
September	65	23	12
TODAY	71	21	8

At the present moment, the survey reveals, Americans are more concerned about the economic effects of a Hitler victory than even the military and ideological aspects.

Many of them believe that trade restrictions, loss of markets and a lowered standard of living would be the first effects here, followed by dangers of Axis military domination in this hemisphere as well as in Europe and Asia.

"Economic effects" of various kinds were mentioned by 48 per cent of those with specific comments.

Other chief categories were: military effects of a German victory (20 per cent) and the influence of Nazi ideas on United States civil institutions (7 per cent.)

"We'd feel the effect of dictatorship in every way," some voters said. "Even if this country could escape dictatorship itself, we'd have to prepare for constant threat of war."

"Our war preparations would cause hard times through higher taxes and a lower standard of living."

In general those who feel they would be personally affected by a German victory abroad are the most anxious to aid Britain "even at the risk of getting into the war." Nevertheless, almost a third of those who don't think they'd be personally affected by Nazi victory say it is more important for the United States to aid England now, rather than concentrate entirely on "keeping out," additional analysis shows.

Doolittle's Son To Join Air School

The son of one of the Army's best-known fliers is preparing to follow in his father's footsteps.

James H. Doolittle, jr., son of Maj. James H. Doolittle of World War fame, has been placed on the Army's eligibility list for appointment as a flying cadet, the War Department announced yesterday.

Twenty-year-old Jimmy, jr., now holds a private pilot's license, the announcement said.

Troops Hunt Rebel Leader Of Iron Guard

By Robert St. John
Associated Press Staff Writer

Bucharest, Rumania, Jan. 24 (Passed by Military Censor).—Rumanian troops were sent out tonight to hunt for Horia Sima, Iron Guard leader, and "every last cutthroat" involved with him in the Guard's bloody four-day rebellion.

A communique blaming Sima for the outbreak likewise announced that any Rumanian withholding knowledge of his hiding place and those of other "originators and executors" of the revolt would be treated as an accomplice and made to "suffer the full penalties of the law."

[Vice Premier Sima was reported by the International News Service to have been captured by Rumanian troops and placed under arrest on charges of plotting the revolution in which some 6,000 persons were killed.—Editor's note.]

Joining in the condemnation of rebellious leaders, Gen. George Begelescu, chieftain of Rumania's war veterans, declared that if the trouble had continued for another two or three days Rumania "would have been reduced to the fate of Poland."

Communists Blamed

Gen. Ion Antonescu, whose authoritarian regime now apparently has weathered the greatest crisis it has yet faced, described the rebels still holding out as "under Communist influence."

Tanks of the German and Rumanian armies patrolled Bucharest streets filled with glass and broken masonry and the rubble left by heavy fighting. German fighter planes occasionally swooped low over the city.

Scores of Jews were reported slain in the basements of their homes. Iron Guardists took over the home of Magda Lupescu, who is now in exile with King Carol in Spain.

The government's order for the apprehension of Sima was of double significance, since he is not alone head of all Iron Guardists but vice premier of Rumania as well.

During the height of the fighting, the home of the first secretary of the United States legation, J. Webb Benton, of Fort Myer, Va., was twice invaded—by troops and then by civilians who used it as a fortress from which they shot at the soldiers.

The Rumanian army later provided protection, stationing a tank in the yard. All Americans—including Benton and his mother—were reported safe. The American Legation was untouched, but its former quarters were mounted with machine-guns which for a time peppered the home of United States Consul Fred Hunt. M. Franklin Günther, the American Minister, was en route to Bucharest from his mountain villa when the revolt broke out and was in the army barracks at Ploesti, making a telephone call, when fighting began there. He escaped unhurt.

The public was warned to buy no jewelry or furniture or anything else from second-hand stores—all of it, the government said, might be loot from homes.

Looters to Die on Spot

All arrested go before military courts. They must be tried within 24 hours of apprehension, and punishments must be carried out within the succeeding 10 hours. Looters or snipers firing from houses on military men, citizens or public buildings were put under what amounted to an instant sentence of death. It was announced that they could be executed on the spot. State employes not immediately reporting for work were made subject to discharge; army generals were put in charge of the secret police; the Bucharest police took over the gas and electric companies; all public gatherings were outlawed.

The situation in the provinces remained in doubt—particularly in such cities as Brasov, Giurgiu, Constanta, Ploesti, Cantina and Craiova, all of which the Iron Guardists had claimed to have occupied completely. Army headquarters asserted, however, that order was being restored rapidly in those centers.

The number of dead and wounded was unknown; but in Bucharest alone the hospitals were filled with wounded and partial lists of the head were posted outside.

This was the first day since Sunday that had not been filled with the din of revolver, rifle, machine gun and artillery fire, although yesterday's action was largely a case of mopping up and driving the Guardists out of snipers' nests and public buildings.

Sima called on his followers to surrender at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon—after three radio appeals by Antoescu in which he had stressed that he was "a friend of the Axis" and "no tool of the Jews and Masons."

Sima's capitulation order said he had given in "in order to stop the bloodshed which does not serve the interest of the Axis and because we know the policy of Germany and Italy requires special conditions."

Couriers Run Gantlet of Fire

There was no explanation of that enigmatic statement. Sima ordered an immediate halt to the fighting, instructed the Guardists to evacuate all public buildings and "return to normal life at once."

The orders reached most of the Guardists while they were fighting violently. It was taken to them in the form of a one-sheet edition of the Iron Guard paper by couriers who ran through the firing lines.

In some areas the runners could not reach the groups of rebellious snipers—whom the government on occasion had called "secret agents, Communists, Jews, professional trouble-makers"—and so they fought on long into the day.

Just before the major fighting ended, Iron Guardists told correspondents that they were preparing to equip six hidden airplanes to attack army concentrations in the streets.

Many buildings damaged in the recent earthquake now bear the marks of bullets; a single window in the telephone building shows 78 machine gun bullet holes. Nearby, a whole line of smart shops stands in wreckage; almost every window in an eight-story apartment house used by snipers has been shattered by bombardment. Platforms at a central bus terminal are stained red with blood. Piles of blood-soaked hats and shoes lay in the streets.

Tuesday evening brought the most violent of all the fighting. The Guardists then held the police station and, bareheaded and in solid rows they attacked the surrounding streets. During the height of the struggle they burned hundreds of yellow candles on the spot where three Iron Guardsmen had been killed the day before. In a nearby church there were uninterrupted services for the slain.

In one part of the city, church chimes rang every time a Guardist died in action. In front of the Orthodox Cathedral the great bell, which is run only in national emergencies, clamored endlessly, its ropes pulled by 20 men.

There were few intervals of silence during the entire night. Air raid sirens kept up a constant whine.

Gen. Antonescu was in the center of one of the battle zones as he sat in his office at the presidency of the council building receiving reports. Throughout the week Sima was absent. One report said he was hiding in an Iron Guard "nest;" another said he had fled to Transylvania.

Steel-helmeted soldiers were in complete possession of strategically important positions in front of the Presidency, constantly firing machine guns, tommy guns, automatic rifles and field artillery guns from tanks.

The eerie green fingers of anti-aircraft searchlights played on the scene of death.

Not far away smoke still poured from the ruins of a gasoline storage depot which exploded, either from bullets or from incendiarism. The flames lit the sky. Smoke billowed over the city.

Tanks Fire on Barricades

Gasoline sprays set fire to many bullet-riddled, 40-passenger city buses which the Iron Guard used as barricades.

Down another street the army laid siege to Iron Guard headquarters.

Troops fired constantly with machine guns, automatic rifles and field artillery, guns from tanks.

The Guardists used buses, private automobiles and taxis to form street barricades. At one time, they held a munitious storehouse seized from the gendarmes and were able to answer, shot for shot, the fire of army machine guns and artillery. For a time they also held the Bucharest radio station, the ministry of interior, the secret police headquarters and the ministry of justice.

The army held the 13-story telephone building through many violent attacks.

On Tuesday evening, a boy standing on the street beside me was shot five times through the legs by ricocheting bullets. There were no taxis, and the Iron Guardists had seized all filling stations. We started to carry the victim to a hospital several miles away, and an Iron Guard ambulance came by then.

At the hospital, we were joined by a Guardist ambulance crew which had commandeered a 40-passenger bus. We toured the battle area, picking up the dead and wounded. On one trip a round of bullets hit the bus, killing a wounded man who had been propped up in the seat beside the driver.

Antonescu has promised a reorganization of the Iron Guard and a government regime which would include "sincere guardsmen."

Antonescu Takes Over Guard

Bucharest, Jan. 24 (INS).—Premier Antonescu tonight declared himself leader of the Iron Guard, replacing Vice Premier Horia Sima and concentrating military as well as political power in his own hands.

Rumania Mobs Damage Homes Of 3 U.S. Diplomats Known Here

HUNT GUNTHER BENTON

Three State Department career men, whose homes were fired upon and damaged by mob violence during fighting in Bucharest, are widely known in Washington.

Frederick Drum Hunt, 28-year-old consul at the United States Legation, whose Bucharest home was peppered by machine gun fire, is at present on leave and visiting his mother, Mrs. Arthur Condon, at 4408 Western Avenue, Chevy Chase, Md. He was in New York last night and is expected to return here today. He will sail for Rumania a week from today, his mother reported.

Mrs. Condon was the only woman delegate from the District to the Democratic Conventions of 1936 and 1940. She was acting committeewoman in 1940. She is a member of the Women's National Press Club and at one time was society editor of a local newspaper.

J. Webb Benton, first secretary of the legation, maintains a home at Fort Myer, Va. Both he and his mother, who is visiting in Bucharest, escaped harm when his home was twice invaded by both soldiers and civilians. The civilians, it was reported, made use of the Benton residence as a fortress from which they fired upon military units.

Likewise, Franklin Mott Gunther, the American Minister, who at one time lived here at 2812 N Street Northwest, escaped unharmed.

According to the Associated Press, he was en route to Bucharest from his mountain villa when the revolt broke out. As the fighting began, he was in the Army barracks at Lloesti making a telephone call and was warned to turn back, reports stated.

Hunt was formerly a trade commissioner with the Department of Commerce. He was sent to Bucharest June 1, 1939, and was made a foreign service officer and legation consul a month later. He arrived in this country on leave Thanksgiving Day.

Benton has been in the foreign service since 1921 and has served in several South American countries as well as Warsaw and Madrid. He was educated abroad and was graduated from Cambrige University. There was no one at his Fort Myer home last night.

Gunther has served in the consular service since 1928 when he was made Minister to Egypt by President Coolidge. He gave up his N Street home here in 1937 when he was assigned to the Legation at Bucharest.

Tuscan Wolves' Teeth Drawn, Greeks Report

By the Associated Press

Athens, Jan. 24.—The famous Italian "Wolves of Tuscany" division has suffered such heavy losses on the central Albanian battlefield north of Klisura it has been withdrawn and a new commander appointed to reorganize it, Greek reports from the front said tonight.

Other Italian troops also were reported withdrawing in that sector to freshly prepared fortifications. A government spokesman said this withdrawal resulted from Greek occupation of new heights overlooking the Fascist lines.

"We have taken 530 prisoners in two days," a spokesman said.

The Tuscany division was thrown into battle recently after a hurried trip from Italy in an attempt to stem the Greek advance, it was said.

Information gained from Italian prisoners said that at least seven Italian divisions have had to be withdrawn for reorganization because of "extremely heavy losses," the Greek said.

The Greeks also recounted prisoners' stories that they had gone for days in some cases without food because of shattered supply lines.

A growing number of officers among those captured by the Greeks was noted. In one group of 25 prisoners there were 8 officers, it was said.

Heavy artillery bombardments, it was reported, prevented the Fascist forces from organizing their new bases and blocked efforts to concentrate their troops for a counter-attack.

Greek bombers again raided Berati and Elbasan, communication centers for the Italian forces in the central and northern sectors, dispatches from the front said. A supply column was reported machine-gunned.

Rome Reports Success

Rome, Jan. 24 (AP).—The Italian high command reported today that prisoners and automatic arms were captured in patrol actions against the Greeks in Albania.

Italian planes were reported to have "scatter-bombed" Greek troops.

Smathers Proposal To Annex Cuba Resented in Havana

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 24 (AP).—A New Jersey Senator's resolution that President Roosevelt open negotiations to include Cuba in the United States as the forty-ninth State evoked Cuban protests today and a newspaper's countersuggestion that Cuba annex Florida.

Senator William H. Smathers, Democrat, introduced the resolution yesterday.

The newspaper Alerta, in its Florida quip, also suggested Cuba should protest to all the American republics over the Smathers proposal.

The Cuban Revolutionary Party bloc in the House called a meeting to discuss the matter and the newspaper Luz, the party's organ, asserted that the Smathers proposal showed "lack of consideration toward a country which should merit consideration."

Nazi Winter Drive In East Held Unlikely

By Kirke L. Simpson.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Whatever its true causes, the bloody insurrection in Rumania seems to have ended any possibility of a German winter offensive in the East. Coupled with Italian defeats in Africa and Albania, the Rumanian blow-off shackles the Nazi army there against early aggressive action.

It could not use Rumania, still seething with unrest and factionalism, as a jump-off base for a march to Italy's aid or against Turkey. To do so now would be to leave the most vital German war resource, Rumanian oil, doubly exposed.

Ploesti, transportation and production nerve center of the Rumanian oil fields, is listed as among cities and towns swept by the Iron Guard insurrection. The situation there was not fully known even in Bucharest, but it must cause more concern in Germany than that in the Rumanian capital itself.

It would not take much internal disorder or deliberate sabotage at Ploesti to reduce the flow of oil to the Nazi war machine to a trickle. The Danube route, if not already ice-closed for the winter, soon will be.

There are indications that the German army has kept aloof from the actual conflict between Rumanian factions. This points toward a dread in Berlin that the use of Nazi troops might only increase the danger to the German oil supply by broadening the internal strife.

Bombed Church Looted of Silver

The church suffered badly in Nazi raids in the autumn and again when the city was attacked with fire bombs. Looting followed.

Yearning for Liver and Onions, Babies Win Actress Divorce

She testified that gag writer William Telask, her husband, would not let her drink milk, eat liver, oysters, hot dogs or onions; read, knit, vote, talk in company or have babies.

"He wouldn't let me knot," she elaborated to a superior judge, "because he said I had a stupid expression while knitting."

Aussies Celebrate

The Australians who took up the advance into the west were troops held in reserve outside Tobruk during the recent attack. Other Australian and British troops who stormed the stronghold relaxed in the town today.

Many abandoned bicycles were found and the streets were full of bike-riding Aussies. Others in the full flush of satisfaction over the victory strolled the streets after fine meals of captured Italian food and wines, stopping to greet friends and exchange notes on the battle.

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell visited Tobruk today, inspecting the forces and congratulating the Australian and British commanders.

While enormous stores of supplies were captured, the Italians destroyed considerable material on Wednesday before surrendering the town. One group of trucks was set afire after being drenched with oil. This was the first instance since the desert campaign began where the Italians found time to destroy their material.

Parthian Sinks Italian Ship

Copyright by New York Times

London, Jan. 24.—The admiralty announced today that the British submarine Parthian has sunk a heavily laden Italian supply ship of about 7,000 tons south of Italy. The identity of the supply ship was not given.

The communique declared the sinking was evidence of the success in the work of "interrupting Italy's seaborne communications with her armies of Africa."

Last July the Parthian fought a surface engagement with an Italian submarine and sank the enemy with torpedoes. A month later the Parthian attacked several Italian cruisers and destroyers in the central Mediterranean, scoring two direct hits with torpedoes.

Great Fires Set as R. A. F. Blasts Plane Bases in Sicily

By International News Service

Valletta, Malta, Jan. 24.—Royal Air Force bombers launched terrific new attacks on Italian bases in Sicily today, starting fires with incendiary bombs which could be seen here, 60 miles away.

British bombers made smashing attacks on Sicily last week after Italian and German planes based there had attacked a fleet convoy, necessitating scuttling of the cruiser Southampton and causing serious damage to the aircraft carrier Illustrious.

Rhodes Is Bombed

Rome, Jan. 24 (AP).—The Italian high command announced today that British warplanes had bombed the picturesque Island of Rhodes, site of one of Italy's mightiest naval and air bases in the Eastern Mediterranean.

Other British warplanes were reported to have carried out bombing attacks on the Libyan base of Derna, 95 miles west of Tobruk where the Italians said Fascist troops clinging to the western fringes of the town continued to offer "stubborn resistance" to besieging British land forces all day yesterday.

Italian planes, the daily war bulletin said, bombed and machine-gunned British mechanized forces in the Tobruk zone.

The German air corps, meanwhile, carried out another bombing attack on the British naval base at Malta in the central Mediterranean, the high command declared.

The British attack on Rhodes, which still bears many evidences of occupation by crusading knights of the Middle Ages, was said to have been carried out Wednesday night and was said to have caused "slight damage to private dwellings" but no casualties.

Petain Selects A Supercouncil Of 188 Advisers

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, Jan. 24.—Marshal Petain personally selected a supercouncil of 188 members today to help him govern France, but left the body without legislative powers.

The council, which includes 68 senators and deputies, will meet solely at his call to discuss only those matters he determines, but he is not obligated to follow its decisions.

Whether even the minutes of the group's meetings, which will be secret, are to be published rests solely with the elderly marshal who created the group to "give advice and assure useful contact with the people."

The decree promulgating the council tonight said each member would be paid 100,000 francs (about $2,300) per year.

The council was said to contain "no measured mixture, no concern about balance or compromise."

Britain Honors 65 Civilians For Bravery

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

London, Jan. 24.—Britain's home front army was honored tonight in a new list of 65 awards to rail workers, longshoremen, policemen and other civilians who defied Nazi air attacks to keep vital goods moving and to perform daring rescues.

One of those cited for the George Medal, of which there were 40 recipients, was a nurse at Woolwich, Mary Felicia Thomas, who crawled under tons of bomb wreckage to give an opiate to a trapped man and woman.

Leading the list of civilian heroes was Norman Tunna, a railroad brakeman, who during a raid on the Liverpool port area, threw two burning German incendiary bombs from a railroad car filled with live British bombs. He won the George Cross, the highest of the new decorations for civilians who perform outstanding acts of bravery in air raids.

He first tried to throw off one blazing bomb by hand, but it was wedged closely between two British bombs. He pried it out with a pole. "By the time I had thrown out the second, the bombs in the car were very hot," he said. "I used a stirrup pump to cool them down."

Inspector Michael McHugh and four other members of London's dock police were honored for an act of bravery which, it was declared, saved the lives of thousands of persons in a huge tenement area. Fire spread on a London dock in one raid and endangered naval ammunition.

The policemen went through the flames and carted the ammunition away from the docks.

Another man, a gas company employe, risked death when a bomb fell in a huge tank of gas and set it ablaze. Timothy Higgins, the employe, threw a large piece of clay over the hole and jumped on it to seal the aperture, permitting the fire to burn out.

British Victories Impress Brazil, Traveler Says

Brazil will remain quiet—so far as giving any comfort or assistance to the Nazis is concerned—so long as Britain continues successfully to fight, Julien Bryan, world traveler just returned from Brazil, said here yesterday.

At the moment, 80 per cent of the "men in the street' down there incline symathetically toward the United States. But the politicians have so constantly been told by the Brazilian Nazis that Der Tag will certainly come that they are not unmindful of the political winds, Bryan said.

The Nazis, said Bryan, have wormed their way into key industrial and business positions and have functioned under considerable pressure from Berlin, both social and economic.

They have built churches and schools and have taken out membership in the Brazilian Rotary Clubs. On their earlier adventures in Brazil, the Germans had refrained from mixing with the native citizens. They got together principally in the cemeteries, when dead, the traveler said.

Bryan appeared last night in the National Geographic Society lecture series. He showed pictures of a section of the Brazilian army, beautifully mounted on horses.

"The army there still specializes considerably in horsemanship. They can leap on the horses and stand on their heads. The Polish army specialized in horsemanship, too," Bryan observed ironically. "It's great against modern bombing."

He said this country should learn more about the conditions in Brazil and should develop friendliness to Brazil.

German Officials Take Their Hats Off to Lindbergh

Berlin, Jan. 24 (AP).—"Hats off to Charles Lindbergh for the courage shown," was the reaction of authorized German sources today to the American airman's deposition before a United States House committee yesterday.

"In view of the moral terrorism exerted by interventionists this courage shown is exemplary, they said.

"It is doubtful whether many individuals in the United States can be found in prominent positions who are willing to act as courageously, although many feel as Lindbergh does," they added.

Italians Kill Story

Rome, Jan. 24 (INS).—A lengthy and sympathetically phrased report on the testimony of Col. Lindbergh on the American lease-lend bill was distributed by Stefani, the official Italian news agency, but was killed without explanation before it could be published. Italian papers today carried no story on the testimony.

Girl, 15, Inherits Title of Scotland's High Constable

London, Jan. 24 (AP).—A man was killed in an automobile accident down in Kenya Colony today, and thus fate gave his 15-year-old daughter precedence over every titleholder in Scotland, save members of the royal family.

She is Lady Diana Denyse Hay, who becomes holder of the ancient title of lord high constable of Scotland, granted by Robert the Bruce in 1314.

The change came about with the death at Nairobi of Josslyn Victor Hay, 35, Earl of Erroll and hereditary high constable of Scotland since 1928.

Only once before has a woman held the constable's title, in 1717, when Charles, a bachelor and the thirteenth earl, was succeeded by his sister, May. Lady Diana now becomes Countess of Erroll.

It is quite possible that if Princess Elizabeth ever is crowned Queen, Lady Diana will attend her in the coronation ceremony.

Roosevelt Courts War, Nazis Assert

By Percival Knauth

Berlin, Jan. 24.—Charging President Roosevelt with "aggression," with having "consciously and systematically poisoned relations between Germany and the United States," and with harboring "plans for Anglo-Saxon world domination," the foreign office periodical Berlin-Rome-Tokyo denies allegations that Germany is planning to attack the United States and absolves Germany of all blame for the present state of relations between the two nations.

It is stated that the Axis powers "have never had any illusions about Roosevelt's intentions, but have included them fully in their calculations."

The tripartite powers, it is indicated, are not worried about America's role in the present conflict. "Germany and Italy are not letting themselves be in the least impressed in their determination to continue the battle against the English aggressor to victory," the periodical says.

The recent United States policy, this editorial implies, has fully substantiated consideratoins which motivated the alliance of the tripartite powers.

"Aggression is there embodied in the person of Roosevelt, documented in his most recent speeches, messages and bills to Congress, which are built on the conscious falsehood that the United States is threatened as a democracy, as a nation, as a great power, by signatories of the tripartite alliance."

It is emphasized that the tripartite pact is "purely defensive and no threat to other nations."

"None of its principles," this article states, and "none of its articles, contains an aggressive element, none of it aims at world domination. Its aim is to lead to and create order, not to conquer and tyrannize; to end conflicts, not to destroy liberty and independence."

one else's mail," she added.

A checkup at the White House showed that Miss LeHand had received the complimentary copy of the almanac intended for Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald. Still unaccounted for last night were the copies meant for Ann Murray and Justice Murphy.

The misdirected almanacs are among several score copies sent out each year to personal friends of Herbert Bayard Swope, editor of the old New York World. Proposals for a World Almanac clearing house at the Supreme Court Building were being informally considered here last night.

108 Doctors In Navy Listed For Promotion

President Roosevelt last night approved the report of a naval selection board listing 108 medical and dental officers for promotion.

Six medical officers from Washington and the vicinity were among those scheduled for promotion. They are Commanders Frederick L. McDaniel, of Alexandria, Howard H. Montgomery, of Silver Spring, and Leslie B. Marshall, James F. Hooker and Wilbur O. Manning, of Washington, who will be advanced to captain as vacancies occur. Lieut. Comdr. Thomas H. Hayes, also of the District, was selected for promotion to commander.

Twenty-six others on the new promotion lists are assigned here or at nearby naval stations. They include: Commanders Thomas A. Fortescue, of Quantico; Charles S. Stephenson, Rolland R. Gasser, Paul M. Albright, John C. Adams, Stephen R. Mills, Carlton L. Andrus, Walter M. Anderson and John R. Poppen on duty at the Navy Department; Commanders Frederick R. Hook, Walter J. Pennell, Robert P. Parsons and Otis Wildman of the Naval Medical Center; and Commanders George D. Thompson, of the Anacostia Naval Air Station, Joseph L. Schwartz, of Quantico, all of the medical corps.

Also, Lieut. Comdrs. Edward P. Kunkel, Lloyd R. Newhouser and Thomas F. Cooper, of the medical center, and Lieut. Comdrs. Winfred P. Dana, of Annapolis, and Arra B. Chesser, of the Navy Department.

Of the dental officers selected for promotion, Commanders DeWitt C. Emerson and James I. Root are on duty at the Navy Department, while Commander Arthur H. Yando and Lieut. Comdr. Alfred R. Harris are attached to the naval dental school here, and Lieut. Comdr. George H. Rice is stationed at Quantico.

Others selected were:

Hyperion Crew Saved Under Noses Of Italian Guns

Alexandria, Egypt, Jan. 24 (AP).—Naval sources today disclosed that the destroyer Hyperion lay crippled in the Adriatic almost under the shore guns of the Italians for two hours before sending out an S O S call, so that the warships following her would not be detected.

The destroyer, which struck a mine, was sunk by the gunfire of a British warship because she was so badly damaged.

When the distress call finally was sent, three destroyers steamed up to rescue the Hyperion's crew and, working against time, made their getaway under the noses of enemy guns.

The Hyperion on December 19, 1939, intercepted the German liner Columbus off Virginia. The Columbus' crew scuttled her.

Army Names Posts For Dawes, Forrest

A companion of Paul Revere and a Confederate cavalry general were honored yesterday when the War Department gave their names to two new Army posts.

Fort Dawes, a military reservation at Deer Island, Mass., was named for William Dawes, a fellow messenger with Paul Revere.

The name of Camp Peay, near Tullahoma, Tenn., was changed to Camp Forrest after Nathan Bedford Forrest, the Confederate cavalry officer.

Stokowski to Modernize Music For Army; Critics on Warpath

The War Department announced yesterday Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, will undertake the "modernization" of Army band music, which he will attempt to make "more typically American."

On the heels of the announcement came reports from the West Coast, where the conductor is now engaged in making a moving picture, describing bitter reaction from lovers of military music. Critics charged the maestro's rearrangements might even violate copyright laws.

The announcement declared the leader of the All-American Youth Orchestra had been retained to supervise special training of an 85-piece experimental band at Fort MacArthur, Calif.

Through this medium, it was stated, Stokowski was to effect the "modernization of Army bands . . . and through reinstrumentation and rescoring of the music to develop a band suited to open air playing—for men marching, men mounted on horses, or in armored units—as well as for indoor performances."

The announcement added: "Stokowski hopes to remove foreign characteristics in traditional band music and make it "more typically American."

The West Coast reports scoffed at the "modernization" and "Americanization" projects of the symphony leader, after describing the reinstrumentation they said he proposed.

It was also claimed that the maestro intended to have a high-priced "arranger" rewrite military music for his special renditions, and critics said the altered music would violate the copyright laws.

Scoffing equally at the conductor's expressed desire to make Army songs "more typically American," critics denied any foreign influence in this country's military music.

"Is there anything un-American about 'The Stars and Stripes Forever?'" they demanded.

Peril of Attack On Palestine Held Receding

British victories in Egypt and Libya have thrust the danger of attack upon Palestine by the Axis powers "well into the background," Right Hon. Neville Mantagu Butler newly appointed British Minister to the United States, declared yesterday in a message to Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, national chairman of the United Palestine Appeal.

DR. SILVER

Butler said that Palestine can look forward to a bright future if American Jews do their utmost in support of Britain and the program of rebuilding the Jewish national home in Palestine. The message, unusual in its warmth and assurance, was sent on the eve of the opening here today of the National Conference for Palestine at the Willard Hotel.

Butler's message said that while the Italians lost 80,000 men in prisoners, the British suffered only 296 casualties in the Middle Eastern campaign and that the forces protecting Palestine are constantly being increased.

The British Minister assured the conference that it "can find good hopes for the future" in the enlarged drive for the defense of Palestine and the Middle Eastern sector as a whole, adding that Palestine is "your special care and ours."

The national conference for Palestine will consider plans for mobilizing material support for the 550,000 Jews in Palestine who are now giving aid to the British armies in the Mediterranean. It also will discuss problems of maintaining the flow of refugee immigration into Palestine where 28,000 Jewish refugees have found a home since the outbreak of the war. American Jewry's financial assistance will be enlisted through the $12,000,000 war emergency campaign of the United Palestine Appeal which will be officially launched at this conference of more than 1,500 Jewish leaders from every section of the country.

The keynote of the conference will be sounded by Dr. Silver. Among the other speakers and participants in the conference are Dr. Solomon Goldman, of Chicago, national cochairman of the United Palestine Appeal; Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the Jewish National Fund; Morris Simon, of Washington, Jewish Communal leader and nationally known lawyer, and Charles J. Rosenbloom, of Pittsburgh, national treasurer. Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, and Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, majority leader of the House, will address the conference tomorrow.

Canada Replaces H. M. S. Margaree

Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 24.—Replacing the lost destroyer Margaree, one of the 50 United States destroyers traded to Britain for bases, has been added to the Canadian navy and rechristened the Kootenay, Navy Minister Angus L. MacDonald announced today.

The total destroyer strength of the Dominion therefore remains at 13. In 1940, 97 ships of all categories were added to the Canadian navy, making a total in service of 181, the minister said.

Hiram Evans Fined In Trust Case

Atlanta, Jan. 24 (AP).—Hiram Wesley Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, and three refining companies were fined a total of $30,000 in Federal court today for conspiracy and monopoly in the sale of emulsified asphalt to the State.

Evans was fined $15,000. District Judge Underwood also assessed $4,000 fines against the Emulsified Asphalt Refining Co. at Charleston, S. C.; $5,000 against the Shell Oil Co., Inc., of St. Louis, and $6,000 against the American Bitumuls Co. of San Francisco.

Gov. Johnson Fears Britain May Fall

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 24 (INS).—Gov. Paul Johnson, back from a conference of Governors in Washington, D. C., said tonight he gained the impression England might not be able to hold out more than four or five weeks longer.

He also gloomily predicted that the danger to America is "grave in the extreme."

Divorce Clears the Way For Jean Parker to Wed

Hollywood, Jan. 24 (INS).—The legal path to Actress Jean Parker's forthcoming marriage to Douglas Dawson was cleared today when the final decree of her divorce was entered in Superior Court.

She was granted a preliminary decree a year ago after testifying that her former husband, George MacDonald, New York newspaperman, "refused to become, shall we say, a part of Hollywood and my activities."

The star and Dawson, a radio commentator, will be married in San Diego St. Valentine's Day.

Robot Monster Built at Yale May Be Future Shock Trooper

By G. B. Lal

I. N. S. Science Editor

New York, Jan. 24.—A daring scientific plan by which a modern nation may build up a whole army of metal robot soldiers was revealed today by Prof. Clark L. Hull, Yale psychologist.

Prof. Hull has presented his plan to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A veritable army of controllable "Frankenstein" monsters, these mechanical soldiers would be hard to "kill." And if "slaughtered," their fragments could be picked up and reassembled.

The robots would evade the attacker, and launch blitzkriegs. They would fire guns and hurl bombs.

Some of the details of the design are as follows:

Each robot soldier would have two tanks built inside its main body.

One tank would hold fuel, the other would contain water. Special electrical signalling devices would control the emptying and filling up processes. Thus, no more load would be taken in when the tanks are full. As they become empty, the robot would attempt to get them refilled.

These signals would be connected with certain outside structures, like plastic tubes or hoses, such as can attach themselves to reservoirs of fuel or of water, according to need.

The tubes would serve as arms, groping about for the sources of fuel and water. Special chemicals would control the guidance of the filling operations, so that water and fuel get into the right tanks.

Photo-electric cells play most important roles in the self-manipulations of the robot. When light is reflected from the surface of water, a particular set of photo-cells would be set in action. And so with light beams and signals.

House Gets 65-Billion Debt Limit Bill

By Hedley Donovan

Legislation to raise the national debt limit from $49,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000 and to permit taxation of future issues of Federal securities was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Treasury officials yesterday predicted speedy Congressional approval of the bill, whose terms have been foreshadowed in several statements by Secretary Morgenthau. The measure is satisfactory to President Roosevelt, Morgenthau reported Thursday.

First in a series of Administration bills planned to meet the fiscal problems of the country's huge armament program, the measure would remove the $4,000,000,000 limitation on the Treasury's authority to issue national defense securities.

That sum was earmarked for defense when Congress last year boosted the debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000. The current debt is $45,163,856,557. The national budget proposed for 1942 calls for expenditures of about $17,500,000,000, against anticipated revenue of about $8,275,000,000.

Doughton announced that Secretary Morgenthau will be the first witness when the Ways and Means Committee opens hearings on the bill at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Meanwhile Morgenthau yesterday conferred with two of his favorite financial advisers on the types of new securities to be issued and methods of marketing them. He saw Roswell Magill, of Columbia University, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, and Jacob Viner, of the University of Chicago.

Morgenthau has already indicated he has plans for selling low-denomination bonds and possibly savings stamps, as was done during the World War.

New Culbertson Rules Taught To Teachers

By Inez Robb.
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 24.—You can't teach an old dog new tricks. Because even a pot hound is too smart to get mixed up with wine, women and cards in the first place.

But a bridge player is never too old to try anything once. On this theory, 175 slightly slap-happy but jubilant bridge teachers listened today as experts explained the new Culbertson system.

It means a complete overhauling of a game which has become a $30,000,000 annual industry, not including losses because of a partner who thought that hearts were trumps.

The bridge pedagogues from 38 States and Canada were jubilant because the fundamental changes portend a rush of students with dollars.

"The new rules will tend to simplify the game," said Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, divorced wife but still the business partner of her former husband, the ebullient Ely.

Culbertson was not on hand today at the Lombardy Hotel to describe his new system. He was in the New York Hospital, recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

"The average player does not want to work so hard as he has had to work under the present rules," Mrs. Culbertson explained.

"Players were beginning to take bridge much too seriously under the present rules. The new ones will put a little fun back into the game."

This revolution affecting every household does not leave the old maestro unscathed, either.

Poor Mr. Culbertson will have to work like a dog, writing new books to explain the system, and a whole staff of accountants will have to work like dogs, too, counting the dough as it rolls in.

It is useless for an old poker player who only knows one rule—jacks or better to open—to try to give you a digest of the new bridge rules.

It kinda boils down into lowered requirements for biddable suits under certain conditions. Four to a queen is now permissable instead of four to queen-jack or four to a king.

"With such a system, you can raise your hands," says Mrs. Culbertson.

Shucks, lad, with such a system you can raise hell in the bridge world for years to come.

C. U. Concludes 8th Unity Octave

The Eighth Church Unity Octave at Catholic University closed last night with the Most. Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, Bishop of Bilta and university rector, officiating at pontifical benediction in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Special guests at the services were the Court District of Columbia, Catholic Daughters of America, and the Convert League of Washington, the latter under the direction of the Rev. A. J. Burgraff.

Preacher for the concluding service was the Rev. John Carter Smyth, C. S. P., professor of homiletics at the university school of theology, who discussed "The Conquest of the World for Christ." The choir of St. Paul's College sang. Frater Dunstan Donovan, S. A., was chairman of the octave committee.

Kansas State Society To Hold Dance Tonight

The annual dinner-dance of the Kansas State Society will be held at the Wardman Park Hotel today at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Earle Denies Gift Ring Was Won From King Boris

Mrs. George H. Earle, wife of the former Governor of Pennsylvania and the present United States Minister to Bulgaria, last night described as "absurd" persistent reports in the Capital that her husband won her Christmas present while playing pinball with King Boris.

The Christmas present was an oversized ring of rose diamonds and an emerald and the story was that Earle, an expert pinball player, had sent it to his wife after playing the game with the King.

Mrs. Earle explained that when the package came last November she opened it, not knowing it was a Christmas present. With the ring she found, she said, a note from her husband stating that the jeweler in Bulgaria had suggested certain necessary repairs be made on the ring when Mrs. Earle had it fitted to her finger in America.

Mrs. Earle said she felt the reference to jeweler adequate proof that the jewel was purchased and not won. She added that the ring, while "charming and old-fashioned," was not at all the elaborate sort of item customarily associated with kings and crown jewels.

Col. Hatch Dies; Ex-Marine Officer

Lieut. Col. Charles Burbridge Hatch, 62, U. S. M. C., retired, died yesterday in Pittsburgh, Pa., the Navy Department announced.

A native of Washington, he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps in 1898. During the Spanish-American War, he served aboard the U. S. S. Indiana and upon the cessation of hosilities was mustered out of service. He was recommissioned as a first lieutenant in 1899 and was promoted through the grades until his retirement as a lieutenant colonel in 1916. Col. Hatch was recalled to active duty in the World War, and had charge of the Eastern recruiting division.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. C. B. Hatch, of Wynnewood, Pa.

Suffer Head Injuries

The two other youths were James McCullough, 17, of 105 Allegany Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., and Arthur French, 17, of 6901 Maple Avenue, Takoma Park, D. C. They were taken to Georgetown University Hospital by the Rockville Rescue Squad. Both suffered head injuries.

The driver of the car that struck Mrs. Martin, police said, was Louis Loss, 26, of Buckingham, Arlington, Va.

Three other persons were injured in Washington last night and two in Maryland as rain obscured windshields and slick roads made driving perilous.

Two Drivers Exonerated

Two motorists were exonerated yesterday when a coroner's jury declared, after inquests into two recent traffic fatalities, that the deaths were "accidental."

Mrs. Bridget E. Bradfield, 30, of 1208 Owen Place Northeast, was absolved in the death of John S. Snyder, 29, of 2635 Otis Street Northeast, who died at Casualty Hospital last Tuesday. He had been knocked down in the 2600 block Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, the day before.

It was testified that the victim was crossing the thoroughfare not at the crosswalk and apparently walked into the path of Mrs. Bradfield's machine.

In the second case the jury acquitted Benjamin T. Esler, jr., 32, of Arlington, Va., driver of a bus which killed Spencer W. Sahlberg, 45, of 1740 Riggs Place Northwest, at Eighteenth and K Streets Northwest, last Sunday.

Witnesses said that Sahlberg, a pedestrian, had started to cross the intersection against the traffic signal.

Two Hurt in Maryland

Serious injuries were sustained in traffic accidents in nearby Maryland last night by Harry House, 48, of Baltimore, and Shirley Hubel, 21, of 7307 Princeton Avenue, College Park. House was hurt in the Washington-Baltimore Boulevard near Lakeland, Md., and Miss Hubel in College Park.

House was in a critical condition in Castualty Hospital, where Miss Hubel also was taken. Both suffered head injuries, although Miss Hubel's condition, while serious, was not as grave as that of House.

Charged With Reckless Driving

Minnie Robey, 69, of 721 Fifteenth Street Southeast, suffered a brain concussion when struck by an auto at Fifteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast. Police said the motorist was Morris J. edlin, 31, of R. F. D. No. 5, Anacostia.

Samuel Rudolph, 44, of 5525 Second Street Northwest, was charged with reckless driving after his auto injured a 70-year-old woman in the 5400 block of Fourteenth Street Northwest. The woman, Lucy A. McCormick, 5324 Colorado Avenue Northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital with compound fracture of the right leg and severe head lacerations.

Rose D. Tucker, 20, of 1340 Eleventh Street Southeast, suffered an arm fracture when struck at Fourth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, by a car police said was driven by James M. Davis, 42, of 312 Seventeenth Street Southeast. She was taken to Casualty Hospital.

New Cuban Envoy Arrives in New York

Dr. Aurelio Fernandez Concheso, recently appointed Cuban Ambassador to the United States, arrived in New York late yesterday, where he will stay a few days before coming to Washington to assume his new duties.

Dr. Concheso, who was appointed December 31 as successor to Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, who reper from Havana to Miami on signed, flew by Pan American clip-Thursday. He is staying at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, in New York.

troubles were presented to Commissioner J. Russell Young by the American Automobile Association.

Four-Point Program Approved

After a report by Police Inspector Arthur Miller detailing causes of the 25 traffic fatalities between December 1, 1940, and January 23 of this year, the council approved—again unanimously—four recommended safety suggestions. They follow:

Establishment of driver training courses in all high schools.

Establishment of a driver "proving grounds" where permit applicants will receive rigid tests; to be paid for from highway funds.

Provide a licensing system for all public driving instructors.

Increase the extra pay of police motorcycle men from $120 to $240 a year.

The citizen observer plan was attacked by O. C. Holleran as "un-American." He compared it to foreign spy systems, but proponents of the idea explained it was the council's opinion that no punitive action should be connected with the program.

Dallas Gets Fine Results

It was pointed out that the city of Dallas, Tex., has for four years operated a similar plan which resulted in a 200 per cent reduction in traffic deaths.

Declaring the city faced a "crisis" in its traffic situation, Harry Wender, chairman of the council's legislative and enforcement committee, urged that at least 92 additional policemen be named to the Metropolitan Police Department in order to bring the motorcycle corps up to 100 members.

When presented with the nine-point A. A. A. program, Commissioner Young was told by Burton W. Marsh, safety and engineering director, that "Washington lags woefully behind other progressive cities" in traffic control matters. The program, described by Marsh as "imperative," called for:

1. At least a 50 per cent increase in the fulltime traffic personnel.
2. Elimination of all "fixing," and curbing of diplomatic immunity to people "who are in no sense entitled to it."
3. Establishment of a separate traffic court.
4. Increased personnel at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.
5. Installation of a paid executive secretary with the Traffic Advisory Council.
6. Education of adults as well as children.
7. Modification of some traffic regulations and "effective education" for a better understanding of the laws.
8. Provide adequate off-street parking and terminal facilities.
9. Coordination of motor vehicle administration, enforcement, education and engineering among jurisdictions in the Metropolitan Area.

Marsh condemned the lack of personnel at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and added that it is the only traffic department in the Nation which combines the functions of engineering and motor vehicle administration. He said the department should have at least 33 engineering assistants to William A. Van Duzer, director. In reality, he declared, Van Duzer has only 7.

Increased enforcement for "moving violations" and less "tagging of cars" were two points upon which Marsh and Commissioner Young were agreed.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Commissioner Young asked the expert what steps he recommended to better the traffic situation immediately, without costing the city an exorbitant amount.

Marsh in reply urged improvement of the "police situation" and said that rigid enforcement "is the quickest way to traffic safety."

'Death Sentence' At Last

The Public Utility Act, passed in 1935 in face of bitter opposition, contained the so-called "death sentence" provisions which in effect limit the operations of a holding company to a single integrated system. After a lapse of over five years the SEC has now made public its first tentative plan putting these provisions into operation. The company concerned is the United Gas Improvement Co.

This long delay is not a matter for criticism, but rather for commendation in view of the complicated and responsible nature of the task entrusted to the SEC. It might be argued that, having waited so long, the commission would have been well advised to take no action to break up holding companies until the defense program is out of the way. However, Commissioner Frank maintains that the substitution of compact, geographically integrated operating units for holding companies with properties scattered all over the country would add greatly to the efficiency of management and hence aid the defense program. We believe he is right. It seems unlikely that a reorganization of unwieldy utility holding companies would adversely affect the defense program. Their situation is quite different from that of many large industrial holding companies. These could not be broken up into smaller units without far-reaching changes in production and distribution methods that would have a temporarily demoralizing effect upon managements.

The SEC's first tentative integration plan will afford opportunity for the discussion and clarification of perplexing questions of interpretation under the "death sentence" clause. Not only the system directly concerned but other holding companies will learn what they must do in order to conform to the law. The uncertain outlook for the utilities due to passage of the regulatory legislation of 1935 has seriously interfered with private investment of new capital in the industry. Removal of such uncertainties through elucidation and enforcement of the "death sentence" provision of the Public Utility Act would, therefore, remove an obstacle to expansion. At the same time the organization of new integrated utility systems should be carried out with due regard for the rights of security holders and public alike.

Lethal Literacy

It is only very recently that it occurred to anybody to wonder if universal literacy might not be, after all, a much mixed blessing. It was noticed, for instance, that the ability to read necessarily makes a people more susceptible to the black arts of propaganda than would be the case among rank illiterates. Even newspapers have found it necessary now and then to warn their subscribers against believing things merely because they see them in print. And now comes Mr. Aldous Huxley with a similar warning.

In an article in a new monthly magazine called Decision, and edited by Klaus Mann, Mr. Huxley declares that universal literacy combined with modern technology and modern methods of organization "has worked to human detriment in several unforeseen ways." The enforced attendance of all children at state schools "has provided governments with unrivaled opportunities for regimentation and militarization. By exposing millions to the influence of printed lies and nonsense it has facilitated the rise of those new-model tyrannies, which threaten to become the typical twentieth century form of government. And by multiplying the occasions of pointless and irrelevant stimulation, it has ingrained in these same millions a habit, almost a principle, of intellectual and emotional confusion."

Evidently Mr. Huxley considers this last the most grievous consequence of all. What the literate masses want in print (as in the movies and radio) is "not understanding or wisdom, but effortless entertainment and stimulation of their feelings." This is even worse than it sounds. There is at work, it seems, a kind of literary Gresham's Law whereby inferior literature is slowly but inexorably driving superior literature out of circulation. Editors become scornful of "essays and think-pieces," and even in the better journals there is a "drift from the philosophical toward the unrelatedly and meaninglessly factual." The result is the destruction of all philosophic values by which alone the importance of facts can be measured.

Mr. Huxley's article deserves a more careful reading than it is likely to get. Many of the points he has made about the effects of a century of popular education would be difficult to dispute. Not, of course, that the moral is necessarily to abolish all schools at once; but the end of all education is, or should be, wisdom rather than information; and where the ends are forgotten, means may become merely disruptive.

Britain, Ahoy!

There can be few analogies for the President's dramatic gesture in going out to sea to welcome Lord Halifax to his new embassy in Washington. Offhand one can recall nothing comparable in the history of diplomacy to such a shattering of precedent. In diplomacy the sovereignty of protocol is seldom challenged. This decrees that an envoy must await word from the head of state, and then present his credentials to him formally. President Roosevelt, accordingly, once again finds himself saluted as a precedent-breaker.

But in truth the brilliant stroke which our President executed by going down the Chesapeake Bay yesterday was in line with a very old tradition. Every time either the British or the Americans have been in difficulty with a third party, some act or gesture has occurred which has warmed Anglo-American relations. Generally a "man on the spot" has been—shall we say?—the culprit. There was Commodore Tattnall, for instance: a captain of an American ship which in 1860 found itself outside Tientsin during the "Arrow War" of 1860. This was a British-Chinese war, and China's forts at Taku Bar, as we recall, were popping away at British tars engaged in clearing away harbor obstructions. For a time Tattnall watched the British being shot down like rabbits. Finally he cried, "Blood is thicker than water," and, manning a boat with a party of American gobs, pulled away to the aid of the British. Half way to the scene, however, his gig was sunk by a Chinese shell. Undaunted, Tattnall and his sailors swam to the British flagship, and, climbing aboard, helped to load the British guns, and actually fired them at the Chinese troops. Later Tattnall helped to bring the British reserves into battle. Such actions on Tattnall's part were a direct violation of America's neutrality, and he was reprimanded for his behavior.

The British reciprocated this service 40 years later when Admiral Dewey was blockading Manila. German and British squadrons had arrived to watch the operations, and the friendship of the Germans for the Spanish gave rise to a situation in which both the German and American fleets cleared their ships for action against each other. Let us quote what then happened from a booklet distributed by the Navy Recruiting Bureau called "Outstanding Events in United States Naval History":

> A battle was probably prevented by the British admiral, Chichester, placing his squadron between the German and American ships and having the British bands play "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Such a gesture seems to have convinced the German admiral, Diederichs, that, if he started anything, the British would join in, and so he departed from thence.

Equally signal and stunning in its meaning was the Presidential act yesterday. It came the day after Col. Lindbergh's statement that he doesn't care which side wins in the struggle between Britain and Germany. How isolated is Col. Lindbergh, how representative the President, is indicated in the Gallup Poll's roundup of American opinion released yesterday. Back in May, 1940, 36 per cent of the people polled would "help England even at the risk of war;" last month the ratio had gone up to 68 per cent, a rise of over 13 per cent in a month. Evidently the heart of America was with the President as he went down the Bay to grasp the hand of the new British envoy. It was a gesture which charged with electric current every word he has uttered in the last three weeks.

Price Fixing

The line of demarcation between illegal price fixing and legitimate exchange of information about trade practices and policies is by no means easy to define. For years the executive officials of organized trades and industries have had to struggle with this problem, and try to decide how far they could safely go without coming into conflict with the antitrust laws. Some of them have leaned over backwards to avoid the appearance of wrong-doing. Others have taken advantage of existing uncertainties to set up systems of price fixing in the guise of harmless trade reporting.

A consent decree—the outgrowth of a complaint brought against an associated group of manufacturers of electrical equipment—has just been approved which throws light on the attitude of the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice regarding the price reporting activities of organized trades and industries. The defendants are restrained from reporting or in any way exchanging information about prices unless sales are actually consummated and unconditionally binding upon both buyers and sellers. Moreover, they may not publish recommendations as to their current or future sales, price, or production policies. And they are also prohibited from allocating production quotas, dividing up marketing territory and engaging in a variety of other practices that would interfere with genuinely competitive marketing.

The sweeping terms of this decree are, as the Department of Justice significantly states, "of importance to industries other than that to which it directly relates." Indeed, the decree is a warning to all trade associations to "watch their step" if they wish to avoid prosecution for violations of the antitrust laws. Such warnings are especially timely now that the defense program is offering so many tempting opportunities for exploiting the public by concerted raising of prices.

The Acheson Report

The long-awaited report of the Attorney General's committee on administrative procedure headed by Dean Acheson does not succeed in lifting this vital subject above controversy. Four members of the 11-man committee have submitted minority recommendations. Yet the committee has found many points on which it is in unanimous agreement; it has thrown a great deal of light upon this extremely complicated problem; and it has brought forth some excellent suggestions.

Its first proposal is the creation of an Office of Federal Administrative Procedure, which would serve such agencies as the ICC, the NLRB and the SEC much as the Administrative Office for the United States Courts serves our judicial system. In other words, it would make a constant study of administrative machinery with the object of simplifying procedure and of making practices more uniform, wherever that is practicable. Obviously such an agency, composed of a director, an associate justice of the Court of Appeals for the District, and the administrative officer of the Federal courts, could render invaluable advice to the commissions and boards performing quasi-judicial functions.

Even more important is the recommendation that "hearing commissioners" be installed in all administrative agencies in which the heads themselves do not hear evidence and make decisions. These hearing commissioners would take the place of "examiners" now functioning in most of the boards in question. They would be "men of ability, stature, and prestige" appointed for seven-year terms at $7,500 per year. Nominees would be selected by the various administrative agencies, but the actual appointments would be made by the Office of Administrative Procedure so as to divorce them from control by investigators and prosecutors. Findings of the special commissioners would become final, except for limited review on request by the agency heads.

In this respect the committee's plan goes much further in improvement of the administrative process than did the Walter-Logan bill. The committee recognizes the undesirability of commingling the functions of investigation and advocacy with the function of rendering decisions. It proposes to segregate those functions without going to the extent of setting up separate prosecuting and adjudicating agencies, which might unduly hamper the administrative process. This is one of the points, however, on which the minority believes the committee bill does not go far enough. Whether or not a complete separation of prosecuting and adjudicating duties can be advantageously effected in some cases, as the minority believes, the "hearing commissioner" plan would certainly be an improvement over existing practice.

Better rule-making procedure is also proposed. Continued use of public hearings and other methods of obtaining the views of those to be regulated by various acts is recommended. Hearings would not be made compulsory, but a 45-day period between publication of rules and their effective date would be provided (except in case of emergency) during which petitions for revision could be filed. The committee has made a conscientious effort to facilitate the play of public opinion upon the rule-making function without adopting an overly rigid formula.

Controversy will arise chiefly over the committee's conclusion that general legislation governing judicial review of the decisions of administrative agencies is not desirable. Piecemeal reappraisal of statutes granting the privilege of review in specific cases is suggested. Likewise the report proposes the elimination of certain technical impediments to judicial review, but these stop far short of satisfying the minority. The dissenting committeemen point to the "haphazard, uncertain, and variable results of the present system or lack of system," as a major defect in our administrative machinery. They call for a legislative statement of principles for the guidance of administrators. Congress is not likely to dispose of this vital and complicated problem without again exploring the need for effective judicial review as well as improvement of administrative procedure as such.

On Negotiated Peaces

Concerning a negotiated peace, President Woodrow Wilson said in 1917:

"They (negotiations) imply first of all that it must be a peace without victory . . . I am seeking only to face realities and to face them without any soft concealments. Victory would mean peace forced upon the loser, a victor's terms imposed upon the vanquished. It would be accepted in humiliation, under duress, at an intolerable sacrifice, and would leave a sting, a resentment, a bitter memory, upon which terms of peace would rest, not permanently, but only as upon quicksand. Only a peace between equals can last."

F. P. M.

Washington, Jan. 23.

Assuming that his remarks were accurately quoted, exactly what did Secretary Knox mean by his recent statement to the Canadian Society in New York that the present European war must be "fought to a finish?" What is to constitute a "finish?" What is the meaning of his assertion that only the timid and the thoughtless are proposing "a negotiated peace?"

When has a major war ever been concluded without a negotiated peace? The first World War raged insensately for more than four years; 10,000,000 young men were plowed under and 13,000,000 were maimed and mutilated, and still nothing was conclusive or decisive enough to effect a peace without negotiations. Let it be recalled that this war was entered by our own country under the slogan of "preserving democracy," and that we "won" it.

Does Secretary Knox believe that the present conflict embroiling half of the globe will ever be concluded without some sort of "negotiated peace," and if so what is to determine its conclusion? Since he has publicly made the above quoted statements, he should be called upon to clarify their exact meaning.

T. H. RUSSELL.

Colonel Lindbergh

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's testimony before the House committee was filled with evasions and sophistry. The people of the United States should reject his opinions in toto, first because he testified on subjects upon which he is not fully informed; secondly, because it is clear that he is biased, and third, because even if it is true that Great Britain cannot win with our help, it is better to perish and go down into the dust of the ages trying to aid her than to coldly turn our backs like craven cowards while Germany destroys everything in life that true Americans have considered worth while. Col. Lindbergh's testimony does not represent the views of the majority of Americans.

Let us remember that even though we have not declared war against Germany, our hearts and consciences are in rebellion against her ambitions, ideals and methods. Let us remember that if our way of life is to be menaced by tyrants, even though 3,000 miles away, we shall fight to maintain it, even though it costs us all the material things we have gathered. Far, far better is is to die for our principles and our honor than to live at the price of liberty and decency.

And if we are not willing to fight for "God and our native land" it is better that we should disappear from the face of the earth to give place to those who will. There is no other course for honest freemen.

Facing The Issue

The current slogan, "All aid to Britain—short of war," is a vanity and a subterfuge. It is a snug retreat for those who want England to win the war as well as for those who are indifferent to her fate. Those who are for all aid to Britain short of war are for the shadow and not the substance of help. They are like he who makes a pass at a dangerous viper but does not crush it to death. Their attitude is a milquetoastian gesture.

Real help to Britain infers inevitable war as consequence. For only if the aid given is ineffective will the Axis powers ignore it. But, if in the minds of the dictators it becomes evident that our assistance, no matter how much or little, is apt to become a deciding factor toward British victory, it is unthinkable that they will not take every means, including war, to stop its flow. That, and that alone, is the gauge by which "short of war" must be measured.

The problem we are faced with is: Do we want to give ineffective aid to Britain without war, or, do we want to defeat totalitarianism even if, to effect that purpose, we must resort to war?

At The Inaugural

While standing in the line of parade, and thinking I was suffering from the cold, the words of a little child gave me something more serious to think about:

A little tot in a bunny suit,
She looked not over three;
When our planes flew high above,
"Are we in England?" asked she.

Her mother held her by the hand,
Taking care of her:
"No, dear, we are not in England,
We're in good old America."

Arm For Defense

May I say word of appreciation for Mr. Hanford McNider who in a radio speech so fearlessly defended our country's ability to take care of herself against all odds, regardless of any help from a foreign navy.

Let us arm for defense and cease repeating parrot-like "If England goes down, so will we," and "England is our first line of defense." The red-blooded gentlemen in Congress who are fighting to keep faith with the people who elected them by declaring for America first, last and always have my deepest gratitude.

How high is up? Surely, the sky is not the limit!
Are the Roosevelts thrifty? This much is a fact:

President's Policy

That President Roosevelt is sincere in his desire to perpetuate the integrity of democracy, we believe. But can the course he has chosen do that? Can he disprove history?

Washington and Jefferson advocated the keeping of our country free from, not only entangling alliances, but from the increasing wars of Europe. Moreover, they acted on this belief. The President seems to feel he is ordained to butt in whenever England is engaged in war. Has he forgotten 1917-18?

Who of the people knew of the destroyers? What do the people know of the planes, guns, and other munitions taken from our own supply? Is the lease-lend bill and the powers it carries a way to perpetuate the integrity of democracy? What messages do his emissaries carry abroad? We are never told.

He speaks peace for us, but his actions are all war. Rather, one is forced to think he seeks to perpetuate himself and will destroy democracy instead of perpetuating it.

In answer to Louis W. Rapeer's letter in The Post January 13, in which he states that he is surprised that Roosevelt's new budget reduces United States Office of Education from $95,000 to $19,000.

Every State in the Union gives every boy and girl a free education up and through high school. If with this free start, they are mentally or financially unable to attain a professional degree, it is their hard luck.

We have too many doctors, too many lawyers, too many engineers, and too many other professional men and women now. What we need is more carpenters, plumbers, mechanics, painters and plasterers.

Family Trees

"WHAT MAKES people proud of their ancestors?" My friend repeated my question. "Well, I'd say it's about the same thing that makes people want to have their pictures taken on the steps of the Supreme Court Building or with the Lincoln Memorial for a background.

"Call it vanity if you like," he continued, "but to me this ambition to be associated with someone or something that is sure to survive in the memory of others is not vanity so much as it is a sublimation of our basic and powerful instinct of self-preservation.

"There must have been a time in the development of man when he was not conscious of his ancestry just as all lower animals fail to remember their maternal or paternal relatives when the need for these relatives' support and protection has passed. But every animal and every human I can think of is aware of the need for self-preservation from the first moment of consciousness to the hour of death.

"When mankind began to achieve an increasing security of the individual, man probably began to achieve also his sense of family. To substantiate that theory is the record of the Chinese who certainly were a highly civilized people when most of our forebears were in a savage state.

"On the other hand savage races reacted more primitively to the instinct to survive and were not yet ready to formalize that instinct into 'family tradition' or to develop coats of arms or family trees to any great extent. I suppose the beginning of such things must be like the totem pole and clan ideas of the Indians as they began to emerge into semi-savagery.

"And today," my friend mused, "the consciousness of family and the knowledge of one's forebears gives one a sense of pride that is something akin to the pride of being photographed before an edifice that has stood or will stand for generations.

"If we can explain this desire for association with fame and permanency which we all have we have a definite clue to why we want to trace back our antecedents to William the Conquerer, to King David or to some other illustrious predecessor.

"Fundamentally, perhaps, it is because we are eager to survive as individuals and therefore as a family, as a nation and finally as a species through the broadening circles which survival creates.

"I never have sneered at the interest people take in their own family histories although I have often wondered if these people ever ask themselves seriously just why they do take such an interest.

"Personally, I think family trees are rooted deep in the prehistoric mud in which the caveman was buried and that they draw their sustenance from a very primitive urge which has been refined through the intervening ages into family pride.

"You will notice that the man who is actually struggling for his daily existence, who is worried over the bills he must meet and who is concerned with how to get clothing for his children seldom bothers about his family beginnings although the chances are that he could find in his ancestry some very notable and illustrious names.

"Generally it is the person of leisure and one with definite economic security who sets about mulching the roots and pruning the branches of the family tree.

"The first man is wrestling with the necessity of self-preservation as a basic problem while the second is dealing with only the abstract aspects of the same problem.

"There is no reason to wonder at the lack of enthusiasm for a family tree on the part of the first individual nor to condemn the second for his interest and pride in his ancestry. The two are really not far apart at all in their concepts of life. One, however, has the social leisure to devote to the discovery of ancestors. The other cannot possibly carry family traditions beyond the point of provision of necessities for himself and his wife and children. Yet he may be of 'good blood' and under less adverse conditions would probably divert his instinct for preservation to the determination of that blood.

"Now you take my own family that came to this country on the first voyage of the Mayflower . . ."

Anglo-American Union

By Prof. Harold J. Laski

Is Such A Federation Desirable?

London.

THE GROWING INTIMACY of Anglo-American relations seems to have released a flood of speculation on the prospect of some kind of federal relation in the future. There are enthusiasts for a strict plan; there are solemn letters in the London Times urging establishment of a mysterious entity called "Anglo-Saxon"; and I am told that Mr. Somerset Maugham, the eminent novelist, is speaking over the length and breadth of America in these terms.

It is, of course, natural enough that so profound an experience as this war should release this flood of speculation upon an institutional relationship. It is clear to any rational person that the vital cause of war is the persistence of national sovereignty at variance with the economic character of modern civilization. That sovereignty means everywhere that the interests of consumers are sacrificed to the interests of the producers; that under the conditions of the capitalist system we are compelled to plan for restriction, not abundance. If we could get rid of the sovereign state, quite unquestionably we should have rid ourselves of the basic cause of war.

BUT IT IS an immense leap forward from recognition that this is the case to assume that an Anglo-American federation or even some larger unit is the next stage in evolution. At every point, prospects of this kind bristle with difficulties created by vested interests whose subordination to the common interest is obviously not a task that can be performed overnight. As soon as one begins to think of union, the problems which arise are overwhelming. Does federation, for instance, bring in the whole of the British Empire? India? The dominions? Does it mean free trade within the boundaries of the new relationship? Does it mean freedom of migration? Does it mean common standards of labor law? Does it imply uniform taxation for federal purposes?

Free trade in an Anglo-American federation would sweep the British motor industry out of existence. It would alter altogether the position of many manufacturing industries in the United States which are now sheltered from British competition only by tariff walls. It is certain that each of these industries, British or American, would fight passionately against the ruin which free trade would imply. I cannot see the American Federation of Labor welcoming the kind of mass labor emigration that adjustments of the federal system would involve.

It is important not to fix our minds on the precedent of 1787. It is far wiser to think in terms of the experience of the British Empire itself. For 50 years there have been enthusiasts for an Imperial Federation; the facts moved in a different direction. It is, I think, certain that any attempt at federation in the Commonwealth would be disruptive, not uniting. Common action is possible by agreement among the members of the Commonwealth; it would not be possible by legislative act based on majority principle. A Federal Parliament of the British Empire, for example, which sought to compel Canada and Australia freely to receive British unemployed would soon find itself with revolt on its hands. And if difficulties exist within the framework of our own empire they seem to me ten times stronger in the case of a union between the empire and the American Commonwealth. The economic conditions precedent to a union are lacking: the psychological conditions are lacking also.

I DO NOT SAY that closer union is not desirable. I believe myself that when the war is over it will be seen more clearly than ever before that upon the fullness of Anglo-American understanding depends in large degree the peace of the world. But I am sure that the first stage in the British future is to lead in the unification of Europe and not to look for steps which would cut off Britain from that obligation. That unification itself is not a matter for some big and single step; the interests involved are too various to make obviously equal the interests in the result or when one of them is in a position to dominate the others. Germany has temporarily shown one way of union; but it involves forcible subjection of the economic well-being of all those under its control to the interests of Germany. Economic freedom, of which free trade is obviously an instance, is, in a competitive as distinct from a planned society, fatal to the weaker units in that society. Free trade, said a Yugoslav statesman at a world economic conference, is the weapon of strong nations. That is necessarily the case. It would be as difficult for Great Britain to compete with the main mass production industries of America in any union based on free trade as for Yugoslavia to seek to stand on equal terms with Britain in the shipbuilding industry.

I believe, therefore, that the wiser approach is along very different lines. There is a federalism of functions as distinct from federalism of areas; and I think concentration upon that aspect will take us much more profitably toward the common goal of an assured world of peace. But even that more limited view raises big issues. The real need of the world is raising the standard of life. That, broadly, is an impossible task unless we make our technique of distribution as creative as our technique of production. But we cannot do so if the motive of production is the profit of those who own the instruments of production. Everyone knows that Southeast Europe, for example, needs capital so that its abundant resources may be developed. But if that development is left to private initiative, it is inevitable that masses in the areas developed should be dependent upon those who lend capital to them. The history of imperialism needs no retelling; what is in its record is that debt involves empire, that empire breeds nationalism in subject peoples, and that creditors use the power of the state, its sovereignty in a word, to repress the consequences of nationalism.

I THINK MYSELF, therefore, that those who are reflecting upon the contours of the future will do most for peace by thinking how the purchasing power of the masses, above all in the less developed countries, may be raised. We want better nutrition, better public health, more education and better housing, to take examples only. But if it does not repay the owners of capital to respond to those wants they will not respond to them. And a political federation without tackling this issue is an evasion of the real problems we confront. Most of the advantages it is supposed to offer are dependent on economic changes which would be repudiated with horror by the very people who most ardently advocate federation. The world will not escape from the consequences of sovereignty until it gets rid of the economic causes which make sovereignty a necessity.

An Anglo-American federation, of course, would be more powerful than Britain standing alone or America standing alone. But as a federation its sovereignty within the framework of existing economic institutions would solve few of the real problems that matter. It would not necessarily give better health or housing to its citizens; that, given the existing system, depends very largely on the degree to which the demands of those citizens represent an effective economic demand. Advocates of federation must sooner or later face the need to realize that will to federate both of the interests that have been organized into unity. We and America have today a common interest in the defeat of the Fascist menace. But it is futile to think that we have found the basis of an ordered society in which we equally share. After all, not even the North and the South of the United States have yet really found that basis; the aftermath of the Civil War is still domination of the South and the West by the interests of the East. It would require a wholesale economic readjustment in America to alter that domination. I think, therefore, that all the talk today of an Anglo-American federation is premature. It is sufficient to let cooperation develop out of common urgencies at present. Premature action would mean failure and is likely to do more harm than good.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Topsy-Turvy World

SO THIS fellow—well, it seems that his wife was driving along nonchalantly when all of a sudden this truck made its gallant appearance and knocked her looping, and she is certainly 48 years old, to give her all the best of it, and eight kids already, but they have a doctor friend who said wasn't it too bad, because now she could never have another baby on account of the shock. So their lawyer took it up, and this day I am speaking about the truck company settled out of court, and here this fellow was with $1,000 all in cash.

He never had $1,000 before, and naturally a fellow like that doesn't go around tearing up money for fun, like a glamor boy, so his wife said he should take it down to the bank and open a savings account—like, you know, you used to do for a rainy day.

SO THAT was how he happened to be in the bank this day, and, of course, he wasn't the type to be hanging around banks all the time, so he didn't know anything about their social ways, but figured a bank is where you take your money for storage when you get some. So he walked up to the window with the $1,000 in his hand and started to say something when this monkey in the cage grabbed up his pistol and said, "Get away from here with that money, you dirty rat, or I will blow you through!"

Well, so you can imagine his astonishment, because he didn't know you are only allowed to put $500 in a savings account every three months nowadays and how strict they are about it, so he started to give the guy an argument in a polite way.

"Why," he says, "You dirty monkey! How dast you talk that way to a customer, and if you don't put that gun down I will report you, you louse!"

BUT THE GUY in the cage kept the gun on him and said: "Get away from here with that money, and one false move out of you and I will leave you have it, and no jesting, because it is a strict rule that you can't deposit more than $500, and even then you have to get a letter from your Congressman and your district leader and at least two respectable citizens."

So one word led to another, and this guy thought the monkey must be leaping, because he never heard of such a thing, and here he is with $1,000 and they are treating him like a bum. So, like I say, he starts to give the monkey an argument, so that dummy loses his head completely because it seems like these days the banks are terribly strict about taking any more money, because they have to hire watchmen to guard it at night, and this runs up their expenses.

Well, finally, the poor guy shoved the money through the window, and the dope with the pistol he lets one fly at the ceiling to attract the guard's attention, and with that, why, this fellow naturally gets scared and starts to run for the door with the $1,000 in his hand. And, of course, the guard over by the front door, he doesn't hear what is going on, but only sees a fellow running out of the place with a lot of money in his hand, so you can just see how his mind worked, because he is an old-timer with old-fashioned ideas.

HE DIDN'T STOP to think maybe this guy was just trying to push money into the bank and was getting brushed off on account of the new rules. He just figured it was a stickup, although, the way these banks act nowadays about taking your money for deposit, you would think they would pay guys to back up a wagon and carry it away to relieve the congestion.

So, anyway, like I say, the guard outs with his gun, and in all the excitement he lets the guy have one in the leg, and down he goes and the cops come running and they hop all over him and pound him like he was a round steak or something, until finally he comes to in the hospital and his wife is there and they explain all.

So now he is suing the bank for $200,000 for getting shot and false arrest and contusion and abrasions and the bank is willing to settle for a crowd of dough, because, after all, they are just lousy with all this money, but I don't know what he will do with it even if he gets it. Because if he goes to try to put $100,000 or $200,000 in a bank for a rainy day, why, this time they probably will use a machine gun and shoot to kill, and, after all, what good is the money if you lose your life?

I don't know how to figure things these days, the world is so crazy.

DEAN ACHESON

The report of the Attorney General's committee on administrative procedure, of which Mr. Acheson is the chairman, is discussed on the editorial page today

Army, Navy Chiefs To Testify Secretly

tee meantime heard William R. Castle former Undersecretary of State and former Ambassador, testify that war with Germany might mean that Japan would attack the United States "in the Orient."

Castle, who strongly opposed any broad grant of powers to the President, said Japan plainly does not want war with this country, but relations have been strained.

"They have signed that miserable pact with Germany," said the Republican former Undersecretary of State.

"It is perfectly conceivable that if we should get into the war with Germany, Japan would attack us in the Orient. They couldn't attack us anywhere else. They might try to take the Philippines, but that is as far as they could go."

Leading another long line of opposition witnesses, Castle took issue with his one-time chief, former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, and called the pending bill a "war measure." He favored private sale of arms to Britain, even repeal of the Johnson Act.

But to place the arms lending power in the hands of the President, he contended, would make the United States "an integral part of the war and the President would become the arbiter of Britain's fate."

Today will be the Administration's round, after four days of opposition testimony. Witnesses for the bill will include William C. Bullitt, former Ambassador to France; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former Minister to Norway; Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, of New York; President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor; Dorothy Thompson, columnist, and William Shirer, Berlin radio commentator.

After an all-morning row over whether military heads should testify in open or closed session, committee Democrats met separately and voted to hear service chiefs on Monday morning in executive meeting. That will wind up House hearings, and the committee will proceed at once on the bill. Across the plaza the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will begin hearings Monday, with Secretary of State Hull on the stand.

Service leaders who will testify before the closed House committee are Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, and Maj. Gen. George H. Brett, acting chief of the Army Air Corps.

The three service chiefs originally were invited on opposition time by Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, who said he wanted to learn if Col. Charles A. Lindbergh "was correct when he said that we have only several hundred modern combat planes."

Gen. Marshall, Admiral Stark and Maj. Gen. Brett advised Chairman Sol Bloom that they preferred to be heard in executive session on committee invitation. Fish and Bloom clashed angrily over the proposal. An executive meeting was called to vote on procedure and Republicans refused to attend, except Fish, who presented a protest. Then Democratic members unanimously voted to invite the three to appear Monday in closed session.

Before reporters, Bloom and Fish fought it out. Fish insisted he was prevented by a "practically unprecedented gag rule" from making a motion to open the Monday session.

"I deny it," retorted Bloom. "There was no gag rule."

Fish countered that "higher ups" objected to the officers appearing in public, and Bloom "denied it."

Bloom later made public a letter Gen. Marshall wrote to Fish yesterday. It read, in part:

"In view of the fact that my testimony would be that of the Chief of Staff of the Army, rather than that of an individual, I would prefer to appear on the request of the committee. I take the liberty of suggesting that if my presence is desired by the committee, the hearing be in executive session in order that I might make complete and frank replies to the questions that probably would be asked."

As the committee resumed hearings in the afternoon, with Castle on the stand, Representative Colmer, (Democrat), of Mississippi, on the House floor, rebuked Republican members of the committee.

"The American people are looking to this Congress as they have never looked before for the patriotic, nonpartisan consideration of this legislation," said Colmer.

"The Republican members sat idly by and refused to participate in a (executive) session of the committee. We had the unpardonable spectacle of a rump session of the committee.

"That kind of business causes this Congress to lose caste with the American people. If we are going to divide on partisan lines it is going to be difficult to get patriotic consideration."

Castle later told the House committee that the British Parliament has never surrendered its powers and Congress should not do so.

He declared the bill signs away freedom, creates a dictatorship, does not assure more aid for Britain and says nothing about terminating the President's powers when the war ends.

Representative Luther A. Johnson, of Texas, ranking majority member of the committee, told Castle that he personally would sponsor an amendment limiting the life of the bill.

A two-year limitation on the powers conferred now has general Administration support, and this may be the only substantial modification of the bill proposed by the leadership when the committee starts drafting next week. Suggestions for placing a top limit on the bill have been broached but no informal agreement reached.

At several points in his testimony, Castle was questioned on the conflict of his views with those held by Secretary of War Stimson. Stimson was his former chief. When Castle served as Undersecretary, Stimson was Secretary of State.

Asked by Representative Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, if Stimson was an "interventionist," Castle said it was difficult to define the term, but "Mr. Stimson would go a great deal farther than I would go in telling other nations what to do."

At another point he took issue with Stimson's interpretation of the Kellogg-Briand pact as permitting signatories to aid another signer when a pact was violated by an act of aggression.

Castle said, "It looks to me like there may be a very critical period in the early spring, and England might be brought to the point of making a negotiated peace." Stimson did not suggest the latter possibility.

Castle emphasized that he wanted England to win and favored aid to Britain, but sale of arms should be handled by private concerns, without Government participation.

Congress Gets Bill To Alter Agencies

between the promulgation of a rule and its effective date, in which interested persons may submit views and comment.

5. Simplify administrative procedure all down the line by wider delegation of authority and other means, to the end that citizens may have their rights and duties outlined definitely and quickly by responsible officers.

6. Empower the agencies to issue "declaratory" or advance rulings in order to eliminate unnecessary uncertainty, such rulings to have full force on both the agency and the citizens and to be reviewable by the courts the same as final orders.

Jackson sent the report and the bill along to Congress, together with a statement of additional views and bill drafted by a minority of the study commission. Both majority and minority groups agreed substantially on the problems involved and the goal to be reached, but differed somewhat as to the means for attaining the desired end.

The committee which made the study was appointed by the then Attorney General Murphy, February 24, 1939, at the request of the President. Its present membership, which was enlarged in the spring of 1939, includes:

Acheson, chairman; Francis Biddle, Solicitor General; Prof. Ralph F. Fuchs, Washington University Law School, St. Louis; Dean Lloyd K. Garrison, University of Wisconsin Law School; Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner, United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; Prof. M. Hart, jr., Harvard Law School; Carl McFarland, Washington, former Assistant Attorney General; Judge James W. Morris, United States District Court for the District of Columbia; Prof. Harry Shulman, Yale University Law School; Dean E. Blythe Stason, University of Michigan Law School; Arthur T. Vanderbilt, of New Jersey, former president of the American Bar Association. Prof. Walter Gellhorn, of the Columbia University Law School, served as director of the committee's staff.

Chief among the general recommendations was the one for creation of the Office of Federal Administrative Procedure, to review the procedures and practices of the various agencies. The new office would be composed of a director, appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate; an associate justice of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, to be designated by the chief justice of that court, and the director of the administrative office of the United States courts, who is appointed by the Supreme Court.

The director of the Office of Federal Administrative Procedure would be required to make a continuing study of the work of the administrative agencies, receive complaints from the public, and from time to time make such recommendations to the agencies and to Congress as might be desirable to improve administrative procedure.

As a means for achieving separation of the judicial and prosecutive functions of the many quasi-judicial agencies, and thereby to meet one of the public complaints basic to the Logan-Walter bill, the committee recommended, and included in its bill, the creation of a new corps of officers to hear and decide cases in these agencies.

A Classic Struggle

By Maj. Alex. P. De Seversky.

Air Or Sea Power?

(Copyright, 1941, by United Press)

THE RECENT BATTLE in the Strait of Sicily and the continuous skirmishing which has followed may be regarded as a prelude to the coming decisive conflict between sea power and air power in the Mediterranean. Far more significant than the actual British losses—the sinking of the cruiser Southampton and serious damage to the aircraft carrier Illustrious and the destroyer Gallant—has been the foretaste of a major struggle still to come.

The battle off Sicily again underlined the new axiom evolved relentlessly since the beginning of this war—namely, that sea power cannot operate anywhere within range of efficient enemy aviation without the protection of land-based air power. The immediate problem of the British in the Mediterranean, to maintain their freedom of that sea, is not more ships but more aircraft. They must provide an impregnable canopy under which the British fleet can proceed about its tasks unmolested from the skies. Unless they can do so in good time, their fleet will have only the alternatives of withdrawal or futile sacrifices.

The leading role played by Stuka dive-bombers in the Sicilian engagement must not be accepted as a permanent tactic. The popular belief that the Stuka is the deadliest weapon of the air is entirely false.

FOR ONE THING, the Stuka has a short range, so that it can attack only when sea power accidentally or deliberately exposes itself by coming within striking reach. Furthermore, its employment is limited, being an expellent weapon chiefly against land fortifications, marching mechanized columns, and on the sea against swiftly moving destroyers and fast cruisers which are difficult targets for the horizontal type of bombing.

But capital ships, armored cruisers and other men-of-war structurally protected to withstand the fire of high-caliber naval guns can weather attacks from Stuka dive-bombers. The maximum bomb that the Stuka can release is 1,000 pounds, and experiments in our country have shown that it takes at least a 2,000-pound bomb plus adequate velocity to sink, or even to cripple, a battleship.

The Stuka inspires awe because of the terrific speed with which it plunges towards its prey, but on its downward course the plane acts like a parachute or airbreak to retard the velocity of the bomb. The terminal velocity of the Stuka is about 600 feet per second, and strangely enough, the more daring the dive, the smaller the potential damage; the closer the airplane to the target at the moment of releasing the explosive, the less chance the bomb has to develop speed in a free fall. Of course, this loss in impact is compensated for by greater accuracy in hitting.

ONE NAVAL OBSERVER commenting on this battle said; "It takes a 2,000-pound armor-piercing shell fired from a gun, striking at a speed of something like 24 miles a minute, or over 1,400 miles an hour, to get inside capital ship armor and explode inside the citadel of steel. Bombs don't fall with that speed—or anything like it."

That is quite true. Bombs do not fall with any such velocity from practical flying altitudes. Yet the terminal velocity of a bomb released by a horizontal bomber from an altitude, say of 20,000 feet, is still nearly twice as great as that of a bomb released from a Stuka at close range. Furthermore, in dealing with a battleship, the problem is to deliver a blow with the greatest possible impact in order not only to penetrate its armored defenses, but to dislodge from its foundations and render useless all the delicate mechanisms necessary for its functioning.

Impact is a product of mass and velocity. While the latter is constant with altitude, the mass or weight of the projectile that can be delivered by aircraft can now be of colossal proportions. The horizontal bomber of our own American flying fortress type, and even larger ones under construction by various nations, can release an armor-piercing projectile not of 2,000 pounds, but twice and even five times as big. According to information released on the new Douglas B-19 bomber, now ready for flight tests, it can release a missile of 40,000 pounds if necessary.

The impact of such bombs dropped from the height of 20,000 feet (which can be done very accurately with modern bomb-sights) will produce the same effect as more than five projectiles of 2,000 pounds each striking at the same place and at the same instant at a speed of 2,000 feet per second, or roughly 25 miles a minute, as specified by the naval commentator. There is no practical structure afloat, nor can any be designed which would have any tactical value, that will withstand such blows. These are the results in the realm of immediate and practical possibility, but they will become more devastating as the science of aeronautics marches forward.

IT SCARCELY takes an expert to figure out, therefore, that the battleship can be destroyed by aircraft. One side or the other is sure to demonstrate this, as bigger horizontal bombers are brought into action, overshadowing the dive bombers. The anti-aircraft on a battleship offers considerable hazard to the attacker, but it is no longer regarded as a positive defense. There is only one defense against air power, and that is opposing air power. All of which works back to the axiom that a fleet can no longer operate unless the air overhead is in friendly hands.

Col. Lindbergh's Views

By Mark Sullivan

Stand Respected If Unshared

WHAT Col. Lindbergh received, when he testified before the House committee considering the lease-lend bill, was mainly appreciation for himself, and for certain circumstances. It was not approval of all his judgments. Almost without qualification, it can be said that no one who before the event held beliefs contrary to Col. Lindbergh's, changed those beliefs because of his testimony. Some of the most earnest of the tribute to him came from persons who utterly disbelieve in his views, who indeed find some of his views almost shocking. For Col. Lindbergh goes so far in the direction of extreme isolation that few in Congress follow him the whole way in this direction.

The appreciation shown for Col. Lindbergh was very strong and very obvious. Rarely has any witness before any Congressional committee received such respect—it was a respect deeper than could be expressed by the conventional method of applause. The respect came from members of the committee; from the spectators, who included many members of Congress, and from the newspaper and radio men, who later reflected their regard in the accounts given to the public.

FOR THIS attitude, the reasons included tribute to Col. Lindberg's gallantry—he held courageously to the views he had expressed before, views known to be not popular with a majority of the country. One reason for giving him respect now was recollection of, and atonement for the opprobrium to which he had been subjected, when he first expressed the same views months ago. Col. Lindbergh was, too, the vicarious beneficiary of the experience of some others who, for expressing views sincerely held, had been subjected to contumely. The whole lesson of the attitude toward Col. Lindbergh was that, in America so far, there is no psychology that will crucify men for the expression of honestly held views.

Congressmen were aware that in protecting Col. Lindbergh they are protecting themselves against contingencies that may arise in the future. The subject of Col. Lindbergh's testimony was the lease-lend bill, due to be debated in the House next week and to be voted upon early, with later debate and action in the Senate. As respects the purpose of that bill, help to Britain, there is strong support. Hardly a handful would agree with Col. Lindbergh's complete opposition to it. But everybody knows that as respects some features of the bill, especially the latitude of the grant of powers to the President, there will be strong dissent. Congressmen wish to be able to express this partial dissent without becoming the targets of such epithets as Col. Lindbergh has suffered previous to the present occasion.

FROM THE point of view of the coldest self-interest for America, many find it difficult to agree with the sum of Col. Lindbergh's views. He says we should not help Britain now. But he also says that we should be prepared for "hemisphere" defense—that in the event of any future attack upon any part of the American Continent, the United States should repel the attacker. This seems to imply that in the future—two years from now or five or ten—we should be ready to fight Germany if Germany makes an attack on the southern tip of South America.

The sum of these two views of Col. Lindbergh seems to mean that we should be willing to fight Germany some 7,000 miles away in South America—but not be willing even to oppose her indirectly 3,000 miles away in the waters off Britain. It seems to mean that we should be willing to fight Germany when there is no one to help us fight her—but not willing to help oppose her when Britain is bearing the brunt of the opposition.

Col. Lindbergh seems to ignore the underlying fact in the situation. If Britain wins this war, the situation of the United States, with respect to the defense of the American Continent, will be what it was before. With Britain victor we shall not need to defend the Americas; we shall not need any greater Navy, or Army, or other defense than we have had in the past.

ON THE OTHER hand, if Britain loses, we shall have to maintain for the indefinite future the armament upon which we have now embarked. We arm for only one reason—because of the possibility that Germany may defeat Britain. We began our enlarged program of armament almost on the very day when that possibility emerged upon our alarmed consciousness, in May of last year. If that possibility disappeared, if Britain were to win the war tomorrow, we should feel free of the apprehension that now moves us; we should probably give up our program of armament—confident that with the status quo preserved, with Britain still ascendant on the sea, we should need no more armament than we have had in the past. In ordinary self-interest, this justifies our giving help to Britain.

'They Run Like Hell In London, but Do Not Run Away'

The Washington Post reprints with special permission the following poem, anonymously contributed to the London Evening Standard more than three months ago and copyrighted by that publication.

It was quoted by Quentin Reynolds, recently returned from London where he had gone for Colliers magazine, in a talk in Constitution Hall on Thursday night.

They run like hell in London
Whenever there's a raid—
They run like hell in London
Because they are afraid,
That some one hurt in London
May be in need of aid.

The police, the A. R. P.,
The firemen and the nurses,
Although they cannot see.

They run like hell in London
From dark till break of day;
And though it's hell in London,
They do not run away.

New British Battleship Steams Up the Bay

Warship Brings Halifax; Roosevelt Meets New Envoy in Annapolis Roads

Britain's new battleship, King George V, of 35,000 tons displacement, steamed up the choppy Chesapeake Bay yesterday to Annapolis Roads after bringing Lord Halifax, new Ambassador to the United States, safely across the mine-strewn and submarine infested Atlantic. The warship, never mentioned in official dispatches since its trial runs last April, is shown above in an airview made from a plane which swooped low enough over its decks to see the British tars. President Roosevelt drove to Annapolis, Md., where he boarded the yacht Potomac and sailed into Annapolis Roads, 5 miles from the Naval Academy, to meet the new envoy. The two came ashore at Annapolis in the late evening and drove back to Washington. At left—An airman's view of the "floating arsenal," pride of the British fleet. Fighting plane (arrows) aboard the powerful warship was still ready for action (top) when the battleship entered the bay, but it's wings were folded back when she reached Annapolis (left).

How About This, Instead of a Discount?

Belligerents in Washington's gasoline war might consider the tactics of Leroy C. Bishop, a service station proprietor in Los Angeles. Bishop advertised for girl attendants and soon had a full-fledged beauty contest on his hands—he admits it's better than grease. The girls learned quickly how to handle a pump and are shown below at work on the car of a bewildered but satisfied customer

HOLD YOUR HATS!—The Army's new midget scout car (see above picture, also) is a rougher riding gadget than any motorcycle ever was. It's all the rear gunner can do to keep his seat—much less his hat—with the "bug" bumping along at 60 miles per hour

Next Year's 'Ten Best' Almost Ready to Pluck

Cream of New Film Crop Piling Up in Jam; Producers Boost a Star Not Their Own; This, That and the Other About the Theater

WHEN 546 FILM CRITICS throughout the country turned up their list of the "Ten Best Pictures of 1940," in the Film Daily's nineteenth annual poll, the loewcal Loew management made the discovery that seven of the winning pictures had been shown in Washington at the Palace Theater. Now they are out to beat that record. Anyhow, they hope and there seems to be some foundation for their optimism.

BELL

In the wake of the current "Gone With the Wind" will come "The Philadelphia Story," with Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant, James Stewart and John Howard, which, having seen, we can vouch for as one of the best of any year. And, in the wake of that, there will be "So Ends Our Night," in which Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan and Frances Dee share stellar honors. After that, "Cheers for Miss Bishop," in which Martha Scott, William Gargan and Mary Anderson are winning what the title calls for.

A little more dimly in the distance are Gilbert Pascal's picturization of one George Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara," costarring Wendy Hiller and Rex Harrison; Judy Garland, James Stewart, Hedy Lamarr, Lana Turner and Tony Martin in "Ziegfeld Girl" and Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney in "Men of Boys Town."

Think I won't pick my "Ten Best" for 1941 quite yet, at that, although one almost could.

And the Earle is getting itself all snarled up in important bookings, too, what with the practically mandatory continuance of "North West Mounted Police" through a second week and all. That gracious but entangling act sets the Technicolored "Virginia," with Fred MacMurray, Madeleine Carroll and Carolyn Lee, back a week and pushes "This Thing Called Love," with Melvyn Douglas and Rosalind Russell, back two. Beyond that the traffic congestion is virtually appalling.

If we should ever get around to opening the day's mail, we probably would find an odd letter in it from David L. Loew and Albert Levin, producers of "So Ends Our Night," hereinabove referred to in these dispatches. What the boys would have to say is that Glenn Ford, appearing in the romantic lead in their first United Artists release—and subordinated in the billing to Freddie March and the Misses Sullavan and Dee—is one whale of a young actor, not under contract to them and who may or may not appear in some one or other of their future pictures, but who is such a valuable "discovery" that they just have to tell the world about it. Press agentry, of course, but we have heard the same thing from so many other sources that we are beginning to believe it.

Barring wreck, fire, flood, tornado or other act of God, the "Old Acquaintance" production, costarring Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood, will be here in more than ample time to be set up and hung for tomorrow night's "command performance" in the National Theater. It leaves the Pennsylvania Station in New York tomorrow morning at 10:30. The cast, along with the author, producer and director—whose likenesses appear on this page today—will arrive in midafternoon to be cocktailed preliminary to the single acting out of the piece.

And back-tracking again to that "Ziegfeld Girl" business, the picture will engage artists in a national contest just announced by the Art Students' League of New York. Cash prizes totalling $1,000 will be awarded for the best drawings or paintings symbolizing the "Ziegfeld Girl of 1941." The joust is open to all artists and art students in the United States. Neysa McMein, McClelland Barclay, James Montgomery Flagg, Varga, Gilbert Bundy and John LaGatta already are busy on their own. Now let's see, who would make a good model?

Yesterday, on this page, the charming and usually sapient Miss Hopper lamented that comedy seems not to be Director Alfred Hitchcock's particular "dish of tea," basing her verdict on "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" and Carole Lombard's role in that frivolous frolic's skillfully turned adventure in marital infelicity. "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" was the subject of that "sneak preview" at RKO-Keith's Wednesday night and, like all the rest of the capacity audience that bulged the place, we find it difficult to trace Miss Hopper's mental processes. For purposes of near-farce—which is all to which "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" pretends—it is sufficient that if Mrs. Smith was like that, Mrs. Smith was like that. It is necessary to concede a little something in such circumstances. Once conceded, I should say that "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" places Alfred Hitchcock right up there alongside Ernst Lubitsch as a director fully equipped to make innuendo innocuous and the risque exquisitely subtle and ridiculous. You will laugh and laugh and laugh and I'll wager Miss Hopper did the same.

So tiny Miss Carolyn Lee will arrive at Union Station for the President's Birthday Celebrations this afternoon at 2:40 and Stirling Hayden, also from Paramount and "Virginia," will Diesel in at the same place at the same hour tomorrow.

Merely-Idle-Curiosity Note

Okay, Mr. Prognosticator, what goes on with the weather next weekend?

To Attend Their Own 'Command Performance'

DWIGHT D. WIMAN, AURIOL LEE, JOHN VAN DRUTEN producer, director and author (left to right) of "Old Acquaintance," costarring Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood, to be presented for the benefit of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis tomorrow night only in the National Theater. They will be in the audience to see their play on this gala occasion

Metropolitan

"Love Thy Neighbor," in which Paramount shrewdly continues the ether battle between Jack Benny and Fred Allen with the important principals intact, returned to a downtown screen yesterday, taking over the Metropolitan after a week at the Earle.

Striking a sharply contrasting note of reality at the Metropolitan is "Christmas Under Fire," Quentin Reynold's new and widely released successor to his "London Can Take It." This somber Yuletide reminder of things beyond our ken has the same quiet force that characterized the earlier release. The vigorous insistence that Christmas is for children, that the spirit of the season must not die and the incredible sight of tinselled trees in murkey underground stations from a brief picture that will not be forgotten.

"Love Thy Neighbor," so unreal as not to be of the same planet as "Christmas Under Fire," is exactly what listeners to those two top radio comedians would expect. It isn't the funniest film ever made, but it has more than its moments. Besides being the most satisfactory screen vehicle for either of the comics to date, this screen musical comedy further boasts Rochester (in tights!) and the indefinable "yumph" of Mary Martin.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, Jan. 24.

ONE OF HOLLYWOOD'S foremost producers has been summoned to Washington for a White House conference on the 28th. It concerns the laxity of the film industry in cooperating with the defense needs. This producer will be designated as the one to be responsible for making the films required by the Government—and his colleagues will be directed to cooperate . . . Woolworth Donohue has closed his Long Island home. He plans to enlist soon, as an Air Corps gunner . . . Thurman Arnold has made up his mind—and the suit against BMI will be dropped.

LYONS

FATHER DIVINE'S haven at Krum Elbow—across the river from President Roosevelt's Hyde Park estate—now has two neon signs . . . The first one, on the boathouse, announces "Peace" . . . The second sign—which is lit only when Father Divine is visiting there—has merely the initials "F. D. R." . . . The caretaker explains that this means: "Father Divine in Residence."

MGM IS BEGINNING to assign new writers for the completion of "The World is My Oyster," a screen story which has been in the studio's possession since 1922. Many writers since then have tried, without avail, to create a suitable script . . . Kenneth MacKenna, MGM's story editor, recently asked one of the studio's employes to do the job. "That old story?" the writer protested. 'The World Is My Oyster' was begun in Hollywood's Middle Ages." . . . "That's all right," MacKenna assured. "There is no 'R' in Middle Ages."

THE FORMALLY ATTIRED patron at Ciro's in Hollywood who helped pump up Mary Livingston's pearls—after she had dropped them in the Powder Room—was Billy Wilkerson's plumber. Mary had confessed her plight to Wilkerson, proprietor of the elegant Ciro's. He searched through the cafe, and discovered that his plumber was dining in the room . . . Milton Berle, who is not confused by initials, is orgahizing an ASPCASCAP, which means "American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to the American Society of Composers and Publishers."

BRETAIGNE WINDUST, director of "Life With Father" and "Arsenic And Old Lace," was at a party at Louis Nizer's, where the guests participated in a game—wherein each was asked: "If you could be anybody else in the history of the world, who would be your choice?" . . . Some named Roosevelt, others named Lincoln, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Walt Whitman—and Windust selected "Confucius, because he was such a wise man" . . . "Confucius?" asked the host. "And submit to all those dirty parodies of your wisest sayings?" . . . Confucius was such a wise man," said Windust, "he'd understand."

PAUL GREEN, the Pulitzer Prize playwright, visited this week with Kurt Weill and Ira Gershwin, and told them he was making wagers about the Nazis bombarding this continent. . . . Gershwin disagreed, and asked: "But how could they span such a long distance?" Green thereupon related this parable: An Irishman sat on the pier at Cobh, and told his companions: "I'll bet I could dive in, and come up in N. Y." The bets were made, and into the water he went. He came up in the middle of a city, broke through the pavement, and asked the first cop: "Where am I?" . . . "This is Denver," the cop answered. . . . "Hell," said the Irishman. "I lose."

MONDAY NIGHT Keenan Wynn and Herman Timberg, jr., went backstage at "Meet the People," for a meeting with Jack Boyle, a member of the cast. The three youngsters all were born during the run of "Passing Show of 1917," a show in which their fathers appeared. Alfred Zimmerman, the 73-year-old chef at the Circle Club, was offered $10,000 for his rare butterfly collection, and refused, explaining: "My wife has enough to eat, I enough to drink—and there is no beauty in money."

ERNEST HEMINGWAY and four friends went on a hunting expedition this month, and when the trip was over one of them had bagged almost 400 wild duck. . . . His puzzled companions put away the shotguns they had used, each wondering why their total bag had been so small. When the trip was over, the triumphant one consoled Hemingway and the three others: "Don't worry, boys. Next time you too may use my automatic."

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Jan. 24.

Slim Summerville works only twice a year now, from choice. Spends his winters at Laguna, and Hollywood doesn't see hide nor hair of him till spring, when he needs "summer money." Says Slim, "I decided last year, while I was fishing, that I was a fool to work all the time, so I says to myself, 'Work when you need money, and fish the rest of the time.'" And he added, "Some of my neighbors are downright ashamed of me. The bankers think I'm shiftless, and I'm not asked to make speeches any more. And as I go by, I can kinda hear 'em say under their breath, 'There goes that lazy, good-for-nothing Slim.'" He got his winter money by playing the cook in "Western Union"—says, with a twinkle, "And I can't even fry an egg." But I think he's worked out a perfect design for living.

HOPPER

When Elizabeth Arden was here visiting Santa Anita and her horses, I was reminded of a weekend I spent with her some years ago in Saratoga. We went at dawn to see her ponies run. One of them was a little shaky on his back legs, and she asked her trainer what kind of ointment he was using. He told her, then spoke she, "I want you to use my creams. They make faces strong and beautiful, and I'm sure they can do the same for a horse's leg." And I'll be hanged if he didn't have to do it.

Spencer Tracy is not only one of our finest actors, but what a friend! He'll do the narration on "The Forgotten Village," which John Steinbeck shot in Mexico. All the characters are the real thing, and should really be something. Wouldn't it be a joke if Steinbeck, the writer, gave us a picture as good as "Grapes of Wrath"—and he an amateur? He wrote and directed this himself.

That reminds me, Margaret Case Harriman, who did such a good story on Clare Booth Luce in the New Yorker, is in our midst doing Frank Capra. Her father is Frank Case, of the Algonquin, who wrote "Do Not Disturb," which is now in the best seller class. And Frank is furious when anyone suggests that Margaret might have helped him with it. No, she didn't!

Jack Oakie, Mayor of West Van Nuys, says if you want to make good in politics, feed 'em and entertain 'em. That's what Jack's doing. When he first started presiding over the council, there were a mere handful, and he realized something had to be done to get the gang coming. So he got the women baking cakes, which they now raffle off after the fortnightly meeting. He furnishes the coffee and then puts on an impromptu show. Now the mayors of the surrounding villages are trying to crash the parties.

It appears now that Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier have reached England, they'll go into an English picture called "The Admirable Crichton," which starred Gloria Swanson and Tommy Meighan years ago. I thought they'd gone back to serve their country.

I came across an item the other day that appalled me. With the world falling, you wouldn't believe that a prominent Englishman here would battle because a fellow countryman's name was billed in the same sized letters as his own, even though it came after his. The man who didn't battle was James Stephenson. The other name I won't print, because I've always liked him.

Funny sight watching Dottie Lamour with her makeup girl and hairdresser at Knickerbocker Lounge, having Hope of Hollywood tell her what the future holds for her. As though she didn't know!

When I asked Zasu Pitts why she never wore jewelry, I found out, after all these years of knowing her, that she's allergic to the stuff.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Jan. 24 (INS).—The incorrigible Ben Hecht, who pulls ideas out of a hat much after the fashion of a magician with a rabbit, has just sold Alexander Korda's "Forbidden City." The Hecht play deals with present-day occupied Paris. It is modern, exciting and on a topic that has not heretofore been filmed. Hecht is here now writing the story for Korda, who plans to put it into production immediately. It will be Korda's next picture and will follow "That Hamilton Woman" which is ready for release.

PARSONS

Merle Oberon, who has other commitments, will not be in "Forbidden City," but Korda will collect a cast and director within the next few weeks. He believes the Hecht story should be filmed without delay, since it is right up to the moment in current interest.

I wonder where the Hays office was when the photographs on Jane Russell were released to a national picture magazine? The League of Decency is up in arms—and rightly so. It is unfair to the little girl, who is a sweet child and who should not make her debut in a photograph as disgusting and suggestive. It would be just too bad for the whole industry if, because of these pictures, there is trouble, for the producers have honestly tried to keep the industry clean.

Francis Hartley, managing director of Twentieth Century-Fox in England, has thrilling tales to tell of his experience in London during the bombing. Like all people who have been in the midst of the Nazi attacks, he is emphatic in saying that England is taking its troubles with courage and hope. When he left London, a plan was being formulated to show films in the shelters and under the subways. Business he says goes on as usual, although naturally the theaters open earlier and close before dark.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Just couldn't believe it when someone said that Carole Landis and her ex, Willis Hunt, jr., were dining tete-a-tet at Victors; Frank Melton, young actor who comes from Tulsa, is plotting an elopement with Shirley Stewart to Las Vegas next Sunday; Marjorie Weaver and Vic Orsatti, an unexpected twosome at the Florentine Gardens; a postcard from Annabella and Tyrone Power tell of bull fights and other interesting things they filmed in Mexico. They are expected back Monday and promise to show me the reel they made.

George Raft, who has had a most successful personal appearance tour, is back among us again; Walter Chrysler, son of the late automobile magnate, is vacationing in Palm Springs; that was Lillian Eggers, one of Twentieth's pretty models, with Franchot Tone at the Hollywood Tropics; Sidney Guilerroff, hair expert on the M-G-M lot, certainly gets around. He is now beauing Ann Rutherford hither and yon; wonder if Laraine Day is talking a picture at Universal?

Eddie Hillman at the Mocambo at one table and his wife, June Inverclyde, at another with a large party. A curious understanding these two have and it seems to work.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Francis Burke, active worker in the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and affiliated with the Railroad Retirement Board, will address the "Ministers' Night" dinner meeting of the Washington Church Press Association on Monday at 6:30 p. m. at the Continental Hotel, Capitol Plaza.

He will speak in place of the Rev. A. W. Gottschall, Southern area director of the conference, who has been called to Atlanta on business.

Greetings will be brought by the Rev. Thomas Daniels, pastor of the Greek Orthodox Church of Saints Constantine and Helen; Soterios Nicholson, prominent Greek-American newspaperman, lawyer, churchman and fraternal worker; William J. Egbert, chief scribe of the Press Association, and others. Dinner tickets will be $1.

Laymen of all faiths, especially those entrusted with the handling of church publicity, are cordially invited to attend with their ministers, priests or rabbis.

National Christian Mission Speakers Will Address D. C. Schools and Colleges

Program for Week Virtually Completed, Dr. Buschmeyer Says

(This is eighth in a series of articles about the National Christian Mission, which opens here February 2 with mass meetings in Constitution and Continental Halls.)

By Robert Tate Allan

Plans have been virtually completed for having speakers address white and colored high schools, colleges and universities during the National Christian Mission, the local committee announced yesterday.

According to Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, and chairman of the high schools committee, the following program of speakers has been arranged for that group:

February 7, 9 a. m., Western, Dr. Arthur L. Kinsolving, of Princeton, N. J.; February 6, Roosevelt, 9 a. m., Dr. Theodore (Ted) Adams, of Richmond; January 6, 9 a. m., Coolidge, Dr. Kinsolving; February 7, Central, 9 a. m., Dr. George Heaton, of Lynchburg; February 6, Armstrong, 9 a. m., Dr. Richard H. Bowling, of Norfolk; February 6, 9 a. m., Woodrow Wilson, 9 a. m., Philip Lee, of Chicago; February 5, Eastern, 9 a. m., Dr. Adams; February 6 Anacostia, 10:50 a. m., Dr. Adams; February 5, Dunbar, 9 a. m., Lee; February 6, Washington and Lee, Arlington, 12 and 12:40 p. m., Heaton, and February 4, Rockville, 11 a. m., Dr. Roy Burkhart, of Columbus, Ohio.

Dr. Jones to Speak

Dr. William S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, and chairman of the colleges and universities committee, has announced that Dr. E. Stanley Jones, the noted missionary to India, will address American University students on February 5 at 11 a. m.

Also, Dr. Jones and Dr. Adolph Keller, the latter a leader of Protestant cooperative work in Europe, will speak before the George Washington assembly on February 7 at 7:30 p. m. Students of the Marjorie Webster School will hear Dr. Harry N. Holmes, of New York City, associate secretary of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches, speak on February 6 at 10:30 a. m.

Plans for speakers at Howard University, Arlington Hall, National Park, Gunston Hall and Madeira School will be completed in a few days, it was stated.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to address one of the mission seminars at Calvary Baptist Church.

Of particular interest to thousands of business people will be the daily noonday meetings, 12 to 12:30 p. m., at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G Street Northwest. Speakers will include Dr. E. Stanley Jones, Monday, February 3; Dr. Harold C. Phillips, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Cleveland, Tuesday; Roy E. Vale, of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, Wednesday; Bishop Thomas S. Darst, of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina, Thursday, and Dr. Kinsolving, Friday.

A number of the speakers will talk over the radio during the week.

Lutherans to Start Roll Call With Goal Set at $7,277

Services in many Lutheran churches tomorrow will start the annual Lutheran Inner Mission Roll Call. With $7,277 as its goal, the drive will continue through February 14.

Meanwhile, a commissioning service for the workers and friends of the society throughout the city was held last night at Keller Memorial Lutheran Church. Roll call material was distributed to the workers at the dinner before the service.

Luther Place

Dr. Charles B. Foelsch will preach on "The World Is Yours" tomorrow at 11 o'clock. A group of new members will be received into the church fellowship.

The congregation is participating in the annual roll call of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society.

St. Mark's. The Rev. Robert E. Lee, student at Gettysburg Seminary, will be the guest speaker at 11 a. m.

The Luther League will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cooper at 816 Twenty-first Street Northwest at a 6 o'clock tea. This will be followed by a devotional service. Miss Margaret Gebhardt will lead.

St. Ansgar. Services will be conducted tomorrow at 11 a. m. at 1308 Vermont Avenue Northwest by the Rev. S. Christian Andersen.

Georgetown. "Hope for the Hopeless" will be the subject of the Rev. Harold E. Beatty tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Mrs. Frederick G. Umhau, of Takoma Park Lutheran Church, will present the cause of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society.

Grace. Sunday's worship program will serve the cause of the Washington Lutheran Inner Mission Society, which holds its annual roll call from January 26 to February 14. Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski will preach at 11 a. m. on "Making Your Religion Intelligible to Others."

Reformation. "The Temptations of the Bright Boy and the Attractive Girl" will be the subject of Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder tomorrow at 8 p. m. This subject, postponed from last Sunday, is one of the special series of sermons designed particularly for young people and using subjects suggested by youth groups.

Dr. Blackwelder's subject for the 11 o'clock service will be "The Brotherhood of Faith."

'Men's Day' Set For Tomorrow at Ingram Memorial

Men will conduct "Men's Day" services tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, where the Rev. Frederick J. Bishop will preach on "New Men for the New World Order." A youth society will be formed at 7 p. m. The church gym is open to men and boys on Fridays at 7 p. m.

Cleveland Park. The Rev. Paul W. Yinger will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Humility."

Mount Pleasant. As the high school forum mets tomorrow at 5:30 p. m., there will be a discussion on "What Young People Expect of the Church and What the Church May Expect of the Young People. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer will preach at 11 a. m. on "What Makes a Church."

Rev. Mr. Couden To Be Universalist Guest Pastor

The Rev. William Couden, pastor of the First Universalist Church of Providence, R. I., will be guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Universalist National Memorial Church, where he was associate pastor from 1916 to 1918.

Former chaplain in the World War, Mr. Couden is the son of the Rev. Henry Noble Couden, for many years blind chaplain of the House of Representatives.

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, Universalist Church pastor, is attending meetings of the board of trustees of St. Lawrence University and the Frater's Retreat at Henry Ford's Wayside Inn at South Sudbury, Mass. The retreat has been held annually for 40 years.

Dr. John Ball Will Preach on 'The Best Life'

Recalling his seventy-eighth birthday, formally celebrated last Thursday, Dr. John Compton Ball will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Metropolitan Baptist Church on what he calls a "smilestone sermon entitled "The Best Life and Life at Its Best." The Intermediate B. Y. P. U. will be honored at the service.

DR. BALL

North Washington. "The Choice of Inclusion or Exclusion" will be the Rev. Henry J. Smith's sermon theme for tomorrow at 11 a. m. He will teach the Men's Class at 9:45 a. m.

First. The recently organized Youth Choir will make its debut tomorrow at 8 p. m., singing "Life's Sundown." Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden's sermon theme at 11 a. m. will be "Do You Realize Your Own Importance?"

Brookland. "Something Extra" has been announced as the Rev. M. C. Stith's sermon subject for tomorrow at 11 a. m.

West Washington. "A Dipper Full of Stars" and "Personal Salvation" will be the Rev. Charles B. Austin's sermon themes for tomorrow morning and evening, respectively.

East Washington Heights. Prayers for the coming National Christian Mission will be heard tomorrow at 11 a. m., as the Rev. Glenn B. Faucett preaches on "What Price Spiritual Awakening in Washington?"

Calvary. Dorothy Williams and Emmet Crouch, two Sunday school scholars, will assist the Rev. Edwin H. Tuller in conducting the evening service. Dr. W. S. Abernethy's sermon subject at 11 a. m. will be "What Shall We Love?"

Chevy Chase. "God's Searchlight" will be the sermon theme of the Rev. Edward O. Clark at 11 a. m. A nursery hour for children of the congregation is conducted during worship services.

Fifth. Dr. John E. Briggs will preach at 11 a. m. on "The God of Elijah." The Rev. J. Herrick Hall will preach at 8 p. m. on the subject "The Christian Faith."

The January Musical Vespers will present Miss Emma Louise Thompson, organist, and Rev. J. Herrick Hall, barytone, in a music recital at 5 p. m.

Attorney Charles V. Imlay will teach the Darlington-Berea Bible Class. Attorney C. Clinton James the Mooney-Baraca Class and Mrs. Lillian Alsop the Philathea Class for Women.

Christian Science

"Truth" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the churches of Christ Scientist tomorrow, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school is at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited to attend the church services including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock.

The golden text is from Psalms 119: 151, 152. "Thou art near, O Lord; and all thy testimonies, I have known of old that thou hast founded them for ever."

Lay Leaders in U. S. to Convene Tomorrow at Wallace Memorial

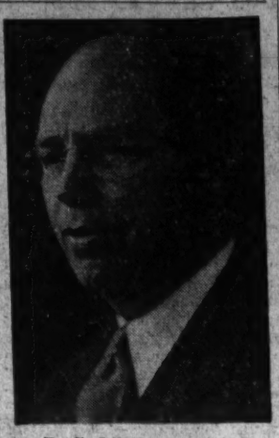
Nationally-known business and professional men will participate in a week of special meetings beginning tomorrow at Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, New Hampshire Avenue and Randolph Street Northwest, under the auspices of the Christian Laymen's Crusade of Chicago.

Additional meetings will be held throughout the week there, and also at Metropolitan Baptist, National Baptist Memorial, First Brethren, Emory Methodist and Albright Memorial Evangelical Churches.

According to William C. Bond, who is handling local arrangements, the meetings will be unique in that all who take part will be laymen; including R. G. Le Tourneau, of Toccoa, Ga., road-building machinery manufacturer, who reversing the usual tithing procedure, gives 90 per cent of his income to Christian work.

"The meetings," says Mr. Bond, "will deal with the practical aspects of the Christian faith and seek to demonstrate out of their own experiences that Christianity does meet the needs of hard-headed business men."

Charles E. Gremmels, New York City industrialist, will speak at the morning service, and Boyd W. Hargraves, Chattanooga attorney, in the afternoon, and Mr. Le Tourneau at 8 p. m.



R. G. LE TOURNEAU

Wilson Seniors To Hear Bishop

Bishop James E. Freeman will preach the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Woodrow Wilson High School in Washington Cathedral tomorrow at 4 p. m. The sermon will be part of the regular Sunday evensong service.

At the service of morning prayer and sermon at 11 a. m. the pulpit will be occupied by Dr. Theodore O. Wedel, canon chancellor and director of studies of the College of Preachers.

Ascension. Canon Raymond L. Wolven, minister in charge, announces the following services for tomorrow: 8 a. m., Holy Communion; 11 a. m., morning prayer and sermon, and 7 p. m., Young People's Fellowship.

St. John's. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector, will preach tomorrow at the 9:30 and 11 o'clock services of morning prayer. The full choir of men and boys under the direction of Arthur Howes, organist and choirmaster, will sing "From the Rising of the Sun," by Frederick A. J. Cusley, at both those services. The Rev. John G. Magee will preach at the 8 o'clock service of evensong.

Trinity. The Rev. Alexander Sharpe, formerly vicar of St. Barnabas' Church, Plymouth, England, will preach tomorrow at the 11 o'clock service. Mr. Sharpe is at present visiting in the city following a recent trip around the world.

Epiphany. The services tomorrow will include holy communion at 8 a. m., church school and Junior Bible Class at 9:30 a. m., and Adult Bible Class at 10 a. m. At 11 o'clock there will be morning prayer and sermon by Dr. Z. B. Phillips. The Young People's Fellowship will meet at 6:30 p. m., and at 8 o'clock there will be evening prayer and address by Mr. Andrew B. Jones, of the Virginia Theological Seminary.

St. Agnes. Sunday being within the octave of the patronal festival there will be three masses, including a low mass at 7:30 a. m., sung mass at 9:30 a. m., and solemn high mass and sermon at 11 a. m.

Presbyterian Women's Unit To Hear La Roe

Wilbur J. La Roe, jr., prominent local layman, will address the Federation of Women of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church Tuesday at 8 p. m. on "Stewardship in Our Personal Lives." "ABIDE WITH ME"
— — HENRY F. LYTE — — —
Abide with me! fast falls the eventide,
The darkness deepens; Lord, with me abide!
When other helpers fail, and comforts flee,
Help of the helpless, O, abide with me!
Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
Henry F Lyte was a clergyman with remarkable literary gifts. Poor health compelled him to give up his pastorate. He preached his farewell sermon, and, discouraged, went down to his beloved ocean and prayed for inspiration to write something that would live. As evening was closing, he wrote this immortal hymn.

College Choirs To Give Sacred Concerts Here

The appearance of famous college choral groups here tomorrow and during the week will give sacred music lovers a real spiritual treat.

The noted Seminary Singers, of Boston University School of Theology, directed by Prof. James R. Hoighton, will sing tomorrow at 4 p. m. at Takoma Park Baptist Church, and at 8 p. m. at Foundry Methodist Church.

The nationally known Westminster Choir, of Westminster Choir School, Princeton, N. J., will sing Wednesday at 8 p. m. at Constitution Hall under the auspices of the First Baptist, New York Avenue Presbyterian and Calvary Baptist choirs, all of whose directors are recent graduates of that school, John Finley Williamson will direct.

Slated to sing Thursday at 8:30 p. m. at Constitution Hall is the St. Olaf's Choir of St. Olaf's College, Northfield, Mass., directed by F. Melius Christiansen.

Contract Bridge

This question concerns the play of today's hand. You are sitting North, trying your best to bring home a difficult six-diamond contract. The opening lead by East is the queen of hearts. What line of play do you adopt so as to make twelve tricks?

Today's Hand

East-West Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

	♠ A K 9 3 ♡ None ◇ K 10 9 6 4 2 ♣ A K Q
♠ Q 10 7 2 ♡ K 9 8 5 2 ◇ 5 3 ♣ 6 2	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ J 4 ♡ Q J 10 6 ◇ Q J 8 ♣ 9 7 5 3
	♠ 8 6 5 ♡ A 7 4 3 ◇ A 7 ♣ J 10 8 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 NT	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	5 ◇	Pass

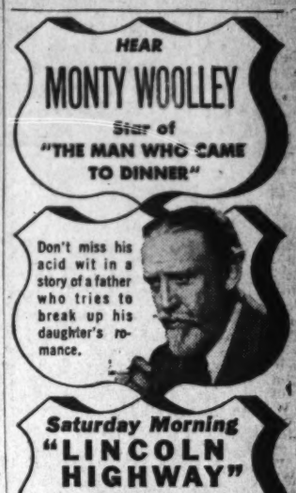
Opening lead: Q ♡.

Answer: Declarer makes his six-diamond contract by taking precautions against an adverse shortage of clubs. He needs two spade discards, as he has to give up a diamond trick unless the queen, jack are doubleton in one hand. Since the adversary holding two low diamonds may also possibly be short in clubs, declarer must avoid playing out three rounds of clubs until he exhausts this player of diamonds. Therefore, South hits upon a happy plan to win his small-slam contract. Instead of winning the opening lead with the heart ace, he plays low from the dummy and trumps the queen in his own hand. He plays the king of clubs, and he enters dummy with a low diamond to the ace. He now cashes the ace of hearts and throws off the troublesome queen of clubs. The jack, ten of clubs then provide two discards for the losing spades.

Declarer makes six diamonds, losing one trump trick. Had declarer tried to play out the club queen before exhausting West of diamonds, West would have ruffed the third club lead and another diamond trick won by East would have defeated the contract. If declarer won the first trick with the ace of hearts, throwing off a spade, he would later find the club suit blocked. Full credit will be given to players who decided to throw a club honor at the first trick, under the ace of hearts.



Waycroft Club Visits The Chinese Chancery

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

Three meetings highlighted club activities yesterday—the visit of the Waycroft Woman's Club to the Chinese Chancery, the luncheon of the Newcomb Club of Bethesda, addressed by Grosvenor Jones, of the Department of Commerce, and the annual meeting of the Occupational Therapy Association, held at the Women's City Club.

The members of the Waycroft Club's art and international relations sections, were greeted at the Chinese Chancery, Nineteenth and Vernon Streets, by Mrs. Victor T. Kwong, wife of an attache, and addressed by T. L. Tsui, first secretary. Mr. Tsui told them of conditions in China, of the Chinese cooperatives in the interior and how supplies are coming through over the Burma Road.

After the visit to the Chancery in the morning, the women had luncheon at the Iron Gate Inn and made a tour of the headquarters of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, 1734 N Street, in the afternoon.

Newcomb Club Dines At the Highlands

In the party were the club president, Mrs. Donald Duff; Mrs. E. H. Emerson, Mrs. E. L. Franklin, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, Mrs. R. K. LeBrou, Mrs. Colin Macpherson, Mrs. F. C. Palmer, Mrs. Guy Ramsdell, Mrs. H. L. Riely, Mrs. C. J. Shover, chairman of the fine arts group; Mrs. R. W. Shumway, Mrs. Leroy L. Smith, Mrs. Harry Thompson, Mrs. R. W. Tyson, Mrs. L. A. Ward, and Mrs. J. C. Wheeler.

The Newcomb Club had its luncheon at the Highlands. Mr. Jones, assistant director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of the Department of Commerce, discussed "The Economic Situation in Latin America."

Race, geography and natural resources make differences in the South American countries that often are not taken into consideration here, he said. Assistance from this country enabling the South American republics to develop raw materials, industries and manufacturing plants has already resulted in a higher rate of consumption of their own output, tending to improve conditions, he said.

Mrs. R. Thomas West Addresses Club

Mrs. Jones also was an honor guest at the luncheon at which the club president, Mrs. William Ross Gillette, presided. Mrs. Leonard A'Hearn introduced the speaker.

Mrs. R. Thomas West, chairman of the Twentieth Century Club's golden jubilee gift of an occupational therapy room to the children's ward of Gallinger Hospital, addressed the Occupational Therapy Association. No other thing the club could have done would have yielded as great returns from the standpoint of those assisted and satisfaction to the members, she said. Treatment has been given to 71 out-patients and 62 from the children's ward of the hospital since the room was opened a year ago, she stated.

P.-T.A. to Hold Safety Parley

Mrs. George Clark, chairman of the safety committee of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers, has announced the annual "safety meeting" of her organization for Tuesday at 10 a. m., in the board room of the National Education Association Building.

In view of the appalling number of accidents resulting in so many fatalities, the meeting will be built around traffic safety problems. Among those on the program will be Grant L. Clarke, manager of the safety department of the American Automobile Association's D. C. Motor Club, who will discuss the results of the school safety patrol officers' training camps last fall for officers of local school patrol groups.

F. Stewart McCall, teacher of physical education at Hine Junior High School, will present the possibilities which may be found in student safety clubs, with recommendation that they be organized in all public schools.

Earl Allgaier, manager of the driver research program of the American Automobile Association, will discuss the "Practical Application of Traffic Regulations," and M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, will speak on "Traffic Safety."

Robert H. Duncan, director of instruction in first aid, life saving and accident prevention of the D. C. Chapter of the American Red Cross, will speak on "First Aid and Traffic Safety."

This meeting will be open to all parent-teacher members and to any others interested.

The men and their North American hosts are Carlos Eastvan, of El Mercurum, of Sactuago, the New York Times; Manuel Vega, El Diario Ilustrado, of Santiago, Washington Star; Joaquin Muirhead, La Hora, of Santiago, Washington Post; Francisco Le Dantec, El Mercurio, of Valparaiso, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; Luis Ignacio Silva, La Union, of Valparaiso, Boston Globe; Guillermo Valenzuela, La Nacion, of Santiago, Los Angeles Times, and Rafael Valdiveso, El Imparcial, of Santiago, Detroit News.

Just Cold Today, But That Rain Will Return Tomorrow

Nearly an inch of rain fell on Washington last night, and with temperatures within a few degrees of the freezing mark provided the city with the best "pneumonia weather" of the year.

The fall at times was as heavy as a summer thunder shower and at 7:30 p. m., shortly before the rain stopped, the Weather Bureau showed a precipitation total of .92 of an inch. The forecast for today is fair and colder by afternoon. The rain will come back Sunday, the forecaster said.

Snow and sleet in the Northeast and cold rain and near-freezing temperatures in the Southeast marked the Nation's weather, the Associated Press reported.

'How About Me?' Willkie Consoles Election Weeper

Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 24 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie, en route to London, arrived here today by Pan-American Clipper. He expects to remain in England for a fortnight and hoped to be back in the United States by February 12.

A newspaperman remarked he had lost money in betting on the recent United States Presidential election and Willkie, the defeated Republican candidate, retorted:

"Well, I lost a job."

St. Mary Pelletier Honored in 3-Day Rites at Convent

Catholic dignitaries from the Baltimore and Washington archdiocese yesterday led exercises launching a three-day trideum in honor of the canonization of St. Mary Euphrasia Pelletier.

She was first mother general of the Order of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, whose convent at Thirty-sixth Street and Reservoir Road Northwest is the scene of the rites that will continue through tomorrow night.

The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese, celebrated solemn pontifical mass during the morning. He was assisted by the Very Rev. Vincent L. Keelan, S. J., vice provincial of the Maryland-New York Province of the Society of Jesus; the Rev. Richard J. Barron, pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church, Takoma Park, and the Rev. William L. Devlin, deacon and subdeacon. The Rev. Aloysius J. Hogan, S. J., of Georgetown University, delivered the sermon.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Keyes, of Baltimore, celebrated solemn pontifical benediction in the afternoon, and the Right Rev. Msgr. Eugene J. Connelly, rector of St. Peter's Church here, preached.

TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

is no pretty catch phrase

Many have thought of the slogan "Truth in advertising" as merely a high-sounding phrase which has no practical application. But this is not so. Business men are not alone interested in the altruistic phase of TRUTH. They are vitally concerned when untruth or inaccuracy undermines the foundation of legitimate business-CONFIDENCE.

Whenever the public responds to advertising, it is usually because of confidence in the advertiser. This confidence is built up over a period of time through accurate advertising and honest selling methods. The reward of accurate advertising is public confidence, which, in turn, means continuing and increasing public patronage. The penalty for inaccurate advertising is loss of public confidence, which, in turn, means decreasing public patronage.

And this is as it should be—reward for good and penalty for bad practices. Unfortunately a few unscrupulous or shortsighted people think they can beat this system and reverse the order. For a while they may do so—but eventually they themselves are beaten.

This, if for no other reason, is why retail advertising is on so high a plane, steadily improving in character as new and better ways of describing merchandise offerings are discovered and put into practice.

Navy Set Braves Rain For Forrestal Reception

There was something of a bottleneck yesterday afternoon at the entrance to the driveway leading to the home of the Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. James Forrestal. They entertained at a large reception, but the torrents of rain made it rather difficult to get there. Even the host was delayed, owing to water injuring the engine of his car.

After his arrival, the Undersecretary greeted guests with a cordial "How do you do? My name's Forrestal." Before his arrival his wife received in the long living room of their home, which is the Grew residence on Woodland Drive.

Mrs. Forrestal wore a long black dress of tulle and velvet with a gold clip, probably designed by herself, at the neckline. She thoughtfully suggested to those receiving with her that they take turns, so none would have to stand up for the whole time. Mrs. Frank Knox, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, took a turn in the line, wearing black velvet and a flowered toque.

Others who assisted in receiving were the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Harold R. Stark, Mrs. Lewis Compton, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Husband Kummel, wife of the newly appointed commander of the Fleet.

Navy Officials In Majority

Guests were mostly high-ranking officials of the Navy, with a few civilian friends of the Forrestals to round out the party. Pouring tea were Mrs. Louis McC. Little, whose husband, Gen. Little, also was present; Mrs. George T. Pettengill, who wore a little ostrich feather hat with her black dress; Mrs. John Towers, also in black, with a white feather turban; Mrs. Alan Kirk, Mrs. Ray Spear, Mrs. Harry A. Stuart and Mrs. Chester Nimitz. The long table in the dining room was centered with red roses massed in a crystal bowl.

Rear Admiral Towers, who was among those present, said that he and his wife are looking for a new home. Their present residence they lease from Admiral James Richardson, former commander of the Fleet, who is coming back to Washington in the near future.

Mrs. Pott, wife of the Naval Attache of the British Embassy, was among the wives of foreign-service officials present. The Air Attache of the Canadian Legation was there, without Mrs. Kenny, who is one of the numerous flu victims. Also a guest was Maj. Ferry, English airplane manufacturer, who is now in Washington with the British air mission. The Naval Attaches of many of the Latin American countries also were in the group.

Mrs. Sheldon Works for Ball

Mrs. William Sheldon told friends that she is hard at work selling tickets to the "phantom ball of the Navy Relief Society. There won't be a ball this winter; instead, the money ordinarily raised by ticket selling all will go to Great Britain.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Hayne Ellis, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles Oman, Capt. Mark Deyo, Capt. John F. Shafroth were some of those present from Navy circles.

Mrs. George A. Garrett's rust-colored, fur-trimmed suit was topped off by a hat trimmed with roses. Mrs. Albert Dewey wore a sable jacket over her dress and a black hat with a blue ostrich plume.

Mrs. Kenna Elkins and Mrs. F. Moran McConihe were others present from residential Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carusi came in, she wearing a fur-trimmed coat and no hat.

Others seen were Mrs. Waggaman Pulver, in black with a white gardenia; Mrs. William MacCracken, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Robert Coe and dozens more.

Marcia O'Brien to Bow

Col. and Mrs. James O'Brien will entertain at a reception this afternoon from 4 to 6 to introduce their debutante daughter, Miss Marcia O'Brien. The party will take place at the Officers Club of the Army War College.

Bruce Smiths Give Dinner For the Clarks

Judge and Mrs. Charles Clark, of New Haven, were honor guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith at dinner last evening at the Mayflower Hotel. After the dinner, the hosts took their guests on to the Washington Ballet performance at the Wardman Park Theater.

In the company were Justice Frank Murphy, Mrs. William O. Douglas, who came without her husband as he is recuperating from influenza; Mrs. Thurman Arnold, whose husband is out of town, and Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Samuel O. Clark, with whom Judge and Mrs. Clark are staying during their Washington visit.

Earlier yesterday, Mrs. Clark was feted at a luncheod given by Mrs. Arnold at her home near McLean, Va. Other guests included Mrs. Hugo Black, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. George Pierce Baker, jr., Mrs. Lewis M. Dabney, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Arthur Whiteside.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O. Clark will entertain their house guests at a cocktail party this afternoon from 5 to 7 at the Clark home, 916 Goldsboro Road, Bethesda, Md.

Relatives Visit The Deweys; Party Scheduled Tonight

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey have been joined for the week-end by Mrs. Dewey's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham, jr., of New York. They will entertain for the visitors at a dinner this evening, when the guests will include members of the younger married set.

On Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey will go to New York for a week's tour of theaters and night clubs.

Mrs. Tuckerman Is in Philadelphia

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman is in Philadelphia for the weekend where she attended the Friday evening dinner dance at the Bellvue Stratford Hotel. She also visited her daughter, Miss Margaret Tuckerman, who is a student at Bryn Mawr.

Mrs. Tuckerman, who is chairman of the British American Ambulance Corps, announces that they plan a benefit performance of "Queen of Destiny," a British film starring Anna Neagle. The show will be on February 4, at 9 p. m. Assisting in arrangements is Mrs. Robert Stewart-Richardson, who is vice chairman of the ambulance group.

Jerzy Potockis Expected in D. C. Next Thursday

A visit to be looked forward to by Capital society is that which the former Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, and his countess are planning to make in Washington. They will arrive next Thursday and will be at the Carlton Hotel for several weeks.

The countess, who has been in Peru, flew up by clipper and joined her husband on Tuesday, his birthday, in Miami. They are vacationing there before coming north.

With them is their small son, Stanislaus, who has been in South America with his mother.

Mr., Mrs. C. W. Proctor Parents of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Proctor are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter a few days ago at Garfield Hospital.

Mrs. Proctor was the former Miss Kathryn Randall, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Joseph F. Randall.

Has House Guests; Plans Party

Entertaining visitors for the weekend are Mrs. William D. Byron (above) and her husband, Representative Byron, of Maryland, who have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Edgar H. Myers, of Moorestown, N. J. This evening the Byrons will gather in a few friends, including several officers from Annapolis, for an informal dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Myers, the former of whom is a graduate of the Uited States Naval Academy. The party will take place at the house Representative Byron has taken for the season at 3117 Woodley Road

Mrs. Holdrege Hostess at Tea

Several very small teas wen on the boards yesterday afternoon as a definite lull settled over party-jaded Washington. Mrs. Carlton Holdrege gathered in a few congenial friends to sip and chat.

Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the Undersecretary of War, entertained at tea for wives and newcomers in her husband's immediate office. The party took place from 5 until 6 o'clock at her home on Thirty-fifth street. Pouring tea were Mrs. William Bryden, Mrs. Julian Schley and Mrs. R. M. Danford and Mrs. E. S. Adams.

Another small party was the cocktail fete given by Mrs. Fred Britten at her home on Sheridan Circle. The party was in honor of Mrs. Edward Logan, of Boston, who is visiting Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould.

With Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, who was a house guest of Mrs. Gould earlier in the week, Mrs. Logan came down to Washington in time for the festivities accompanying Inauguration.

Author Cohn Visits D. C.

Many Dinners On Calendar

A record number of dinners will accent this evening's social calendar. Among those who will entertain are the Surgeon General and Mrs. James C. Magee, who will fete Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Raymond Metcalfe. Guests will include Col. and Mrs. Joseph Siler, Col. and Mrs. Henry F. Pipes, Col. and Mrs. Eugene R. Whitmore and Col. and Mrs. George Lull.

Mrs. William N. Doak, widow of the one-time Secretary of Labor, will entertain at Notre Nid, her Virginia home, in honor of Mrs. John Boothe, of Dallas, Tex., who has been the guest of her daughter, Miss Irene Boothe, since the Inauguration. Accompanying Mrs. Boothe to Washington was her son, John Boothe, jr.

Among those who will entertain at dinners before the last of the "three dances" tonight are Spottswood White and the First Secretary of the French Embassy and Baroness Baeyens.

Stoners to Entertain

Dr. and Mrs. William Stoner, of Tilden Gardens, have issued invitations for a dinner party next Saturday evening.

Irving Harris Gives Dinner For Mrs. Atwill

ONE OF THE GAYEST parties on last night's calendar was the dinner given by Irving Harris, of New York, at the 1925 F Street Club. The guest of honor was Mrs. Lionel Atwill, of Washington, and the company included a number of official and social notables.

Several additional guests who had attended dinners elsewhere joined the Harris party later in the evening. Young's Orchestra from Baltimore played for dancing, and the party went merrily along until the not so early morning hours.

In the dinner company were Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, Senator Theodore F. Green, former Senator Henry Ashurst, Senator George L. Radcliffe, Admiral and Mrs. George T. Pettengill, Admiral and Mrs. John Towers, Gen. Allen T. The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

R. BILTON LAWSON, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bilton Lawson, of The Trap, Loudoun County, was badly injured in California a few days ago when a horse he was schooling fell on him, breaking three ribs and puncturing a lung.

Mr. Lawson is manager of Mrs. Elizabeth Altemus Whitney's stable of horses in California. It was one of the famous grays of Mrs. Whitney's string which fell with Mr. Lawson, and the horse was also injured.

Mrs. Whitney left her estate, Llangollen, for California as soon as she heard of the seriousness of the accident. From the doctor at San Diego hospital the Lawsons have just learned that their son's condition was improved.

MISS Elizabeth Wilbur, debutante daughter of Mrs. Frederick Haserick, of Warrenton, has received an invitation to the Saint Cecelia Ball in Charleston, S. C. This is quite an honor, as only 15 extra invitations outside of South Carolina, were sent out.

Miss Wilbur's great-great-grandfather, Capt. James Heyward North, was one of the charter members of the Saint Cecelia Ball. Mrs. Haserick was the former Miss Jane Forbes, of Warrenton, and her cousin, Edward Chisolm of Charleston, is now vice president of the Saint Cecelia. It's the oldest annual ball in America.

Because of an epidemic of "flu" in Charleston, the ball has been postponed to February 20. It was to have taken place last night.

COLIN MacLEOD, Jr., gave a doinner at his home, Huntland, on Tuesday evening, later taking his guests on to the dance given by Stephen C. Clark, in Middleburg. Among those he asked were Mr. and Mrs. Robinson McIlvaine, Mr. and Mrs. Newell J. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Dudley, Mrs. William Fiske, Miss Eleanor Keith, Miss Margaret Byrd, Miss Laura Sprague, Miss Jane Wilbur, Mike Kerr, Jamie McCormick, Henry Frost and Steve Clark.

MISS Nancy Leiter and Charles Thomas Clagett, of Washington, whose engagement was announced recently, spent last week-end in Middleburg as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newell J. Ward, jr. Miss Jane Wilbur, of Warrenton, was also a guest.

The Wards gave a dinner on Saturday for their guests and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White were hosts at a luncheon on Sunday at their home, Chilton, in honor of the house party. About 25 members of the younger set were asked.

MR. and Mrs. Courtland H. Smith gave a dinner on Tuesday for a few intimate friends in celebration of Mrs. Smith's birthday. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Pilson and Mrs. Ruth Lester Buchanan, who motored out from Washington and spent the night; Mr. and Mrs. Dion Kerr, Miss Lucy Lyon Stone, Lee Evans and Reginald Smith.

MRS. Southgate Morison, of Washington; Mrs. William H. Goodacre, of Oxon Hill, and Mrs. Scott Breckinridge, of Lexington, Ky., motored to Middleburg from Washington a few days ago to lunch with Mrs. Goodacre's daughter, Mrs. Aldrich Dudley, jr.

Lieut. J. Mackenzie Tabb has arrived from V. M. I. in Lexington, Va., where he is stationed, to spend several days of leave at his home near Middleburg.

Miss Betty Hitchcock, of Connecticut, has returned to her home after a visit of several days at Stoke, near Aldie, as the guest of Miss Martha Harris and her brother, Sandy Harris. Miss Hitchcock spent November in Middleburg, hunting with the different packs, and will return later for more hunting.

Van Houtens Give Dinner at Home

The First Secretary of the Netherlands Legation and Mme. van Houten were hosts at a dinner last night at their home in Westmoreland Hills.

The guests included the Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Countess van Rechteren Limpurg, the Secretary of the Swedish Legation and Mme. van Bergh, Mrs. Hugh Cumming, jr. (Mr. Cumming is ill) and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krock.

The van Houtens will be hosts at a cocktail party this afternoon.

Big Sisters Plan To Buy Camp Boat

A group of young people met at luncheon yesterday at the Sulgrave Club to discuss plans for raising money for a sailboat at Camp Ernest Brown, Scotland, Md.

How to Better Complexion? Stand on Head

By Ida Jean Kain

FOR one reason and another, it appears to be a very sound idea to stand on your head once a day!

The Yogis claim that it stimulates the action of the endocrine glands, which are always getting the blame when anything goes wrong with one's weight. It is generally conceded that a headstand is an excellent means of strengthening the antigravity muscles so important to youth and beauty.

And now along comes Elaine Shepard with the assertion that it's the world's best complexion aid! Miss Shepard is so pulchritudinous that she is very noticeable even in the all-beautiful cast of "Panama Hattie." Her complexion is the fresh, schoolgirl variety women pine for—and all due, she says, to the habit of standing on her head for 30 seconds a day.

She also has a schoolgirl figure—weight, 124 pounds for height of 5 feet 5½ inches, and these measurements: bust, 33 inches; waist, 23 inches; hips, 34 inches; thigh, 20 inches; calf, 12¼ inches; ankle, 8 inches. It's the figure James Montgomery Flagg and other famous artists regard as ideal, and she has their official nomination as the perfect model.

It's Your Risk

If you want to try standing on your head, you will do so strictly at your own risk. But here is the way the beautiful Elaine says to start going about it:

Stand about 8 or 10 feet away from a wall, get a running start, turn it into a handspring, flip your heels over your head and there you are, balanced neatly on your hands with your feet against the wall. The way she does it, it looks easy!

Anyone who is supple—and perhaps not afraid of breaking her neck—is supposed to be able to do that. If there is any difficulty in turning this wall cartwheel, it is probably because your elbows are weak and you can fix that with this little number: stand a few inches out from the wall and facing it, hands on the wall chest level. Get someone to grasp your shoulders and push you toward the wall as you resist with your arms.

It may be that you prefer to confine yourself to exercises which can be performed in the usy-daisy position. I like to believe you can get practically the same results!

Ironing Board Exercise

Get out the ironing board and prop one end on a stout bench or stool, letting the other end rest on the floor. Get aboard with feet up, head down, and do your exercises. A good one is to raise alternate legs from the hips. Keep knees straight and raise the leg until it forms a right angle with the trunk. Another is to flex alternate knees to chest—flex and straighten. For a third workout, flex the knees and keep them flexed while you do the bicycle exercise—that forces you to use the hip muscles! Start with 5 minutes' daily exercise in this position and gradually work up to 15 minutes—never do more than that!

Elaine does another version of standing on her head, by the way, that looks like the Indian rope trick! She loves outdoor sports and has marked up 200 pins in bowling. Her recommendation is that you choose your own exercise but have a variety and do it! "No woman over 20 can hold her own," she declares, "unless she exercises every day. After that age, she can't afford to rest on her laurels. It takes 10 minutes' exercise a day to keep the muscles in tone."

Outdoor Play in Winter Calls for New Beauty Plans

By Carolyn Abbott

WINTER is in the air. Snow covers the mountain trails. Sports women everywhere are impatient to try their skill on skis or ice skates. Whether you join the ski group at Sun Valley, Idaho, or merely plan to take a few turns on your skates when the Lincoln Memorial Pool freezes over, it's time to start making your beauty plans for winter sports.

To change abruptly from a background of steam heat to one of blustery wind, ice and snow, you must develop a slightly different technique and invest in a few special preparations to preserve your pretty skin. If you let your skin get chapped, you not only experience pain but also have the problem of overcoming parched or roughened skin before you can expect to achieve a perfect make-up job.

Natural Bloom

Since the exercise puts natural bloom into your cheeks, it's silly to apply rouge before you start skating or hiking in the snow. Unless the rouge is completely natural and blends in perfectly with your skin, when your cheeks get flushed from exercise you'll have splotches of artificial looking color on your face. You'll need a good lipstick for protection. Choose the creamiest, oiliest lipstick you can find. A soft shade will look more natural after you've been skiing or skating a few minutes. A treasure for any outdoor girl is what its makers call a foundation lipstick. No matter how blustery the day this colorless lipstick will help keep your lips smooth and moist. You can wear it by itself if you take your sports plain or put your favorite shade over it. Or if you prefer, you can apply a bit of your protective face lotion to your lips before adding your lipstick.

As fundamental a part of your equipment as skates and skis is the right kind of cream or lotion to keep the cold from drying or chapping your skin. There is a "sports cream" with which you can rub from head to toe, both before you go out and as soon as you come in again. Also specially designed for the purpose is a "ski cream," which you even rub over your eyelids to lessen glare of sun and snow. This absorbs sufficiently into the skin to act as a foundation. Still other preparations are foundation lotions that protect the skin.

For Sensitive Skins

One a creamy "wind and weather lotion," protects the skin from cold, prevents chapping and is all the powder base you need. Another foil to cold weather bites is a "winter complexion duo," a neat little trick of foundation lotion and face powder. The foundation lotion contains special protective ingredients to counteract the drying out and chapping caused by ice and snow. The powder also contains a protective film. These two beauty partners come packaged in a pretty blue box with soft pink accents.

Designed especially for sensitive skins that chap and flake easily is a "sensitive skin foundation" that comes for both oily and normal and dry skins. "Skin Bloom," another product of the same manufacturer, is made with special oils to offset the damage of ice and snow.

Early American Furniture Trend

Early American and Colonial styles in furniture are gaining steadily in favor. Newly important also is a blending of Regency, Federal American and Eighteenth Century periods into a contemporary style that "goes with everything."

Modern furniture that is lighter weight and has simplified lines is being used for small homes and apartments as never before.

Here's a tip. Don't let your choice of furniture be limited. Your dealer can't carry everything, but he can get what you want—quickly. Motor transport brings furniture factories within easy reach. The pieces you want in the style you like can be shipped to you speedily in specially built truck trailer vans.

Engaged to Be Married, Girl Wonders Whether To Tell Fiance of Adolescent Tragedy Which Befell Her, As Result of Rowdy Associations

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When I was in my teens I got mixed up with a high school crowd, whose members thought the only way to prove they were "grown up" was to drink themselves stupid every day and every night. Never having been allowed to go out, I was no end pleased when they wanted me in their "inner circle." So I cheerfully joined them and got just as drunk as they did. Also, I got "in trouble"—to use that convenient phrase for describing the greatest tragedy that can befall a girl.

Seven months later I went through hell—because I had been afraid to go to my mother with my problem. I nearly died, and even today I am not in good health. So far as I know, no one but the doctor and my mother knows what I went through. And I understand that I can still have children, if I take proper care of myself.

But the crux of my present problem is this: I have been going with a young man several years older than I, who was married at an early age, and whose family had the marriage annulled. We are very much in love and plan to be married this June. I want to know if I should tell him about my "past?"

As I have said, only my mother and the doctor know the whole story,—but I was in a hospital, and I am afraid some member of the hospital staff may cross my path at some future day, and that he (my fiance) might learn indirectly the reasons for my hospitalization. What do you think? Incidentally, I am no longer associated with that old crowd. I have really reformed. May I have you answer soon? E. V. C.

Review Problem With Gynecologist

DEAR E. V. C.; Fear of loose-tongued exposure should not drive you to burden your fiance with a knowledge of that wretched chapter in your past. It is not probable that he ever would hear the story from another,—and certainly not from doctors, nurses or hospital attendants, all of whom are schooled and habituated to professional reticence concerning the cases they treat.

Whether he is ethically entitled to know depends, in my opinion, upon whether the experience has permanently impaired your health, to a degree which would incapacitate you for normal wifehood and motherhood. Or, upon whether in hugging the secrets to your breast—with a guilty sense of "deceiving" him—you would be setting up a psychic barrier between yourself and him, which would make for progressive morbidity of behavior on your part, and consequent increasing emotional estrangement from him.

If you had emerged from the frightful experience organically sound; and if, in the years since then, you had developed a compassionately philosophical and deeply understanding attitude toward human frailty, plus an unshakable belief in the all-importance of morally disciplined behavior,—you would be, today, a woman spiritually reborn to a higher plane of strength and perception; and fully entitled to keep your own counsel regarding the ordeal through which you have passed.

However, the fact that there is some doubt of your future childbearing capacity, when combined with your defensively uneasy conscience, suggests to me that you need to review your problem thoroughly with a gynecologist, in order to determine how much (if anything) of your so-called "past" your fiance should be told. If a gynecologist's inquiry results in a favorable prognosis—i. e., affords reasonable assurance that you can have children, with proper care—I am sure he would feel called upon to give you, as part of his remedial help, a philosophical slant on the past which would deliver your mind and conscience from its erstwhile melancholy spell.

Yet if, on the other hand, expert diagnosis gave evidence that your chances of motherhood are seriously impaired,—then, of course, you would have an ethical (and perhaps also a social or legal) duty to acquaint your fiance with the truth, before proceeding with your marriage plans.

But your statement of truth, in that event, should be based on the premise that he has a right to know, before he marries you, that there is a probability you cannot have children;—and not on the assumption that his love for you, and desire to marry you, gives him the right to sit in judgment on your character, damning or absolving you, as of today, for an adolescent mistake that you have long since out-lived, sincerely repented and completely forsworn.

M. H.

Boy's Room Color Scheme Changes As He Grows Older

By Elizabeth Mac Rae Boykin

It was a young little room for a blond little boy. And so it was a blue room—blue rug, blue walls, blue painted furniture. For contrast, his mother had traced and painted on the walls bright storybook characters.

All around the walls, where not occupied by furniture, were built low book shelves for toys, books and other treasures. One section of this shelf unit was closed by a drop-top table that could be lifted up to provide a broad working space when needed. Altogether this was a pleasant place indeed for a little boy with lots of business on his mind the live long day.

But the time came around, as it inevitably does, when replacements were in order. New curtains, a new chair cover, a new bedspread. The mother of this little blond boy wanted, sentimentally, to keep everything in blue, but at the age of five, a boy has ideas of his own. And this young man maintained that red was his favorite color, so something would have to be done about that.

That's how the chair came by a scarlet corduroy cover . . . how the white curtains came by the red bias tape across their borders . . . how the bed came by a quilted spread, a white one appliqued with red trains, red airplanes, red automobiles and other things a boy likes.

Butterhorn Rolls Are Easy to Make

Butterhorn rolls have a luxury look, yet they require only a few minutes of the cook's time. Needed equipment is refrigerator dough, a sharp knife, a pan of melted butter, and perhaps a rolling pin. A sprinkling of poppy dresses up the rolls. If desired, the molded dough may be curved into crescent rolls when placed on the greased baking sheet.

Mold and bake enough of these exquisite little rolls for dinner, and keep the remaining dough in the refrigerator for cinnamon rolls at tomorrow's breakfast. Imagination can conjure up other attractive roll shapes. Planning makes possible fresh hot rolls for several meals, a different style each day.

Here is the recipe for making them that comes from the test kitchen of Clara Gebhardt Snyder, Home Economist for the Wheat Flour Institute.

Poppy Seed Butterhorn Rolls—Soften 1 cake compressed yeast in ½ cup lukewarm water. Scald ½ cup milk add 2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, and 2 tablespoons shortening and cool to lukewarm. Add the yeast and 1 whole egg or 2 beaten egg yolks, mixing thoroughly. Stir in 4½ to 5 cups sifted soft wheat flour and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in lightly greased bowl, cover and let rise in warm place 80 to 85 degrees, until doubled in bulk. Punch and mold in rolls.

For butterhorn rolls, roll ball of dough into circular shape about ¼ inch thick. Cut in pie-shaped pieces. Brush with melted butter and roll up, beginning at the wide end. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with poppy seeds (if desired). Place on greased baking sheet and let rise until almost doubled in bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven, 425 degrees, 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: 2½ to 3 dozen rolls.

Blue Found Woman's Best 'Come-Hither'

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 24.—Girls, if you are trying to get a man—or want to keep the one you have—sprinkle your wardrobe generously with navy blue.

It was discovered today that that's the color that gets 'em—not red, as you've been taught.

Eight men were hooked up to a gadget called a psychometer. Then they gazed upon gorgeous models in colored dresses. It was the lady in blue who made their hands the clammiest, their hearts the jumpiest.

The next most agitating colors were coral, beige and green. What happened to red? Nobody knew.

The males who submitted to the psychometer included two actors, Lyle Talbot and Ole Olsen; two theater ushers, a pair of brokers and a couple of blushing football players.

The ushers were the hit of the experiment. One of them had the lowest reaction, 8 points, and the other was high with 32. When the latter's score was announced, a number of the 150 girl students at the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Research, where the test was held, shrieked: "What's his telephone number?"

Perspiration in the palms was the chief factor in the test recordings. Each subject closed his eyes, relaxed. Then with electrodes strapped to his palms, opened his eyes and looked at one color at a time. The machine registered in proportion to the amount of perspiration the color caused.

All of the men declared it was the color and not the model that affected them.

Estate Worth $300,000 Left By S. A. Reeves

Sewell A. Reeves, veteran baker here, left more than $300,000 in Washington real estate in trust for his son and grandchildren. Twenty-one years after the death of the longest lived of the grandchildren, the property is to be distributed among his descendants.

Mr. Reeves had operated an F Street bakery since 1891. Despite his advanced age, he had taken an active part in running the business until last October 19, when he suffered a heart attack which led to his death, December 4, at his home, 1859 Wyoming Avenue Northwest. He was 75.

Petition for probate of Mr. Reeves' will was filed in the District Court yesterday by the National Savings & Trust Co., named executors and trustees. The will was dated July 6, 1933. The trustees were forbidden to sell the real estate.

The estate included property at 1209 F Street Northwest, valued at $229,338; property at 1208 G Street Northwest, valued at $94,271, the Wyoming Avenue home, valued at $17,000, and securities and other property valued at $49,341.

To his son, Algernon Poole Reeves, 3903 Jocelyn Street Northwest, Mr. Reeves left his bakery business, his home and 200 shares of stock in the Washington baseball club. The trustees were directed to lease the quarters occupied by the bakery to Algernon Reeves or his heirs at a generous rental.

Mr. Reeves left $1,000 each to his sister, Mrs. Hattie Reeves Jennings, Springfield, Md.; his brother, Walter R. Reeves, Hagerstown, Md., and his brother, Charles R. Reeves, Front Royal, Va. Mr. Reeves left $500 each to his niece, Kathleen Creel, 2019 I Street Northwest, and his nephew, Sewell Creel. There also was a bequest of $25 a month for life to a sister, Miss Etta Reeves, Front Royal.

Mr. Reeves directed that the remainder of his estate should be held in trust and the income divided equally between Mr. Reeves' son and a granddaughter, Mabel Cunningham, 17, Williamsport, Pa. Upon their deaths, the income they would have received is to be paid to their children for their lives. If either of them should leave no heirs, his share will be paid the other, or their heirs. Twenty-one years after death of the last grandchild, the property is to be divided among their descendants.

Other grandchildren are three children of Mr. Reeves' son, Ann, 21; Katherine, 19, and John, 13.

Mr. Reeves directed that if none of his grandchildren left descendants, the property should go to whoever was his next of kin.

Postal Receipts Set New Record In December

By the Associated Press

Postal receipts during December, which included the Christmas business, broke all previous records, while receipts during the first six months of the current fiscal year (July-December) indicate another record year, Postmaster General Frank C. Walker said yesterday.

December receipts totaled $95,704,678, a gain of more than $6,000,000, or 7.6 per cent, over December, 1939.

In the first six months' period receipts amounted to $408,821,109, a gain of more than $21,000,000, or 5.58 per cent, compared with the corresponding period of the previous year.

Right Man Inaugurated, Too

President Roosevelt has written Joseph E. Davies, chairman of the Inaugural Committee, that the ceremony this year "was the most perfect thing of its kind that has yet occurred." There was, the President said, "an efficiency, a seriousness, and, at the same time, enough color to make people long remember it."

Hebert Backs Overton's Fiscal Plan

Russell Supports D. C. Suffrage; Harris, Maciora Like Police Work

The Overton formula for increasing the Federal Government's annual contribution toward District expenses has gained at least one backer among the new members of the House District Committee, it was learned yesterday.

Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, said that he had discussed the formula with its sponsor, Senator Overton, also a Louisiana Democrat, and intends to support the plan in the House.

Overton introduced the proposal two years ago, and estimated then that it would add about $2,000,000 to the annual "lump sum" Federal contribution of $6,000,000 to the District's running expenses.

His formula would scale the Federal grant to the proportion of Government-owned tax-free land in the District. At the request of Overton, District officials are now preparing a report on the amount of Federal land holdings in Washington to bring up to date the estimates of what the formula would produce.

Hebert, who pronounces his name A-Bear, was city editor of the New Orleans States before he resigned to run for Congress, said that New Orleans had a problem similar to the District's in its tax-exempt property, including Federal buildings and private institutions.

In working on this problem in Washington he said he expected to follow the lead of Senator Overton.

Paper Broke Scandal

It was Hebert's paper that broke the first stories on the Louisiana scandals two years ago. Hebert declared that his main interest in working on the District Committee was "good government." He said he had asked for the assignment and expects to "make a job of it."

Another new committee member, Representative Sam H. Russell (Democrat), former district attorney and district judge in Texas, declared that he favored suffrage for District residents.

As for boosting the lump-sum contribution to the District, Russell said that he wanted to study the problem before discussing it. In general, he said, he favored giving the District "what they need, not what they want."

Representative Oren Harris (Democrat), of Arkansas, and Representative Lucien J. Maciora (Democrat), of Connecticut, also new members of the District Committee, both expressed interest in specializing on Washington police problems. Harris was prosecuting attorney in the thirteenth judicial circuit of Arkansas before election to Congress; Maciora for five years had served as chairman of the police board of New Britain, Conn.

The new members will attend the first meeting of the District Committee at 10:30 a. m. Monday, called by Chairman Randolph of West Virginia, to organize and appoint subcommittees.

Meanwhile, reassignment of four Republican members of the District Committee was approved. They were Representatives Dirksen, of Illinois; Shafer, of Michigan; Bates, of Massachusetts, and Bolles, of Wisconsin. Three Republican vacancies remain to be filled.

Medals were awarded for outstanding work to Peter Deanna, Helena Hall, Melvin Buckner and Dorothea Greenbaum.

The exhibition, which occupies two rooms in the Corcoran Gallery, will be open to the public February 2-23.

Federal Council To Broadcast Contest Rules

The Federal Employes Council will announce rules of its contest tonight on Your Government This Week, the Federal employe program which will be heard over WJSV tonight at 7:45 o'clock. Two winners will be awarded all-expense trips to Florida.

JOHN IHLDER

Guests on tonight's program will be John Ihlder, director of the Alley Dwelling Authority, and B. Frank Bennett, acting regional coordinator of housing to the Advisory Commission of the National Defense Commission. They will discuss housing conditions here.

Jerry Kluttz, editor of The Post's Federal Dairy, will comment on news of interest to Federal employes.

The contest and the program are sponsored by the Federal Employes Council in cooperation with WJSV. The purpose of the program is to give Federal workers an opportunity to discuss welfare and recreational activities.

The two winners of the contest will be sent to St. Petersburg aboard the Silver Meteor. They will be guests of the city for a week.

Delegation of 40 New Yorkers Includes Columnists and Critics

Pretty Anne Shirley and He-Men George Raft and Wayne Morris yesterday agreed to appear here next Thursday in observance of the President's Birthday.

Word came from the West Coast that the three stars would arrive early next week to take part in the birthday ball celebrations. All told, 15 Hollywood celebrities have promised to attend the Capital events.

Today at 2:40 p. m. 5-year-old Carolyn Lee will arrive at Union Station to attend the activities and remain for the world premiere of "Virginia," in which she stars, at the Earle Theater next Friday. Tomorrow at 2:40 p. m. Stirling Hayden, latest romantic lead on the Paramount roster, will reach this city from Richmond, Va., where he has been making personal appearances.

Soon after Hayden arrives, the "Old Acquaintance" company, headed by Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood, will pull in from Broadway. A delegation of 40 New York visitors, including columnists and drama critics, will accompany the troupers. A reception for the cast will be held tomorrow at 5 p. m. at the Hay-Adams House. The entire company giving the "command performance" at the National Theater Sunday night will be White House supper guests after the curtain.

The third annual Y. M. C. A. ball will be held at 9 tonight at the "Y," with all proceeds going toward the infantile paralysis fund. Preston Foster, Paramount headliner, who appeared last night at the Fort Myer horse show, will make a personal appearance at the ball. A grand show is promised by Lee Barbash, chairman.

The three national radio networks will join in broadcasting the Nation-wide celebration of the President's Birthday from 11:15 p. m. to 12:15 a. m., Thursday, January 30. During the one-hour program, President Roosevelt and Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, will speak from the White House, and Keith Morgan, national chairman of the celebrations, will speak from New York City.

Five programs, containing the autographs of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and all of the visiting celebrities, will be auctioned off to the highest bidders at the five birthday balls scheduled for the Shoreham, Washington, Mayflower, Hamilton and Wardman Park hotels.

U. S. Churches to Observe 'Infantile Paralysis Sunday'

Endorsed by leaders of all faiths, Infantile Paralysis Sunday will be celebrated tomorrow in churches throughout the Nation.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington Archdiocese, in a statement urging support of the campaign, said, in part:

"None of us can be indifferent to human suffering. This disease is one which has brought physical distress to hundreds upon hundreds of people in the State of Maryland during the past years. In most instances the illness has affected children. I strongly urge the Catholics of the archdiocese to support the project whose-heartedly."

Said Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America:

"I hope and believe that ministers in all parts of the country and in the constituency of the Federal Council . . . will cooperate warmly in interpreting the praiseworthy objectives of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., in ministering to human suffering.

I a statement on behalf of the members of the Jewish faith, who are celebrating the observance today—their Sabbath—Dr. Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, president of the Synagogue Council of America, declared, in part: "I feel I can say without qualification that American Jews will give their fullest measure of support."

Self-Help Agency Wins Zone Fight

Georgetown Protest Over Proposed Home for Workmen Denied by Board

The Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday dismissed a petition against the Washington Self-Help Exchange to enjoin the agency from using a Georgetown house as a home for 47 of its male workers.

Filed by the Georgetown Progressive Citizens Association, the petition protested an occupancy permit granted by the building inspector for a "boarding house" for 50 male workers. Actually the building inspector's permit was made out for a "home" for 50 male workers. The board threw the case out on this technicality. The house is located at 3213 Q Street Northwest and was formerly used by the Jewish Foster Home.

In other cases, the adjustment board granted ten appeals, turned down four and deferred action on four.

Salvation Army Loses

The appeal of the Salvation Army to establish a philanthropic institution at 1311 G Street Southeast was denied by the board.

Appeals filed by Adams Estate for a gasoline station at Seventeenth and M Streets Northwest and by Leo and Cora L. Frene and by Henry C. Reiner also were denied.

Appeals approved by the board follow:

Rudolph B. Behrend, to continue operation of a sand pit at Forty-ninth and C Streets Southeast.

Arthur Johnson, to use alley in rear of 914-916 N Street Northwest for a warehouse for storage of sheet metal.

Washington Loan & Trust Co., to permit erection of a one-story addition at 3614 Newark Street Northwest.

A. L. Goode to extend a park and shop center at Alabama and Pennsylvania Avenues Southeast.

B. Landsman, to change a nonconforming use from a health food store to a variety and health food store at 4 Ninth Street Southeast.

Parking Lot Allowed

Wilbur F. Nash, to establish an auto parking lot at 120-126 D Street Southwest.

Grace W. Qualls, to change a nonconforming use from a tailor shop to a radio sales repair and electric shop at 3012 Eleventh Street Northwest.

Mayr Shukin, to change a nonconforming use from a grocery store to a grocery store and delicatessen at 313 Second Street Southwest.

R. C. Archer, jr., to permit erection of a one-story rear addition to the dwelling at 215 Florida Avenue Northwest.

Jessie F. Magee, to permit premises at 2304 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest to be used for sale, service and display of safes.

Panel to Discuss Defense Needs

"Essentials to Real Defense" will be discussed by a panel of speakers at a luncheon under the auspices of the People's Lobby at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest, at 12:45 p. m. Saturday.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell, Methodist Bishop for the New York area and president of People's Lobby, will discuss "Equitable Taxation and Social Service." Representative John M. Coffee, of Washington, will speak on "Public Ownership of Natural Resources," and W. Jett Lauck, an economist with the United Mine Workers, will discuss "Socialization of Basic Industries."

The speeches will be broadcast over an N. B. C. network from 1 to 1:30 p. m. The People's Lobby is an information organization on national legislative affairs with a membership of 2,100.

Indiana U. Alumni To Honor Wilsons

Representative Earl Wilson, Indiana Democrat, chosen in the last election, and Mrs. Wilson will be guests of the Washington Chapter, Indiana University Alumni Association, at a breakfast meeting tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at the Kennedy-Warren Hotel.

Wilson will speak and officers will be elected, it was announced by John Reinhard, retiring president.

The nominating committee consists of Dr. Willard Givens, chairman; James L. Feiser, Mrs. Posey Kimes, Jerome W. Shay and Virgil D. Reed.

Jasper Post of Legion Plans Banquet Tonight

Sergt. Jasper Post, No. 13, of the American Legion, will hold its annual testimonial dinner and dance in honor of its junior past post commander, Douglas O. Reed, at the New Colonial Hotel at 7 tonight.

The principal speaker will be J. Monroe Johnson, commissioner of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Others who will speak are Watson B. Miller, national director of rehabilitation for the legion; William H. Hargraves, department commander; Mrs. Imogene Gallagher, auxiliary unit president who served during Mr. Reed's term of office, and Joseph J. Malloy and Mrs. Mary B. McMillin, national executive committeeman and committeewoman of the legion and its auxiliary.

Lutherans Surprise Pastors With Party

Almost 200 members of the Atonement Lutheran Church turned out last night for a surprise testimonial to Dr. Howard E. Snyder and the Rev. James E. Powers, pastor and assistant pastor, and their wives.

Mingling in the parish hall at Rhode Island Avenue and North Capitol Street, they presented the pastor with a lounging robe and fluorescent desk lamp and the assistant with a purse, and heard the Rev. Henry J. Whiting, guest speaker, urge loyalty to the church and its ministers.

A Lutheran Inner Mission official of Baltimore, and a former local cleric, Mr. Whiting earlier joined a receiving line with the other ministers and their wives. Martin McGrory was master of ceremonies, and Dr. James B. Faris was reception chairman.

Her Work Judged Best

RECEIVES HIGHEST SCULPTURE AWARD—Mrs. Dorothea S. Greenbaum, wife of Lieut. Col. Edward S. Greenbaum, of 1245 Twenty-ninth Street Northwest, last night received the year's highest award for sculpture. While Mrs. Greenbaum was in New York, Col. Greenbaum, on duty at the War Department, received a telegram from the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts notifying Mrs. Greenbaum that she had been awarded the Widener Memorial Medal for excellence in sculpture for her work, "Tiny," a life-sized figure statue of a nude woman

Washington National Ballet opens its season Friday night in Wardman Park Theater. Program: Pagliacci (Leoncavallo), Andante from Piano Concerto No. 1 (Chaikovski), Six National Dances to music by Strauss, Azagro, Partichelo, Smetana, Sarasate and Rossini.

At the start of its third season, the Washington National Ballet tried an experiment in operatic choreography last evening in Wardman Park Theater, and the outcome was pleasantly satisfying. The score of "Pagliacci" was stripped of everything not essential to dramatic action, compressed in time, and presented as a mimed play, with Nedda's "Ballatella" retained as a pas seul on the points. Once one had become adjusted to a dumb performance of an opera, it was surprising how little one missed the vocalism. Of course, not many operas would lend themselves to the treatment as pliably as did "Pagliacci," in which so much of the vocal line is carried by the orchestra.

BROWN

Madeleine Lazard impersonated Nedda with grace and agile charm, and her collaborators were Priscilla Herrick as Canio, Mary Lee Smith as Tonio, Mary Day as Beppo and Alice Louise Hunter as Silvio. Fifteen members of the company constituted the ensemble of dancing villagers. A two-piano reduction of the parts of the score used was played by Mary Reynolds and Herbert Herzfeld. Lisa Gardiner, who devised the choreography, is to be congratulated on the success of the venture.

The other major offering was a visualization of the andante from Chaikovski's B flat major piano concerto, with Mary Day and Nikito Talin taking the leading parts. The choreographer read into the music a festive scene in pagan Greece, and that interpretation was made plausible by the classical patterns employed.

Divertissements filled out the program in a series of national dances presented in solos, duos, foursomes and ensembles. There were gypsy dances by Sarasate and Smetana, a manzanilla by Azagro, a jarabe by Partichelo, a czardas by Strauss, a tarantella by Rossini and a chipanecas danced to a Mexican folk tune.

Minna Niemann, pianist, and Henrietta Bagger Plum, mezzo-soprano, give a joint recital Friday afternoon in the Sulgrave Club.

Inclement weather did not prevent good attendance yesterday afternoon at the joint recital given in the Sulgrave Club by Minna Niemann and Henrietta Bagger Plum, and the auditors were rewarded by an enjoyable program. Each of the participants took pains to include some novelties among the familiar music selected, so that both the conservatives and the curious were pleased.

Miss Niemann began with Harriet Cohen's transcription of the choralepreludе, "Ertoedt 'uns durch dein' Guete," from Bach's Church Cantata No. 22, which she played with skilled clarity. She followed this with the first movement of Vivaldi's D minor concerto grosso as transcribed by Alfredo Casella. Later in the program she introduced Walter Niemann's adroit variations on an old English minuet, a lively and interesting composition which ends by transforming the minuet into a hornpipe.

From her regular repertoire she offered Scarlatti's C major sonata, Liszt's version of Paganini's E major caprice, the Brahms intermezzi in A minor and B flat minor, and four Chopin pieces: the preludes in B major, B flat major and F major, and the C minor etude. These she performed with technical fluency and good tonal color. Her fine rhythmic sense and her taste in the accenting of phrases are excellent qualities.

Mme. Plum, who was accompanied ably by Mildred Kolb Schulze, opened her first group with the seldom-heard "Dolorosa Spartenza," by Giovanni Sgambati. Other recital innovations were the "Nachtgang," of Richard Strauss; "Tet Exultavit Sripitus Meus," from Bach's setting of the "Magnificat," and a Danish song, "Arme Hjerte et Du Trat," by Peter Arnold Heise.

Her readings were artistically voiced and emotionally valid.

'Aida' Thrills SRO Audience At National

By Richard L. Coe

Fortune Gallo presents the San Carlo Opera Company in Verdi's "Aida" at the National Theater Friday evening.

THE CAST:

Aida ..... Mobley Lushanya
Amneris ..... Coe Glade
Rhadames ..... Aroldo Lindi
Amonasro ..... Mario Valle
Ramfis ..... Harold Kravitt
The King of Egypt ..... Richard Wentworth
Messenger ..... Francesco Curci
Priestess ..... Charlotte Bruno
Lydia Arlova, Premiere Danseuse
Lucien Prideaux, Premier Danseur
Conductor ..... Carlo Peroni
Stage Director ..... Louis Raybaut

Another Italian's more successful sally into Egypt brought out the Standing Room Only sign at the National last night when Giuseppe Verdi's "Aida" was sung by the San Carlo Opera Company. This afternoon's "Faust" and this evening's "Il Trovatore" conclude the company's current engagement.

Once again the enormous vitality of the Verdi score swept away the physical demands Verdi and Antonio Ghislanzoni, his librettist, make upon the stage picture. The Nile scene was superbly sung and the triumphal scene's vocal demands were met with an effective crescendo that only a knowing group of singers can achieve.

The title role brought back Mobley Lushanya, the American Indian soprano, who was heard earlier in the week as Santuzza. Of brunette statuesque beauty, Miss Lushanya adds a compelling stage appearance to intelligent use of a rich voice. If some of her tones were clouded early in the performance, she more than made up for that in the excellence of the Nile scene in which her full notes were as clean as her pianissimi were clear.

Aroldo Lindi's strong tremolo dampened full enjoyment of his "Celeste Aida," but he got rounds of applause for it from standees to the rafters. By the Nile scene, though, he was at his best and did his part to make it as finely effective as it was.

Amneris was sung by the able Coe Glade. This role has been hers since her Chicago Opera days and she acts as well as sings it. Last night's perceptible cold did not mar her warm, full tones. Harold Kravitt was in excellent voice as Ramfis and Mario Valle's was an acceptably sung Amonasro. Once again, too, the chorus proved itself vital to this workmanlike company's success and one is tempted to add that without Carlo Peroni's expert conducting, the performance could hardly have been given!

Despite obvious disadvantages of a touring company, the San Carloans impressed one that "Aida" does not depend on scenic splendor or exceptional vocal talent. A capable performance guarantees enthusiasm.

Dr. Charles Abbot Renamed to Head Congregationalists

Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, has been reelected president of the Church and Society of First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, it was announced yesterday.

Also reelected were James V. Craig and Hugh A. Thrift, trustees; Miss Marian Smith, treasurer; Dana F. Angier, clerk; Hugh S. Smith and Wales C. Brewster, auditors, and Mrs. Elisa C. Alvord, Edwin C. Blanchard, Mrs. Harvey W. Goddard and Harry A. Whiton, committee members.

Six vacancies on the board of deacons were filled by Philip P. Greenwood E. Donald Preston, Josiah C. Folsom, Harris P. Gould, Ernest S. Hobbs and Ralph A. Simmons. Six vacancies on the board of deaconesses were filled by Mrs. Arthur L. Smith, Mrs. Harry A. Whiton, Mrs. J. Arthur Winn, Miss Mamie L. Collins, Mrs. William Knowles Copper and Mrs. Samuel G. Hallett.

Pepco Told To Cut Bills By $337,004

Rate Reduction Order Follows Annual Hearing; To Be Applied Soon

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday ordered a reduction in electric rates for this year which will save consumers $337,004.32. The order was issued following the annual rate adjustment hearing of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

In announcing this sum available for reduction, the commission not only ordered a larger sum than was offered by the company but increased by $18,688 the figures recommended by its own staff engineers and accountants.

The commission also instructed the company to submit new rate schedules reflecting the $337,004.32 amount to be considered at a hearing Monday at 2 p. m. The commission staff will also submit a new set of rate schedules. These new schedules, in all probabilities, will allocate savings to all types of consumers, such as residential, commercial, industrial and the like.

To Apply Rates Soon

As soon as the commission agrees on a new rate schedule these will be applied to the new bills.

Both the company officials and the commission engineers agreed on the figure representing the operating revenues but parted company on the operating expenses. It is the difference of these amounts, or the net operating income, which determines the amount of money available for rate reductions.

A. G. Neal, president of the company, reported the net amount available for return was $5,429,240, and V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant for the commission, produced a $5,735,353 figure as the net amount available for return.

Under a sliding-scale arrangement, originally entered into between the company and the commission on December 31, 1924, the company returns to its consumers one-half of the excess over a 6 per cent return on its investment.

Their Figures Differ

Neal used $85,130,674 as the weighted rate base (or total investment) of the company. Six per cent of this sum, or the amount of profit which is not returned to the consumer is $5,107,840. The excess of the 6 per cent return, according to Neal's figures, is $321,406.39, and one-half of this amount, or the sum the company offered for rate reduction purposes, is $160,703.20.

The commission staff, however, arrived at a $318,315 figure available for reductions; McElfresh produced a rate base of $84,978,701, 6 per cent of which is $5,098,722. The excess of the 6 per cent return, according to McElfresh, is $636,631.

The company sought, in its figures on operating expenses, to include an amount of $107,310 which accrued on the books in 1938 and 1939 to pay Federal and District income taxes and an amount of $195,058 as a maintenance cost for the retirement of equipment. The commission held this latter should come out of the depreciation reserve and not the operating expenses. The commission also refused to allow deductions for subscriptions to the Greater National Capital Committee and the Cherry Blossom Committee, which the company maintained were operating expenses.

Support Company's View

Edgar Morris, chairman of the committee, and Francis G. Addison, jr., a member of the committee, both appeared at yesterday's hearing supporting the company's contention. They said the committee induces visitors, conventions and permanent residents to this city, thus increasing the amount of electric current used.

The Utilities Commission increased the amount offered by its own staff by increasing the income tax deduction from $107,310 to $144,000, this latter amount being the difference between what the company actually paid in income taxes in 1938 and 1939 and the amounts accrued for this purpose.

Assailant of Marshal To Hear Sentence Friday

Kermit H. Sherman will be sentenced Friday for assaulting Deputy United States Marshal James A. Quinn, who shot him last October 28. Sherman was convicted Thursday night by jurors who deliberated more than eight hours. Quinn testified that Sherman drew a knife when faced with arrest and that he shot in self-defense.

Assistant District Attorney Allen J. Krouse prosecuted Sherman.

Eagles Defeat New York Rovers, 5 to 3, Here

Washington Ties Record With Victory

D. C. Six Is Forced To Rally Twice to Beat Stubborn Foes; Newcomer Is Hero

By Jack Munhall

The Washington Eagles extended their winning streak to eight consecutive matches—tying a season Eastern League record—last night at Riverside Stadium by scoring three times in the final period for a 5-3 victory over a rejuvenated and unusually rough squad of New York Rovers.

Much closer than the final score was this match, which saw the league leaders held even, or worse, for two periods by a New York clothing salesman who, at goal, was playing his first ice hockey match in nearly three years.

In defeat, 28-year-old Gerald Cosby, who runs a sports goods store which furnishes the Rovers their ice hockey equipment, was the big hero of last night's match before 1959, smallest paid attendance of the season. Former goal tender for the Boston Olympics, Cosby, who has not tasted competition since 1938, turned in one of the greatest jobs of goal tending ever witnessed locally as he repelled a Washington club that never has played a harder or more effective game.

In the first period, especially, was Cosby competitively obnoxious to the Eagles who were winning the most difficult victory in their long streak.

Eagles Forced to Rally

Thanks to Cosby, who last played hockey—not counting his recent practices with the Rovers—as a member of an American team touring Europe, the Eagles were twice forced to come from behind for the triumph that enabled them to tie the Boston Olympics' season mark of eight straight victories.

The Rovers led 1-0 in the first period, and forged ahead at 3-2 in the final session before they were swept before the Eagles' determined final flurry in which the work of Paul Courteau was brilliantly conspicuous. Courteau, with two goals, each of which broke a tie, was the leading scorer of the night.

New York was at full strength for the first time in more than a month as Julius Sawchuck, Bob Brownbridge and Frank Parker rejoined the line-up.

Falling behind, 1-0, in the first period the Eagles played some of their best hockey in two seasons to deadlock the score in the fastest, cleanest 20 minutes of ice hockey ever witnessed here.

The rejuvenated Rovers swung out at the start of the period and only the fine goal tending of Hemming prevented several New York scores in the opening two minutes. The Rovers were not to be denied, however, and at 3:30 Dotten scored with the assistance of Kreller.

Washington muffed a scoring opportunity provided by a holding penalty against Lemieux, but came back at 12:29 to knot the count at 1-1 as Courteau tallied on the rebound of a missed shot by Dewey. Goalie Crosby, of New York, was sprawled on the ice frantically waving his arms in front of him to stop the shot, but Courteau lifted it over him.

The Eagles were outplayed most of the second period, but the continued stellar goal tending of Hemming enabled them to leave for the last intermission with the score tied at 2-2. And, ironically, New York was very fortunate to tally its second goal which came just 44 seconds before the end of the session.

The Rovers reclaimed the lead at 3-2 early in the third period amid furious action. Hollinger fed the puck to Hamilton, who scored on a high, hard one from 15 feet out, but the Eagles stormed back to clinch the match on goals by Courteau and Burns.

Walker Captures Amateur Golf Title

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 24 (U.P.)—Bobby Walker, diminutive player from Jacksonville, today won the sixteenth annual Florida winter amateur golf championship by defeating Dick Van Kleek, of Ponte Vedra, Fla., 2 and 1, in the 36-hole finals.

Each shot an 86 and ended the morning round all square. The two finalists continued matching strokes and were even through the fifteenth hole on the afternoon round.

Walker laid a seven-iron drive 6 feet from the pin on the 130-yard sixteenth and holed out for a birdie two, beating Kleek's par 3. Kleek sliced his drive on the seventeenth and ended with a five, while Walker stayed down the middle of the fairway and took the hole, and the match, with a four.

Rocksie Wins Twice In Fort Myer Show

Margaret Cotter's Stellar Campaigner Steals Spotlight on Final Night of President's Birthday Benefit Event With Fine Work

By Anne Hagner

Choosing an auspicious moment to turn in a clean performance, Margaret Cotter and Rocksie became the hit of the evening with 1,700 fans at the President's Birthday Horse Show by winning the "take-your-choice" jumping class, feature of the early card at Fort Myer last night.

Although Rocksie's brilliant round was the only faultless one in the class, it was missed by the show's star guests, the Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, whose belated arrival occurred while Mrs. Altemus Whitney's First Night and the Government's High Time were jumping off for second place, with the first ribbon already decided.

Of the 33 leapers entered in the class, only 3 got past the sixth fence of the optional course as a quartet of closely grouped jumps proved the undoing of practically everyone concerned.

By virtue of their triumph in the open jumpers class, later in the evening, Miss Cotter and Rocksie were awarded a large silver trophy by the new Vice President. Second place went to Lieut. Fred Hughes, jr.'s Black Caddy.

Back in Old Stride

Rocksie's ribbon-winning in open class is, of course, no unusual happening, but it was notable last night because the bay halfbred was making a comeback after a year's temporary retirement due to his young owner's spinal operations.

First Night's placing in the awards, likewise, was a source of discussion among the railbirds, for the good-looking chestnut's previous showring experience has been confined to the conformation hunters' division. Rider Norman Haymaker, who has spent most of his life schooling young hunters that later developed into national champions, was also marking down a few important "firsts" in his career—last night was the first time he ever either saw or participated in an indoor show or jumped a horse over such obstacles as a Toronto bank or a hogsback, two of the toughest fences in open jumping classes. All this is most surprising because Norman has been showing horses all

Host Pro Tops Field in Bing's $3,000 Tourney

By the Associated Press

Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., Jan. 24. Home Pro Bill Nary lifted the $3,000 Bing Crosby Golf Tournament out of the doldrums today.

He blasted five strokes off par and tied the course competitive record of the Rancho Santa Fe Country Club with a 67 to lead the field in the first stages of this fifth annual event.

A dark horse setting the pace for an array of dark horses, the young former caddy from Los Angeles made the tournament committee forget about the earlier rains of the day and gave the more prominent professionals who play their first round tomorrow something to shoot at and worry about.

Nary, who knows every blade of grass of this par 36, 36—72 course, posted 9-hole scores of 35, 32, tying the record Big Ed Oliver hung up last year in his winning round, and almost came in with a 66. He lost a penalty stroke on the eighteenth when his tee shot landed in a barranca and was forced to lift out. He took a spoon and reached the green and was down in two putts for a par 5.

Three strokes back of Nary was Marvin Stahl, of Lansing, Mich., with 36—34—70, while Gordon Brunton, Riverside, Calif., and Lorman Kelly, Philadelphia, were tied at 71. Emery Zimmerman, Portland, Oreg., occupied the 72 bracket alone.

North Carolina Hands Terps 55-36 Setback

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

North Carolina's Southern Conference champions and All-American center, George Glamack, managed to hand the University of Maryland five its ninth consecutive defeat, but both the Tarheels and the big center suffered a loss of prestige in the 55-36 victory last night at College Park.

Glamack, the 6-foot-5 senior, who brought a 22½-point-per-game average into the conference game, watched it drop as he threw in only four field goals and a pair of fouls for 10 points in the approximately 25 minutes Coach Bill Lange kept him in the one-sided contest.

Coach Burt Shipley put two men on the big center and Bob Fetters stuck to him like a glued glove while he was in there to partially account for Glamack's percentage drop.

Ochsenreiter Held

It was a bad night for the high-scoring stars all around as Maryland's Gene Ochsenreiter, himself sporting a 13-point-a-game average, tossed in only two baskets for four points, although his floor game was about the best of the two clubs.

Glamack, who gets under the basket and stays there on offense, tapped in an early two-pointer to give Carolina a 2-0 lead, and they were out in front to stay, leading, 18-6, at one point in the first half and holding a 26-16 margin at intermission.

The second half was a duplicate of the first, the Tarheels holding to their advantage in the early play and then gradually increasing it as both coaches made frequent use of their reserves. The Tarheels used 12 players and Maryland its 10-man squad, as usual.

Glamack was of more value as a defensive player than offensive as he seldom failed to get the ball of the Maryland backboard when the Terp shooters missed.

Glammack played second fiddle to two teammates as far as individual efforts were concerned, Jimmy Howard, a 5-foot 9 guard who was in on the ball throughout and managed to flip in five field goals.

Scoring honors for the night went

D. C. Gets American Hockey League Berth

Uline Officially Granted Franchise for Next Season; Keen Battle Between Two Loops Predicted for Washington

By the Associated Press

The American Hockey League yesterday granted a franchise to Washington, bringing the circuit's membership to ten.

Washington will start play next season in the recently completed Uline Arena of which Mike Uline is general manager, according to the league president, Maurice Podoloff.

Podoloff also reported the league receipts for the nine clubs were $90,000 above last year's figures for the same period and the extension of the agreement with the National Hockey League until the close of the playoffs.

Sportsmen See Keen Competition

District sports promoters and enthusiasts generally agreed last night that the granting of an American League ice hockey franchise to Mike Uline would touch off next season a "survival of the fittest" battle between Uline's team and the Washington Eagles of the Eastern League.

Those interviewed by The Post were of the opinion that ice hockey would continue to grow in popularity here, but that it was doubtful if Washington would support two big-time clubs.

Joe Turner, veteran boxing and wrestling promoter, summed up the consensus in his statement which follows:

Must Play Better Game

"Washington demands a winner in any sport and I believe the team that provides the best hockey and the best accommodations for its fans is the team which will survive. Uline will start out under a handicap because the other bunch has a two-year start on him and they're leading their league.

"However, if Uline's team gets off well and can prove that the hockey played in their league is superior to that of the Eastern

Mike Jacobs To Stage Bouts For Britain

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 24.—At the request of a group of British sportsment, Promoter Mike Jacobs today agreed to stage a series of boxing shows throughout this country between picked teams of American and English professional fighters for the benefit of the British Red Cross and Canteen Service.

One of the fights would be a heavyweight title bout, with Joe Louis defending his crown for the second time against Tommy Farr.

Jacobs said he was prepared to put on the shows in New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. The entire plan hinges on whether the British sportsmen can obtain permission from their government to send the fistic mission here.

The request was made through Nat Fleischer, editor of the Ring magazine. He said the Britons, who requested that their names be withheld, asked him to contact Jacobs to learn if the promoter would agree

The sportsmen said, Fleischer added, that the British team they have in mind includes Farr and five British champions in lighter divisions. These would be Light-Heavyweight Len Harvey and Middleweight Jock McAvoy, both of whom campaigned in this country some years ago; Welterweight Ernie Roderick, who was outpointed by Henry Armstrong in a world title bout in London in 1939; Lightweight Eric Boone and Flyweight Jackie Paterson.

Davey O'Brien Loses Damage Suit Against Beer Co.

By International News Service

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 24.—Davey O'Brien, former all-American Texas Christian quarterback and later with the Philadelphia Eagles' professional football team, lost a suit today for $50,000 damages against a beer company.

O'Brien charged the company had used his picture on advertising without permission. However, O'Brien's name was not used nor was any indorsement attributed to him.

Federal Judge William H. Atwell ruled that since O'Brien had become a public figure, he was without ground to sue because his picture had been printed. Davey now is in Washington, D. C., receiving training as a G-man.

Byrd Not Available For Coast Golf Job

San Francisco, Jan. 24 (AP).—Sam Byrd, former New York Yankees baseball player who has made professional golf a successful career, is not available for the pro job at the San Francisco Olympic Club's Lakeside course.

One of the directors said Byrd had requested the club's golf committee to withdraw his name. He had not applied, but his name was proposed by some of the committee members. Byrd now is playing out of Ardmore, Pa.

RACING DEPT.—The folks who are backing Whirlaway as the winter book favorite in the Kentucky Derby are gambling that the colt by that time will be rid of his distressing habit of running to the outside rail.

POVICH

It was this strange persistence that cost Whirlaway defeat in at least three races last year. The colt, which Warren Wright, the owner of Calumet Farms, describes as the greatest horse he ever owned, would have led the 2-year-olds of 1940 by an even greater margin than he did if he had not displayed what was a seemingly incurable aversion to close quarters.

His various riders last season were unable to drive Whirlaway between horses or save ground running close to the rail, despite the colt's tremendous stretch speed. When Whirlaway did win, it was always by the overland route. At the turn into the stretch he lit out for the farthest rail and gave away precious ground.

But the fact that Whirlaway did lead the 2-year-olds with seven victories in his 16 starts is something of a tribute to him, because in every case he was forced to make up ground he had tossed off by his bolting tactics on the turns. He simply insisted on running that way. In two races at Belmont last summer, where the size of the track permitted the races to be run entirely on the straightaway course, Whirlaway was lost. Unless he could run in a wide loop, he couldn't win.

Jockey Johnny Longden attempted to ride him with a short left stirrup that would permit Longden to bear heavily toward the inside rail, but it was no use. Whirlaway, renegade that he is, wanted to run around horses instead of between them.

But the suspicion among turf folks is that in the Kentucky Derby Whirlaway is still a good bet. The mile and a quarter of that race will be more suited to his outside loop and is the perfect race for the stretch runner Whirlaway appears to be.

BASEBALL DEPT.—Before the 1941 season is out, maybe before it begins, there is high possibility that the American League will junk the rule that forbids the pennant-winning team of the season before to make deals within the league.

The Detroit Tigers are the team affected by that rule this season and it is because Detroit happens to be the team affected that the rule may not last. It may not last because there is a likelihood that the rule will hit the league's club owners where it hurts most—in the pocketbook.

For years Detroit has been the most profitable town in the league for visiting clubs, which took bigger checks away from Tiger town than from any other city. But there is now fear that Clark Griffith's no-trade rule may ruin Detroit as a baseball town in 1941. The Tigers are badly in need of infield replacements, and they are threatened also with the induction of Hank Greenberg into the Army.

With their infield what it is, and Greenberg apt to be out of their lineup, the Tigers would be in a horrible fix in 1941. If they are not a drawing card in Detroit, as they may not be under the circumstances, then the entire league will take a financial beating.

The league already is carrying three none-too-profitable entries as far as visiting clubs are concerned—St. Louis, Philadelphia and Washington. The addition of Detroit to that group would be a horrible blow and the club owners would act quickly to lift the trade ban against the Tigers if their income were threatened as a result of the present rule.

At the first sign of a sharp downward trend in attendance at Detroit due to the Tigers' inability to fill the gaps by purchasing or trading for new talent, Mr. Griffith's rule will go out the window by popular demand of the club owners, or we don't know baseball owners.

ICE HOCKEY DEPT.—It looks like war, no less, on Washington's hockey front. The Eagles, who have had the patronage to themselves for two years and have begun to return a tidy profit to Mr. S. G. Loeffler will have to compete next season with an American League team that will install itself in the Uline Arena.

Mr. Mike Uline is museling into the hockey picture here with a team in a league that is rated a cut above the Eastern Amateur League in which the Eagles are moving. He thinks Washington fans will go for better hockey at better prices.

It's difficult to foretell, though, how Washington's hockey fans are going to react to it all. The Eagles have sort of entrenched themselves here, as the growing crowds attest. Actually, it is no amateur league in which they are competing. The name is a misnomer. The amateur angle is a sham to cover the status of the Canadian players in the league who are regarded as amateurs.

In the final reckoning the old law of survival of the fittest will probably decide the winner in the battle for patronage. Uline's team will do all right and possibly force the Eagles out of the picture if it is a winning team. The Eagles are that, and they have a fair chance to hold their fans unless the Ulines also come up with a winning team. Perhaps the Eagles will hold their fans anyway, because actually American League hockey isn't a whole lot better than Eastern League hockey and the fact is that the Eagles can probably lick most of the clubs in the American League.

Honolulu, Jan. 24.—"The reason you don't hear any more about any good Hawaiian swimmers is that the boys today are too lazy. They have things too soft," Duke Kahanamoku explained, as he cocked one of his size 13 puppies up on a chair in the cocktail bar of the Royal Hawaiian, and looked out on Waikiki and its aquamarine waves.

CONSIDINE

"It was different when I was a kid on this beach," the well-conditioned 50-year-old former Olympic ace told us. "When my father had his fishing boat he used to take us kids out when we were 4 and 5 years old. And if we got seasick he'd throw us overboard . . . to make us well. We had to learn to swim early—at least far enough to swim to the outrigger, so we could hold on, until we were not sick any more.

"Today the boys on the beach have everything. Even surfboards from Cincinnati, Ohio. Our surfboards were kerosene cans that we'd beat flat with stones. Swimming? We just picked up our form. Sometimes we'd stumble on something good. When I was a kid the good swimmers from the mainland, when they'd come over here, all used the trudgeon. They'd kick their legs like a scissors, once or twice, then two or three flutter kicks, and back to the scissors. But I figured out that it would be better just to kick that flutter kick. I'm pretty sure I was the first to use it all the time. I had to try one thing and another, but I finally found that if I kicked my feet six times for every stroke I took with my arms, I got the most speed."

Duke sure did. At the dawn of what has since been called the Golden Era of sport, he held every free style speed record from 50 yards to one-half a mile. He qualified for the 1914 American Olympic team, which did not go to Berlin because of the first World War; won the 100 meter in record time and helped win the water polo title for America at Amsterdam in 1920; finished a hair behind Johnny Weismueller in the 100 meter race at the Paris Olympics in 1924 (Duke's brother, Sam, finished third to give the United States team the first three places); was unable to swim in the 1928 Olympics because of illness, and was on the water polo team in the 1932 games at Los Angeles, when he was years older than athletes should be. His home near Diamond Head, the Gibraltar of our country, has so many cups, medals and trophies that he and his wife, the former danger, Nadine Anderson, cannot tabulate them.

"We had a system on trophies," he chuckled. "I mean Johnny and my brothers and Stubby Krueger nad Warren Kealaha and the others, when we'd be barnstorming. We'd go to the jewelry store and look at the prizes, first, then we'd decide just which ones we wanted. I wasn't much at the half mile distance in later years, but if there was a half-mile prize that I liked, the other boys used to trail behind me in those exhibitions, and I'd do the same for them in the shorter races."

Duke is Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey combined, down here. Everybody knows him and they like him enough to have him made sheriff of Honolulu County at $500 a month. They're going to erect a statue of him on Waikiki Beach where he played as a kid, and if they give it the Duke's own dimensions it will be on the heroic side. He stands more than six feet, with that marvellous carriage of the pure Polynesian. His hair is almost white now, and it accentuates the classic lines of his deeply bronzed face.

He thinks that Hawaii will come up with more Kahanamokus, Kreupers, Kealahas and their ilk, if the beach-boys-free-with-the-Hoomalimali (bull)) settle down to the business of training themselves and working. Fred Cady, the great mainlaimd swimming instructor, is here now teaching Doris Duke to swim. The other night at a party Errol Flynn, who is taking diving lessons from Cady, agreed to underwrite, the expenses of a Hawaiian boy and hire Cady to instruct him. The

By Bill Burnett

Ignoring the ruthless reputation of their adversary and odds that made them a hopeless underdog, Western High's cage forces checked in the most stunning upset of the scholastic season last night, giving Roosevelt's defending interhigh champions a 45-37 going over at Tech gym.

The Rough Riders' first public school loss in two years came as the last half of the regular Friday double-header, Tech winning the opener by 33-29 over Woodrow Wilson after a second-half rally.

Raiders Give Warning

Though possessed of a mediocre record to date, Western made it clear at the opening whistle that it was out for somebody's scalp. And when the business was done the greatest ovation given a schoolboy cager this year welled from the throats of 1,200 fans as 17-year-old Donny Cross left the floor.

Donny, the only first-year man on the Raiders' regular team, kicked in with only 1 point toward the outcome. But his defensive work was alone responsible for keeping approximately 12 points off Roosevelt's total. His job was to watch Hymie Perlo, the Riders' big, bad scorer, and he did it with such effect that the latter managed for only 3 points against him. That Perlo tallied three other two-pointers, on "switches" and against other foes spoke well of the sharp-featured youngster's ability.

Hilleary Is Praised

Also coming in for praise on the defensive side was Western's Jake Hilleary, All-Metro quarterback. When Cross was waved out on four personals in the final period, Hilleary took over Perlo with considerable credit to himself. In addition he rammed six field goals and two foul shots through the cords for game honors. He, too, was forced out via the foul route.

Evenly distributed between Jim Karas, Hal Mitchell and Irving Schenker was the remainder of the credit. They tallied 13, 9 and 8 points, respectively, for the winners. Frankie Ciango's 12 points, with Perlo held to a minimum, proved the best for the losers.

Throughout the first quarter Western matched the champs point for point. As time for the gun approached a 3-point play gave the Riders a 12-9 edge, and at half-time they were still that far in front at 22-19. At one time in the second quarter, however, Western held a 17-12 lead.

Before Roosevelt could lift a scoring finger Western came back in the third quarter to tally 11 straight points for a 30-28 margin. Going into the last period it was only 33-30 favoring the winners, but they put on the pressure then. Roosevelt could land but three points in the first 7 minutes of play and meanwhile their deficit soared to 45-33. A pair of snowbirds by Ciango and a foul toss by Redinger accounted for a short, but futile rally.

It was the third quarter that beat Wilson in the opener. It trailed, 7 to 5, after one period, but at the half were all even at 12 to 12. Led by Jackie Walsh, "Shrimp" Brewer and Buddy Webb, the Maroons of Tech romped to a 24-to-19 advantage going into the last quarter and that was almost their victory margin.

Walsh and Brewer were equally productive of points for the winners, each getting 11, but best scorer of the game was long, lean Don Hillock, Wilson forward, who worked himself into 12 points.

As a result of the twin bill, Roosevelt, Western, Tech and Eastern were well placed to take berths in the championship tournament next month. Wilson, Central and Anacostia were conceded little chance.

W.-L. Alumni Turns Back Varsity, 34-28

The alumni came back to Washington and Lee High School last night and scored a 34-to-28 victory over the varsity in a game played for the benefit of the President's Birthday Fund to fight infantile paralysis.

With Vinnie Kirchner hitting the cords for 11 points, the alumni led virtually the whole contest. The more experienced grads held a slight lead throughout.

Buck Hurst and Guard Gudger led the losers' point-makers with 8 and 7 points, respectively.

Grim Face Accompanies Eagle's Big Leap

Gonzaga High Routs Central Five, 33 to 14

Putting on a last-half splurge that left Central's basketers helpless, Gonzaga High swept to its seventh victory in ten games yesterday by a 33-14 count on its home floor.

Twenty-three points the revenge-minded Purple tallied in the final two periods to Central's five, completely avenging a 33-19 beating administered by the Vikings earlier in the season.

For two stanzas there wasn't a shade of difference in the clubs, the first quarter ending in a 7-7 tie and the second finding Gonzaga out front by 10-9. Then the hosts put on a passing and shooting exhibition without equal in schoolboy circles this year, at the same time holding Central to three points in the third quarter and two in the last. Going into the final eight minutes they led by 23-12.

That the victory resulted from team work was indicated by the almost even split in points among Gonzaga regulars. Franny Counsilman and Joe O'Lone registered seven apiece, Bernie Nolan and Bob Mulvihill checked in with five each and Hart Downs had four.

A Modern (250 Lb.) Marco Polo:

Haight Goes South

Miami, Fla.

Dear Boss:

I'm just going to make one more reference to my food and my diet and then I'm going to let you up for a while. I always thought that eating before going to bed made you dream. Well, I haven't been eating before going to bed and not a whole lot during the day, either, for that matter, but I have been dreaming. Take the other night: I went to bed with visions of sugar plums dancing in my head. No, Boss, there's no use lying like that; they were whisky sours. I went to sleep and things began to happen. I dreamed I just come back to the hotel from the beach and had on my trunks and bathrobe. I walked up the hall, opened the door and went in, only to discover I was in the wrong room.

HAIGHT

I was just about to turn and go out when I heard a woman's voice say: "You're always doing careless tricks like that, Sister Clara. See, you left the door open again."

I was afraid they would think I was a burglar, so I decided to stand up against the wall and pretend I was a statue. Well, the two old ladies came in. One spied me and said, "Oh, look, Sister Pet, here's a new kind of machine they have put in our room." Pet squinted at my open mouth and said, "I'll bet it is one of those record players." Clara fumbled around in her pocketbook, drew out a nickel and put it in my mouth. I stood still. "You're wrong," said Pet, "that's not a record player. It must be a cigarette machine. See, I'm going to put a dime more in and we might get a pack."

Pet put the dime in my mouth. I didn't move a muscle. The sisters looked at me perplexed. Finally Clara yelled, "I know what it is now. It's a punching bag," and with that she wound up and cracked me right in the pit of the stomach. She shook me so hard that my cigarettes popped right out of my robe pocket. "I knew I was right!" exclaimed Pet, "I told you it was a cigarette machine! Now, sock it again, Sister, and see if you don't get a box of matches."

Clara started to bring that murderous right up from the floor—and I woke up. Jake was poking me and saying, "What are you going to do, lay there all morning with your mouth open? You can't make no money that way. I got to get out to the track and sell some pictures and this and that." Thank goodness that was a dream. I have had some day dreams, too, Boss, and there's a man here in Miami who not only had one of my dreams, but he has made it all come true.

I have always thought that some day I might get a big sailboat, load it with provisions and start out. I have often pictured myself at the helm of a schooner, sailing some uncharted sea. My boat was not to be a pretentious yacht, but rather a sturdy craft, one that bucked its way through the monster waves. Well, H. Vaughn Clarke, of Philadelphia, has just such a boat and he is making just such a trip. For several weeks, a schooner has been tied up at the bulkhead of the city yacht basin here and there has been, I'm told, some argument, about her pedigree. She has a proud bow with a carved figure running up under the bowsprit. She's not registered in Lloyds, I'll wager.

I only had to get one look at her to make me think of home. She's just an honest-to-goodness Chesapeake Bay oyster boat. The Clarkes, who probably could afford a better craft, struck upon the idea of renovating the old schooner, just as wealthy folk buy and fix up ancient homes. They turned in a swell job of it, too. Named the Frances, she is as clean as the proverbial whistle, inside and out, despite the fact that she is 51 years old. An engine has been installed and the Clarkes brought her down the inland waterway. It isn't a hard task for me to picture her in a blow, her sails reefed down, her port lapping over in the sea and the white foam rising at her stern. Pardon me, Boss, but I think I'll go in the cabin and get my oilskins. This spray is getting sort of cold.

Always your ace,
MIAMI HAIGHT.

Johnnies Bow To Bethesda Five, 28 to 20

Sparked by Bob Cremins' 9-point scoring outburst in the fourth quarter, Bethesda-Chevy Chase won its ninth game of the season last night, 26-20, over St. John's. The Barons opened the last period with an 11-point scoring spree, followed by a 10-point rally by St. John's, keeping the overflow crowd standing the last 4 minutes of the game.

Neither team was able to solve the defense of the other in the opening quarter. In fact, they were so astounded at each other that a 0-0 score was the result of all their cage endeavors at the end of the first 8-minute period. Bethesda's lanky forward, Bob Keene, broke the scoring ice with a basket one-half minute after the second quarter opened. As he was fouled on the shot, he made it worth 3 points, using the free shot to advantage.

The Marylanders worked up a 9-0 lead in the second stanza but St. John's closed the gap somewhat as McCarthy and Giebel slipped in two long pot-shots from deep court. Hathaway and Dudley accounted for two fouls to make the score read 11-6 at the half.

Both fives scored only four points each in the third quarter. Then Bethesda's pent-up energy started to assert itself in the last quarter as its patented sleeper play began functioning in the personage of Bob Cremins. Cremins would spot an opening and then be off down the floor like a shot. Single-handed he accounted for nine points in the last quarter in about 2 minutes.

But Larry O'Brien and Cooke, of St. John's were the big noises in a late rally as they scored a total of eight points.

Sunday night, the two teams will again meet in a preliminary to the Brewers-G. U. and C. U. card at Riverside Stadium in a paralysis benefit.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase jayvees turned back St. John's junior varsity, 25-10, in a prelude to the main event last evening.

Blues Defeat Shepherdstown In Overtime

Gallaudet nosed out the Shepherd State Teachers' quintet, 57 to 52, on the Kendall Green court last night in an overtime game. This was the second victory in eight starts for the Blues and can be classified as revenge as they dropped an earlier game on the Teachers' floor, 43 to 32.

Paced by the sterling marksmanship of Carmen Ludovico, slender Gallaudet forward, the locals came from behind in the final quarter to knot the count at 48-all as the game ended. In the five-minute overtime, Ludovico, Johnson and Padden converted fouls, due to the Teachers' overzealous guarding, and forged into a slight lead.

Shepherd held the widest lead of the evening, 46 to 38, with but seven minutes of the game remaining. At this point, Ludovico came back on the floor and paired with Hal Weingold to run it up to 46-44, and with less than five minutes to go, Weingold dropped one in from nearly midcourt to knot it at 46-all. Hartsell Rogers put the Teachers back in the lead by countering with a two-pointer, but this was nullified by Weingold, who converted a pair of foul shots just before the whistle and deadlocked the count.

In the extra period, Gallaudet assumed the offensive from the start and took advantage of Shepherd's defensive fouls to regain a lead that was never headed.

'Y' Seniors Hosts Today to Jacket Swimming Squad

The Y. M. C. A. senior swimming team will be host to the Randolph-Macon college mermen this afternoon in the local "Y" pool at 5:30 p. m. Traditional rivals of the Washington squad, the Yellowjackets have yet to win a meet from them. This year, with several seasoned veterans now in their senior year, coach Pat Bynum hopes to turn the tide.

Furnishing the opposition will be such well known G Street swimmers as back-strokers John Fielder and Lloyd Munsil; John Stathes and Phil Neff, breast strokers; John Miller, Al Sims, Harold Hines and Charles Lipot, free stylers.

Conrad Kreps and Al Lyman will dive for the locals.

Louis, Burman Sign for Title Fight

Eastern Given Scare By Coolidge High

Eastern High School's basketball team got its closest shave of the season yesterday as it met the youngest member of the public school family, a 28-27 victory being the best it could turn in as it faced Calvin Coolidge's cagemen on the latter's court. If a last-ditch shot by Coolidge's Rich Waterman hadn't been recalled, the outcome might have been quite different.

Here's how it all happened. The Coolidge team which had won three of its first four games, and which had led Tech at halftime in its only defeat, was leading Eastern, 23-21, at the start of the last period. After three minutes of the final stanza had lapsed, Eastern's Larry Capone tied the count at 23-all. A minute and a half later, Waterman put Coolidge out in front again, 24-23. Mike Lieb, however, again knotted the score, 24-up as he accounted for a successful free try. The Sheridan Street school's Waterman then dumped in a snowbird to again put his team out front, 26-24.

Then, with one and one-half minutes still to go, Capone and Pigott, in quick succession, dropped in two field goals, putting the Tide in the lead, 28 to 26. At this point, with the crowd on its feet, yelling and pleading with the Coolidge cagers to score, Waterman, pulling a Frank Merriwell in the final ten seconds, swished two points through the cords, apparently tying the score again.

As Referee Shirley saw it, however, the basket was not good for the reason that Capone was given a personal foul for holding Waterman before he made the shot. With only a few seconds still remaining, Waterman, who was easily the outstanding player of the entire game, what with making baskets from all over the court, ended the heartbreaking contest by making good only one of two free attempts allotted to him.

At the expense of Eastern's second-stringers Coolidge's five took an 8-2 lead at the end of the first quarter. As Coach Phil Fox's first-line charges took up the slack in the second period, Eastern's defense very noticeably stiffened against the District's newest high school basketballers, as they outscored Coolidge, 11 points to 6. But Coolidge held stubbornly on to a 1-point margin at half-time, 14-13.

Waterman was high scorer for the game with 13 points, followed by George Bartlett and John Hollowell, of the same aggregation, and Capone, of the winners, with six each.

N. Y. to Recognize Archibald-Jeffra Bout as Title Fight

By International News Service

New York, Jan. 24.—Champion Joe Louis and Challenger Clarence (Red) Burman today posted $5,000 forfeits to bind their heavyweight title bout in Madison Square Garden February 1.

The boxing commission announced that Louis will get 40 per cent of the net receipts and Burman 17½ per cent, and in the event that Burman wins the title, the contract calls for a return bout within 90 days.

The commission also agreed to recognize the bout between Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore, and Joey Archibald, of Providence, in Washington February 18 as a bantamweight title match, provided each posts a $1,000 forfeit to bind the winner to a bout with Chalky Wright, of Los Angeles, within 90 days.

Yankee's Jake Captures Continental Quail Title

Quitman, Ga., Jan. 24 (AP).—Yankee's Jake, pointer owned and handled by Dr. P. T. Killman, of Makaloff, Tex., won the Continental Quail championship today. He was the only entrant handled by an amateur.

Pretty Pet Scores by 3 Lengths in Feature at Hialeah Park

Clark Mare Pays $8.50 As Favorite

Victor Takes Over At Stretch Turn; Bashi Bazouk Wins Place After Battle

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Jan. 24.—John Clinton Clark, who now is serving his first year as president of the Miami Jockey Club, today scored his initial triumph of the meeting when his 6-year-old mare Pretty Pet defeated nine other veterans in the featured grade "C" event, sixth on the program.

Porter Roberts was astride the $8.50 for $2 favorite, which registered by three lengths, running the 7 furlongs in 1:23 3-5 over a track that was not affected by occasional light showers. Marshall Field's Bashi Bazouk drove to the place, a length before B. M. Smith's Cooling Spring.

A better than average size crowd saw Pretty Pet show more early foot than usual. In her last effort, the mare made up ground too late in a 6-furlong dash. She appreciated the extra furlong in today's contest.

Heather Broom, a one-time stakes campaigner which had not started since late in 1939, had speed for half the journey, finally weakening and allowing the fleet Bashi Bazouk to replace him in the van. Pretty Pet, never far off the pace, spurted rounding for home. She easily put Bashi Bazouk away in the run home.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JAYFCEE, $7.30, $4.90, $3.90; MICHIGAN FLYER, $10.70, 9.10; MARY SCHULZ, $8.30.

JAYFCEE broke fast, set a blazing pace throughout and held his field safe through the stretch. MICHIGAN FLYER, outrun early, gained steadily in the last 3 furlongs and shook off MARY SCHULZ. The latter, a forward factor all the way, faltered in the final furlong, yet held JOHN'S HEIR safe. The latter came from far back.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. The Atlantic. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:32. Off 3:32½. Winner, J. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BREATHLESS, $6.40, $4.70, $4.00; LAATOKKA, $10.10, $6.30; CHOPPY SEA, $5.90.

BREATHLESS, a keen contender, finished with determination under a hard drive and outstayed LAATOKKA. The latter, saving ground and displaying excellent speed, hung when the real test came. CHOPPY SEA worked his way up on the inside in the early stages, came out the last quarter mile and closed stoutly to hold BOSSY SERVANT safe. The latter dropped too far out of contention in the early running and had to race wide while making up ground.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. The Venetian. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 4:01. Off 4:02. Winner, Woodvale Farm's dk. b. c. (4), by The Porter—False Modesty. Trained by S. Judge. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:23⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HALTAL, $3.90, $3.00, $2.50; MINEE-MO, $4.00, $3.50; CAVALIER, $3.20.

HALTAL, hustled into contention on the inside the opening 3 furlongs, drew off rounding the turn, but McCreary took no chances and rode him out smartly to the finish. MINEE-MO, nearest in pursuit of the leader all the way, maintained his position with stubbornness. CAVALIER, away slowly, improved his position along the rail the last quarter mile and held the others safe. LIBERCAISE and THRIFT SHOP raced evenly.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,400; grade C. For 4-year-olds and upward. The So Ends Our Night. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:31. Off 4:31½. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRETTY PET, $8.50, $5.50, $4.40; BASHI BAZOUK, $6.30, $4.50; COOLING SPRING, $9.50.

PRETTY PET, closer to the pace than usual and running in her best form, disposed of BASHI BAZOUK at her leisure and won with speed to spare. BASHI BAZOUK, going in close attendance of HEATHER BROOM in the early stages, assumed command entering the stretch, but was no match for the winner. COOLING SPRING, well up all the way, closed stoutly. DEVIL'S CRAG finished fast on his own courage.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:01. Off 5:01½. Winner, B. F. Lister's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVER TOWER, $55.20, $15.40, $7.10; TEX HYGRO, $4.70, $3.40; FANCY FREE, $4.60.

SILVER TOWER forced the pace and raced ART OF WAR into submission and drew clear entering the stretch, but was under extreme pressure to maintain her lead. TEX HYGRO, a factor throughout, finished gamely to outlast FANCY FREE. The latter rode through on the inside and finished well. HOMEWARD BOUND was compelled to race very wide.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:30. Off 5:31. Winner, J. Emery's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRAND LAMA, $8.80, $5.00, $3.50; BROWN BEN, $13.60, 6.10; DISSEMBLER, $4.50.

GRAND LAMA was sent up fast, took command to open up a long lead and never was headed. BROWN BEN worked his way up gradually the first part and came with a rush at the close to hold DISSEMBLER safe. The latter, never far off the pacemaker, made a bold bid in the drive, but hung. BETTY'S BOB, always close up, weakened in the final furlong.

Gene Thompson Agrees To Two-Year Contract

Cincinnati, Jan. 24 (AP). — Gene Thompson, who as a sophomore pitched the Cincinnati Reds to 16 victories toward their world championship, agreed today to a two-year contract. Terms were undisclosed but there were indications he received a raise. Thompson won 13 and lost 5 during his freshman year and lost 6 games in 1940.

Selections at Hialeah

Dear Al:

This track, I mean the running surface, is one of the safest in the country while also one of the fastest. For instance, Hialeah has a track record of 1:09 4-5, held by Whopper, and that is really traveling over any man's race track. The other marks are correspondingly swift. The 1:15 4-5, set by Snark, is the world record for 6½ furlongs. Despite the fact that horses, even in the run-of-the-mine races, hang up good figures is a credit to those who condition the oval. The track is not hard and it has been a rare occasion this year when a horse went lame. Unlike most race courses in the North, few, if any horses, stay here for long periods. For instance, most tracks up the line allow horses to be wintered. There is seldom need for a horse to stay here during the summer. Since Hialeah was built it has been the habit of the track superintendent to plant the track with soy beans. This crop is turned under after a slight growth and it keeps life in the dirt, giving it cushion and spring. Maj. Goss L. Styker has headed north to make plans for next fall's meeting at Laurel. T. C. Bradley, steward at Charles Town, has passed up racing for the last two days for a fishing trip. J. V. O'Connor is back to the races after a trip to Washington on business. He has Chance Run and Lante in training here, under the eye of Pat Brady. The remainder of his stable is turned out on his Maryland farm in Calvert County. I don't want to say that Hialeah has the best of everything, because at heart I'm just a Charles Town boy after all, but this track has the best-dressed crowds I have ever seen at racing. It is natural, too, because almost everyone is vacationing and one likes to put on his best. Wish I could see you all on the rail. BILL.

First race—Albatross, from the Coldstream Stable and a fleet son of Mate, is reported very fast, and Anderson will do the riding. Joe Rae also makes his racing debut, and the son of Infinite, owned by E. K. Bryson, of Baltimore, is well fancied by clockers. Notes received education in his race back of Sir War and may prove troublesome.

Second race—Mightily is no model of consistency, but the plater forced fast pace last time out and if smoothly rated may be hard to beat. Stable cracked down first outing. Came from behind in that effort and seems the one to beat. Patsey Begone, a short margin back of Red Rogue in recent essay, rates good chance off that endeavor.

Third race—Clarksville, a fleet son of Heckla, won so convincingly last week that he may prove to be a fair sort of a colt. Arcaro will be in the pilot house and holds the edge. Sky Lane, knocked back when making move in debut, receives big pull in weight and seems second best. Becomly, with Here Again as running mate, may share in the purse award.

Fourth race—Watch Over has started three times, winning one and finishing second in other two attempts. Steps up a notch, but must give him the edge with Meade riding. High One, third to Town Boy, drops 9 pounds and the top one can't afford to make any mistakes. Rifted Clouds failed to run to expectations recently. The sprinter can do much better.

Fifth race—Little Risk was in all sorts of trouble in her season's debut here. Always partial to this track, she needs only a smooth ride by Wendell Eads. Great Albert won his last in excellent time. Breaks from inside, and I look for the contention to come strictly from this one. Ariel Bomb won in clever fashion last outing and can't be overlooked against these kind.

Sixth race—Red Dock has been knocking at the door of victory in his last six starts, and the Greentree Stable colt ran well in debut to finish second to Volitant. If he can negotiate the turf course, he may carry off the feature event. Joe Schenck will be better suited over this route. Finished third last time out, beaten only a scant margin. Robert L. is well fancied by clockers and rates an outside chance at big odds.

Seventh race—Yantis flashed excellent speed to prove runner-up to Sir Elmer. With switch in riders to Arcaro this combination may prove unbeatable. Landlubber ran an improved race to finish third in recent essay and seems second best at this distance. Bright Rebel, a winner over the turf course, drops back among own kind and may run one of his good races.

Eighth race—Close To, a natural router, came from out of the clouds to win over good campaigners last week. Picks up 10 pounds additional, but I look for no mistakes. Arcaro will do the booting. Silent Witness closed stoutly to finish second back of Bow Low in a fast-run affair. The added distance should prove to his fancy. Miss B. B., a winner here over a muddy course, is in clever hands and will bear watching.

Ninth race—John Allen, a steady old plater, looks best in this substitute event. Ran very well at Tropical Park. High Renown, third to Jaw Breaker, seems the logical contender. Lady Val runs coupled with Office Hour, and both are in tiptop shape.

Best bet—Close To.

C. U. Ringmen Meet Lock Haven Tonight

Eight Bouts On Program At Brookland

Bernard Cody May Fill in for Stanges, Taken Ill Yesterday; Fights Start at 8:15

Catholic University's ring team, undefeated and untied last year, inaugurates a stiff seven-meet boxing schedule tonight at the Brookland gymnasium, meeting Lock Haven College of Lock Haven, Pa. Eight State Teachers College of Lock Haven, Pa. Eight bouts are on the card, the opening bell scheduled for 8:15 p. m.

A probable last-minute shift in Catholic University's heavyweight division tonight will bring in a fourth newcomer to Coach LaFond's 1941 edition of the Cardinal boxing squad. Julius Stanges, regular starter with two years' experience, was taken ill yesterday, and in the event he will not be ready by tonight, Bernard Cody, big 6-foot-3-inch, 197-pounder, will be called in for action by Coach Eddie LaFond. Cody, a sophomore, has developed rapidly and shows great promise. Battling for Lock Haven in this class will be Don Campbell.

One Return Bout

One return match is listed on the card which will bring together Huck Hughes, Catholic University's 145-pounder, and Capt. Bill Skerpon. Skerpon turned in the first of two victories scored by his team last year, pounding out a decision over the inexperienced C. U. welterweight. Hughes is a decidedly improved boxer and will be out to square things.

Another bout which has been the center of high interest will be the one listed for the 175-pound class matching Leo Houck, jr., C. U.'s light-heavyweight choice, and Jack Bastian. Houck, a sophomore, is the son of Penn State's famous boxing coach. Rough and rugged, Leo is being counted on heavily to score for the Cardinals in this division.

Capt. Gerry Strang, probably one of the finest boxers ever developed by LaFond, will go to war under the Red and Black colors for the twelfth time when he meets either Paul Renne or Mike Yelvick in the 165-pound scrap.

Cardinal in Debut

In the opening bout, C. U.'s Teddy Mandrias, undefeated in three starts, will meet Worth Randall in the 120-pound bout. Lenny Bartone, seeking his third letter as a member of the ring team, will meet Rand Clees in the 127-pound scrap. Leo Gaffney, a very promising Cardinal lightweight, will make his debut, meeting George Barnes in the 135-pound division. Gaffney, a Fall River, Mass., lad, shows natural ability, punching well with both hands.

Action will be fast and furious in the 155-pound bout between Leon Wowak, rough and ready C. U. newcomer, and Bob Kemmerer, an experienced ring veteran.

Catholic U.	Class.	Lock Haven.
Mandrias	120	Randall
Bartone	127	Clees
Gaffney	135	Barnes
Huehes	145	Skerpon (Capt.)
Wowak	155	Kemmerer
Strang (Capt.)	165	Renne
Houck	175	Bastian
Stanges	Unlimited	Campbell

Referee—Danny Hughes.

All-Nations Five Engages Bruins' Team

A record of 15 victories out of 16 starts will be the boast of the All Nations Club, guest of the Washington Bruins, colored professionals, when it takes the floor at Turner's Arena tomorrow afternoon for the regular Sabbath basket ball game.

The All Nations outfit, representing seven different nationalities, has lost only to the Scranton Miners, and that by 1 point in the opening game of the season, according to the record forwarded from the club's New York office.

The group is led by Andy Tomasio, Italian, and Bob Nicol, born in Poland, both of whom were members of the 1938 national champion Temple University five. With this pair of stellar ball players will be: Bill Warde, Englishman; Tony Perez, Cuban; Bob Doern, French; Don Henderson, American, and Ralph Skinner, Irish.

Ed "Fats" Holland, former Lincoln University Negro star, and Abe Fox, Jewish protege of the sensational Davie Banks, of Celtic fame, complete the roster of the invaders.

The Bruins will be minus the services of their jumping ace, Tarzan Cooper, but otherwise will be intact for the New Yorkers' visit. Cooper is suffering from an infected tooth and is not expected to make the trip from Philadelphia.

Tommy Bond, One of Baseball's Original Fireballers, Is Dead

By the Associated Press

Boston, Jan. 24.—Thomas H. Bond, among the first of baseball's fireball pitchers, died today at the home of his daughter in his eighty-fifth year.

Tommy broke into baseball with the Hartford club in 1876, the year the National League was organized, but joined the Boston club the following season.

In those days few clubs carried more than one pitcher and he was called upon to perform day after day without rest. In addition, the rules then in force permitted the batter to call for a high or low ball, fouls were not counted and four strikes were required to retire a batter.

During his first season with Boston, Tommy pitched the club to the National League championship by defeating Chicago, the previous year's titlists, in 11 of his 12 starts against them. The other members of the league at that time were the Mutuel Club of New York, the Athletic Club of Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Hartford and Louisville.

During his long career with the Boston Club, under such famous managers as Harry Wright, John Morrill and Mike Kelly, he perfected the trick of forcing batters to hit into double plays. Before entering the National League, he played with the celebrated Atlantics of Brooklyn.

Bond was born in New York on April 2, 1856.

Soon after he retired from baseball he entered the Boston city assessors' office, where he remained for 35 years. While serving as a city employe, he coached several Harvard varsity nines. He leaves two sons, Fred J. and Edward H., and a daughter, Mrs. John J. McHugh.

Pro Five Out to Stop Hoya Winning Streak

Brewer Coach Posnack Predicts Victory Tomorrow Night in Game With Catholic U and Georgetown for Infantile Paralysis Fund

An outspoken prediction that the Washington Brewers will crack Georgetown University's winning streak wide open at ten consecutive games was voiced by Coach Mack Posnack yesterday as the Brewers looked ahead to tomorrow night's basketball game involving the Brewers and Georgetown and Catholic Universities at Riverside Stadium, 8:45 o'clock, in a game that is to donate all of its profits to the President's Birthday Fund for the Relief of Infantile Paralysis.

The Brewers are to meet Catholic University in the 20-minute period, but will save much of their punch for the final 20 minutes with the Hoyas.

Pros to Work Two Shifts

Posnack plans to start two shifts of players against the Cardinals and Hoyas. Against Catholic U. he will send out Whitey Wilson and Moe Dubilier, forwards; Howard Bollerman, center, and himself and Ben Goldfadden, guards.

The Brewers will put their best foot forward against the Hoyas when they open with Wilson and Nat Frankel at forwards; Bollerman, center, and Ben Kramer and Phil Rabin, guards.

Although the game technically will be decided when points of the two periods are combined, Posnack yesterday admitted that players and spectators alike are training their attention on the scoring of Georgetown and Brewers and that both clubs will be bearing down for all they are worth.

"I'll concede that Georgetown has one of the best college clubs in the country," Posnack said yesterday, "but one who has played both collegiate and professional basketball, I'll take the pros every time.

"Granted that Georgetown has one of the best teams and coaches in the country, Elmer Ripley, I still think we will win. The collegiate rules won't hurt us any, in fact they'll strengthen us in many ways. We have played many of our exhibitions under collegiate rules within the past two years, and have lost very few of them."

Against Catholic University, Posnack plans staying under wraps, although naturally playing to win.

"That's a game club and was the first to agree to play us," the Brewer coach admitted yesterday, "and I certainly do not intend trying to roll up a big score. If we can win over Catholic U. by a fair margin and go into action against Georgetown at full strength, I will be satisfied."

Three splendid radio acts along with Leon Brusiloff's music will be offered between periods of the feature game and the 7:30 o'clock preliminary involving St. John's Cadets and Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. Grace Shannon's Singing Trio, a magician and Jean Catron, French singer, and Lynn Allison, radio songstress, will be featured between the periods.

A splendid advance sale for tomorrow night's games remains in progress at Riverside Stadium, where seats are priced at 75 cents, $1 and $1.25. Reservations may be made through Republic 2950.

Cochran Wins Fifth Straight In Cue Tourney

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, former titleholder, posted his fifth straight victory in the world's three-cushion billiard tournament today, defeating Joe Moriarty, Chicago, in a record-breaking 32 innings.

Cochran's margin was 50 to 24, the veteran expert going out in six innings under the previous shortest game of this event established by Jake Schaefer, of Cleveland.

The West Coast star still is undefeated while his victim has won two of nine games.

Irving Crane, of Livonia, N. Y., defeated Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, 50 to 38 in 69 innings, giving the young pocket billiards champion his third victory in nine games. Denton has broken even in six matches.

Joe Chamaco, of Mexico City, rated as a title contender when the tourney started, lost his fourth game today in six starts, bowing to Paul Lwein, Chicago, 50 to 44 in 77 innings. Lewin has lost six and won four.

Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, another former champion, protected his undefeated record with a 50-to-40 decision over John Fitzpatrick, Los Angeles, in 54 innings. Reiselt now has won six straight games.

Fitzpatrick fell behind at the start and never caught up as Reiselt captured a commanding lead with an eight-point run in the seventeenth frame.

Anacostia Upsets Montgomery Blair Five by 24-16

Anacostia's surprising Indian cagers pulled another upset yesterday on their home court when they defeated Montgomery Blair, 24-16, after an up-and-down battle.

Minus its star, Nick Carter, the Silver Spring five managed to hang on for three quarters, but succumbed to a hot Indian scoring streak in the last period.

It was the second triumph of the season for Anacostia, which has lost five previous games. Blair suffered its ninth defeat against two victories.

Sooners Triumph, Tie With Kansas

Norman, Okla., Jan. 24 (AP).—Oklahoma's Sooners swamped Missouri, 49 to 32, tonight to pull even with the Kansas Jayhawks in the Big Six basketball race and push the Tigers deeper into the conference cellar.

With Sophomore A. D. Roberts leading the way, the Sooners outshot the Tigers for their third league win in four attempts. It was the fourth straight defeat for Missouri, defending cochampion along with Oklahoma and Kansas.

The Tigers started fast, grabbing a 6-to-2 lead in the first seven minutes. But once the Sooners got organized, the Tigers were helpless.

Brewers Beat Banneker Five In Exhibition

In an exhibition game, the Heurich Brewers defeated Chris Huiswood's Recreation Collegiates last night at Banneker Court, 55-40. Ben Goldfadden and Willie Wynne shared scoring honors of the evening.

The game was tied up, 11-all, at the middle of the first period, but the Brewers drew away to a 23-16 lead at the half. Moe Dubilier and Phil Rabin pushed them up to a 10-point lead, 28-18, which they maintained until the final minutes of play.

Jimmie Parker scored most of his 11 points in the first half, while Wynne made 12 out of 14 in the second. A passing exhibition, Nat Frankel, Goldfadden and Ben Kramer participating, and Rabin's foul shooting bewildered the Recreation five. He made 10 good.

over the East for such prominent exhibitors as Mrs. Whitney and Dr. Lewis M. Allen.

With unexpected winnings developing on all sides, Mrs. Lee Counselman's Kristi, completely ignored in the figuring for the hunter division, outdid herself by topping nearly 30 well-known mounts in the working hunters class. The 4-year-old daughter of Black Caddy, open jumping stallion who was also entered in the show, was ridden by Mickey Magill and defeated such shining stars of the ring as Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's Abdication, Buddy Lang's Post Meridian and the Whitney-owned First Night. First Night, incidentally, was back in his own realm among the hunters, for he is Mrs. Whitney's personal mount when afield with various Old Dominion hunt clubs.

The ladies' team, making a late rally in the ladies-versus-men challenge class, topped their masculine competitors in the finals of the event, but were unable to top the gentlemen's 14-point lead left over from Thursday night. As a result, Maj. George Elms on Clipped Wings, Capt. David Wagstaff's Enterprise, Lieut. Hughes and Black Caddy, and Samuel Bogley with Ringmaster, composing the team picked by The Post for the competition, took the trophy with a total of 27½ faults over the ladies' 38½.

Miss Cotter and Rocksie and Lisbeth Stieg on Hi-Ho took individual honors for the feminine representatives by turning in clean performances, but they could not overcome their rivals' big lead.

Closing moments of the show found a set of championship ribbons pinned on Rocksie's bridle for his open jumping activities and another set on Mr. and Mrs. Greenhalgh's Abdication for the hunter division.

TAKE-YOUR-CHOICE JUMPING CLASS—Won by Rocksie, owned and ridden by Margaret Cotter; second, Fleet, ridden by Mrs. Lyman on Maui Girl; third, Hi-Ho, owned by Mrs. Lee Counselman, ridden by Miss Stieg; fourth, Ringmaster, owned and ridden by Sam Bogley; fifth, Black Caddy, owned and ridden by Lt. Fred J. Hughes; sixth, Dominion.

HUNTER TEAMS—Won by Mrs. Altemus Whitney's team, composed of Faithful Heart, Strong Tea and First Night; second, Mr. and Mrs. Greenhalgh's team, composed of Highland Ace, Billy Do and Merry Prince; third, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles Lyman's team, composed of Maui Girl, Jamaica and Here's How.

OPEN JUMPERS—Won by Rocksie, owned and ridden by Miss Cotter; second, Black Caddy, owned and ridden by Lieut. Fred Hughes; third, Mr. Taylor, owned by H. Gray, ridden by Arnold Lusby; fourth, First Night, owned by Mrs. Whitney, ridden by Mr. Haymaker.

LADIES vs. MEN TEAM JUMPING FINALS—Won by men's team, total 27½ faults; second, ladies, 38½ faults. Last night's second phase, won by ladies team, Mrs. Lyman on Maui Girl, Miss Stieg on Hi-Ho, Miss Cotter on Rocksie, Miss Lah on King Rock; second, men's team, Maj. George Elms on Clipped Wings, Capt. David Wagstaff on Enterprise, Lieut. Hughes on Black Caddy, Mr. Bozley on Ringmaster.

League then they may be able to steal away the Eagles' patronage."

Max Farrington, director of athletics at George Washington, was reluctant to make the prediction that either the Washington Eagles or the Washington Ulines would have to fold up, but he said every criterion pointed to such a result.

"When I give my opinion on this," he said, "you must remember that I am trying to put over college basketball which will be in competition with ice hockey. It may sound like sour grapes for me to say that two ice hockey teams do not figure to prosper here, but fans have never been turned away at Riverside Stadium where the Eagles play. When you start having those fans divided in partisanship between two teams, then it is likely that one will not profit."

Says Dutch Bergman

Very similar was the statement of A. J. (Dutch) Bergman, for 13 years director of athletics and head football coach at Catholic University. Bergman, while admitting that he isn't intimately familiar with the local ice hockey situation, said it appears on the surface that both the Eagles and the Ulines can not prosper.

"I believe," said Bergman, "that the other ice hockey fans will do what I shall probably do. That is go to see both teams play several games, compare the brand of hockey that I see and then decide which I shall support."

Mike Uline, when first he hinted to reporters that Washington might get an American League franchise, and asked that the story be withheld until announced officially, declared it wasn't his purposhe to drive "the other fellow" out of business. He explained that he believed competition increased interest in sports and made for a better attraction. While he emphasized that he could not be sure because of his ignorance of the mechanics of ice hockey, the ice magnate guessed that maybe both teams could operate at a profit.

Ulines Tenth Member

The Washington Ulines, as the Uline six will be called according to present plans, become the tenth member of the American League, which is an experimental grounds for the National League. Other clubs in the American loop are New Haven Eagles, Rhode Island Reds of Providence, Philadelphia Ramblers and Springfield Indians in Eastern Division, and Buffalo Bisons, Indianapolis Capitols, Hershey B'ars, Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons in the Western Division.

The Ulines will play on Wednesdays and Sundays and charge slightly higher admission prices than the scale in use at Riverside Stadium, Owner Uline announced.

to Bob Rose, the Carolinian's big forward who rolled up 13 points during his stay, also about 25 minutes.

Arthur Woodward, a second-string starter in the Terp line-up, potted five from near midcourt and finished with an 11-point total while Fetters tossed in 7 points while not shadowing Glamack. "Pop" Wharton accounted for three field goals, all set-shots from somewhere in Prince Georges County that went through the hoop without disturbing the cords.

Maryland gave its faithful followers cause for cheering for the first time in weeks when they pulled within eight points of the conference champs midway in the first half, Fetters and Garrett scoring baskets that brought the count to 20-12. Glamack dropped his long foul shot and then Ochensreider and Woodward dropped field goals that brought it to 21-16, and Carolina took time out. They pulled out, however, and Rose personally escorted them to a sufficient 10-point margin at half time.

Maryland was never closer than ten points in the second half and the teams virtually matched baskets all the way through, with the exception to two all-Carolnia pointfests.

Paul Severin, the All-American football player was at home on the court and with Hank Hessar followed Glamack. Rose and Howard as the Blue and White standouts.

North Carolina moves to Navy today.

Charlotte Hall Swimmers Meet Boys Club Here

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., Jan. 24.—Charlotte Hall Military Academy athletic teams will be busy on two fronts tomorrow afternoon, with the swimming team invading Washington for a meet with the Southeast Boys' Club in the clubmen's pool and the basketball team meeting Boys' Latin School of Baltimore here in a Maryland B Conference clash.

Coach Fred Hughes, mentor of the Cadet natators, is hopeful of seeing his charges come through with the season's first win after two straight defeats and will rely upon his aces, Capt. Byron Greene, Arthur Smith and Al Johnson to corral the majority of the Charlotte Hall tallies.

The basketball squad, returning to the home floor after administering a 29-18 defeat to Gaithersburg High School last night, will make its second B Conference start against Boys' Latin

Lash and Rice Hold Spotlight In Run Tonight

By the Associated Press

Boston, Jan. 24.—The 2-milers, rater only as members of the supporting cast when Glenn Cunningham was indoor track's outstanding attraction, have captured the spotlight as far as tomorrow night's Prout games are concerned.

Although most of Cunningham's speedy successors are available for the famed K. of C. mile, the premeet discussions centered on the possibility of Don Lash's forcing his fellow Hoosier, Greg Rice, to improve the Notre Dame star's 8:56.2 indoor mark in the Leo Larrivee 2-mile special.

Eight-Man Field

Both of those stars are reported to be in midseason form and they can expect stiff opposition from some of the others in their eight-man field, which includes Tommy Deckard, another Indiana entry; Forest Efaw, of Stiplwater, Okla.; Ralph Schwarzkopf, of Michigan, and Joe McCluskey, the New York A. C. veteran.

Missouri's John Munski, who turned in a 4:14.4 mile on the Boston Gardens boards two weeks ago, will face all of the five rivals he out-distanced that night, in addition to Mel Trutt, of Des Moin s. Munski ran as he willed when he beat such capable rivals as Walter Mehl and Chuck Fenske, both of Wisconsin, in his first Boston start of the new indoor season.

Both Mehl and Fenske have been training hard for the Prout meet, along with such capable New Yorkers as Luigi Beccali, Gene Venzke and Les McMitchell and greatly improved performances have been taken for granted.

Georgetown's Mile Relay Competes in Boston

Boston, Jan. 24.—Georgetown's mile relay team will compete here tomorrow night at the Prout Memorial Games in the Boston Garden. This will be the first start of the year for the Hoyas, who defeated New York U.'s championship team indoors last year. Coach Hap Hardell will start Pete McAtee, Charley Williams, Ken Lydon and Mort Alnwick.

Riggs Defeats Guernsey in Tough Match

By the Associated Press

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 24.—Bobby Riggs, former national champion from Chicago, had a close call in the quarter-finals of the Florida West Coast Tennis Tournament today, coming from behind to defeat Frank Guernsey, Orlando, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4.

Riggs lost the first three games of the third set before he turned on the steam. He broke Guernsey's service in the ninth game and won the tenth at love to close out the match.

Riggs complained bitterly on baseline decisions and the damp condition of the court.

Young Speedsters Vie Today on Ice At Chevy Chase

The Chevy Chase Ice Palace sped races will resume today at noon under the guidance of Norval Bpatie, famed speed skater of former days and now professional at the Connecticut Avenue rink. Boys and girls 16 years of age and under are invited to compete and prizes will be awarded.

Boys of 9 to 12 will race for four laps, while the 13 to 16 class will circle the rink six times. Girls of 9 to 12 will race only two laps, with the senior class twice that distance.

The races, according to Baptie, are attracting dozens of entrants from the District of Columbia and vicinity and are proving a popular proving ground for amatuers. Baptie announces that other races will be held weekly on Saturdays, with the finals to be staged sometime in March.

St. Paul's Cagers Defeat Friends

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 24.—St. Paul's School hung up another basketball victory today when it defeated Friends School, of Washington, 32 to 22. Newmeyer, of Washington, was high scorer with 11 points.

St. Paul's trailed, 12 to 11, at the half, but outscored their visitors, 21 to 10, in the second half.

Retail Sales Here Up 18% During Week

Washington department store sales soared 18 per cent in the week ended January 18, compared with the corresponding 1940 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night. For the four weeks ended January 18, local sales were 35 per cent greater than in the like 1940 period.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board at Washington reported that the Richmond district led the Nation in percentage of retail sales gain in the week ended January 18. The Fifth District volume was 13 per cent increases over the same week of 1940, while the Nation as a whole showed a 9 per cent gain.

In the week ended January 18, gains over a week ago, by Federal Reserve districts, included: Boston, 5; New York, 4; Philadelphia, 1; Cleveland, 10; Richmond, 13; Atlanta, 6; Chicago, 16; St. Louis, 11; Kansas City, 13; Dallas, 19, and San Francisco, 6 per cent.

No figure was available for the Minneapolis district.

Rubber Outlook Bright

Bright business prospects for the rubber industry in 1941 were reported yesterday by F. R. Campbell, manager of the Washington District of the B. F. Goodrich Co., on his return from a special regional conference of the company's executive staffs at New York.

Principal speaker at the conference was John L. Collyer, president, who declared that "America's ability to obtain self-sufficiency in the vital material—rubber—is dependent upon the speed with which the United States creates productive capacity for the new synthetic materials."

It was reported at the conference, according to Mr. Campbell that the rubber industry already is feeling the effects of our national defense program. During the past six months direct government orders totaling millions of dollars were placed in the industry, with the Goodrich Co. alone receiving more than $10,000,000 worth.

Three Refunding Issues Offered; Two for Shell

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Three new refunding issues totaling $32,500,000 were offered to investors today.

For Shell Union Oil Corporation a syndicate headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. offered $15,000,000 sinking fund 2¾ per cent debentures due January 15, 1961, and $10,000,000 in serial notes carrying ⅜ to 2½ per cent coupons, due January 15, 1942 to 1953. The debentures were priced at 97½ and accrued interest, to yield about 2.915 per cent.

Proceeds will be used for retirement of 331,225 shares of 5½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock.

A group headed by Drexel & Co., Stroud & Co. and Bioren & Co. offered $7,500,000 Luzerne County Gas & Electric Corporation 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds due January 1, 1966. The bonds were priced at 104⅜ and accrued interest. The money will be used to refund outstanding 6 per cent bonds due in 1954, a 5 per cent issue due 1948, and to reimburse the corporation's Treasury for bonds called in 1940.

Buick Head Sees 350,000 Output

Flint, Mich., Jan. 24 (AP).—Harlow H. Curtice, president of the Buick Motor Car Co., said today that his company is operating on the basis of a 350,000-unit output for the current model year, and added that he saw no reason to anticipate any interference with the projected schedule.

"Of course," he said, "the defense program comes first with Buick and we are devoting as much of our efforts as possible to that end."

Curtice also confirmed Buick's plan for introducing shortly a new and smaller model with a 118-inch wheelbase.

French-Belgian Clearing Pact Fixed

Vichy, France, Jan. 24.—The Petain government has announced a French-Belgian clearing arrangement, fixing the rate of exchange at 12.50 Belgian francs to the mark and permitting exchange through Berlin.

The French franc already has been established at 20 to the mark. The clearing was limited to eight types of transactions, including merchandise export and import, payment for services, payment for intellectual activity such as writing, movie production, insurance and soldiers' pay.

Cotton Ginnings Gain in Period

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that cotton of 1940 growth ginned to January 16 totaled 11,931,019 running bales, counting round as half bales and excludig linters, compared with 11,412,432 a year ago, and 11,552,913 two years ago.

The 1940 cotton crop was estimated by the Department of Agriculture December 1 at 12,686,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, the previous year's crop was 11,817,000 bales and two years ago it was 11,943,000 bales.

British Victory Trend Seen U. S. Trade Aid

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—William R. Kuhns, editor of Banking, official publication of the American Bankers Association, said today a turn in the war favorable to England would be a decisive influence for American business.

"Most of the factors which are normally important in discovering how business feels can be shelved for the time being—perhaps all of them save one," he noted in a monthly business survey.

"A really impressive demonstration of some kind that Britain can turn the tide would make all the difference in the world, psychologically."

New York Dry Goods

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Cotton gray goods business was active today with sales estimated at 5,000,000 yards of print cloths and related items. Increased interest was shown in 64-60s print cloth at 5¾ cents a yard. The delivery situation in woolen piece goods remained tight and some mills were reported to be booking civilian wear business on a contingent basis wherever possible. Business in rayon goods continued substantial, although demand was characterized as of a more selective nature than in the last two weeks. Finished goods moved in better volume.

Defense Aide Will Address Bankers Here

More than 250 bank officials, directors and guests are expected to attend the midwinter meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association on Monday night in the Willard Hotel, according to President A. M. McLachlen.

Principal speaker will be Joseph C. Rovensky, former Chase National Bank vice president and now associated with the Council of National Defense. Mr. Rovensky will speak on "The Financial Aspect of Our South American Relations."

Other speakers will include Wilmer J. Waller and S. William Miller. Mr. Waller, vice president and cashier of the Hamilton National Bank, is a member of the national defense committee of the American Bankers Association, representing the Fifth Federal Reserve District. He will speak on activities of this committee, particularly as they affect banks in the Fifth District.

Mr. Miller, chairman of the committee on commercial trade activities, will report on his group's work.

It has been customary at the midwinter meeting to announce the name of the general chairman for the forthcoming convention. The appointed official is in line to become president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank and second vice president of the local association, is in charge of arrangements for Monday night's session.

Stocks Move Unevenly Higher on Hopes British Selling Pressure May Be Relieved

New York, Jan. 24.—Recoveries seeped into the stock market at the tail-end of today's session but there were enough declines to make a slightly irrgular close.

The list was under water during the greater part of the proceedings, although weakness was rare.

Support arrived in the final hour when it was learned British officials were conferring with Treasury Secretary, Morgenthau regarding further liquidation of American securities possessed by the empire. Much of the market's diffidence lately has been blamed on threats of foreign selling. Hopes revived that perhaps some means would be found to remove this pressure.

Cheering was the Treasury estimate that British holdings had been whittled to $616,000,000 as of December 31, and that a sizable portion of this amount had gone "over-the-counter" since the first of the year. Financial quarters were of the opinion the burden would be less onerous in coming weeks.

A few steels and motors did better while recently buoyant rails took a rest on a moderately lower ledge. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 43.7. Transfers of 411,960 shares compared with 465,180 Thursday.

Motors were aided to some degree by estimates putting January production 15 per cent above any like month in the history of the industry. Steels, with the exception of United States Steel, managed to overcome to a minor degree apprehension over rising wage demands and other costs. Business news generally was considered good but handicaps still were seen in possible extension of Administration price controls, mounting taxes and chances of further Congressional difficulties regarding the lend-lease bill.

Up fractions to a point or so at the finish were Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Bendix, Texas Corporation, Armour preferred and American Smelting.

On the losing end were U. S. Steel, Anaconda, United Aircraft, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Westinghouse, American Can, duPont, Union Carbide and Eastman Kodak.

Only 658 individual stocks were traded, about half the number listed. Of these 268 were up, 190 down and 200 unchanged.

Bonds were mixed and commodities generally higher. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to up ⅜ of a cent a bushel and corn ⅛ to ¼ advanced. Cotton was ahead 5 to 20 cents a bale.

Curb gainers included American Gas, Brewster Aero, Aluminum of America, Gulf Oil, Mead Johnson and American Cyanamid "B." In arrears were Consolidated Gas, of Baltimore; Humble Oil, N. J. Zinc and Todd Shipyards. Turnover here was around 99,000 shares compared with 83,000 yesterday.

Lumber Output In Week Is 149% Above Average

By the Associated Press

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association reported yesterday that lumber production for the week ended January 18 stood at 149 per cent of the average of the corresponding week, 1935-39, and shipments 143 per cent.

Production totaled 223,329,000 feet, which was 2 per cent less than the previous week and 16 per cent greater than the corresponding week a year ago.

Shipments aggregated 239,526,000 feet, which was 5 per cent less than the previous week and 20 per cent greater than last year's corresponding week.

Orders booked were 273,011,000 feet, which was 11 per cent greater than the previous week and 20 per cent greater than the corresponding week last year.

Daily Oil Output Increases in Week

Tulsa, Jan. 24 (AP).—With most of the increase in Texas, daily crude oil production in the United States climbed 233,555 barrels to 3,605,835 for the week ended January 18, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Texas production was up 220,750 to 1,341,200, with East Texas increasing 73,825 to 375,100. Kansas gained 10,200 to 199,200; California, 8,900 to 622,150 and Oklahoma 225 to 388,500.

Illinois declined 2,100 to 323,200; Eastern fields, 900 to 111,500; Louisiana, 1,740 to 291,940; Michigan, 145 to 40,645, and the Rocky Mountain States, 490 to 95,170.

U. S. Bank to Close Branch in Japan

Tokyo, Jan., 24 (AP).—Authoritative sources reported today that the Osaka branch of the National City Bank would be amalgamated soon with the Kobe branch because lack of business failed to warrant maintaining separate establishments.

(The Osaka branch, one of the most important banking institutions in Japan, heretofore has handled the bulk of American cotton transactions, which the Government now controls through an official monopoly on importing.)

Foreign Exchange

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—The Swiss franc climbed .06¼ of a cent to 23.28 United States cents today, the highest since late 1937.

Foreign exchange dealers said the jump appeared the result of a flow of "frightened" money to the neutral nation, traditionally a safe spot for international capital.

The free Argentine peso dipped 1-20 cent to 23.70 cents.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents).

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market, 16¾ per cent discount or 83.25 U. S. cents.

Tire Shipments In Year Reported At Decade's Peak

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Shipments of automotive tires in 1940 totaled 59,155,326 units, highest in a decade but about 10,000,000 fewer than the 69,394,855 shipped in 1929, the Rubber Manufacturers Association reported today.

The association said 1940 shipments represented greater tonnage and more tire miles than in 1929 because in the intervening period average tire size, weight and quality increased substantially.

December shipments for original equipment purposes amounted to 2,626,190 units, highest December on record and up 7.7 per cent over November and .5 of 1 per cent above December, 1939.

Shipments in 1940 were 2.9 per cent greater than in 1939. Production of 59,352,643 casings was 3 per cent larger than the preceding year.

Stocks in the hands of manufacturers on December 31 totaled 8,178,537 units, compared with 9,118,243 November 30 and 8,664,508 December 31, 1939.

Replacement shipments in December totaled 2,216,567, or 14 per cent below November but 11 per cent above a year ago.

Armour May Resume Preferred Dividends

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP).—George A. Eastwood, president of Armour & Co., today told stockholders at the annual meeting that the company may take action this year on resumption of dividends on the $6 prior preferred stock.

"We have made a good start in the first three months of the new fiscal year," Eastwood said. "If it continues, as I hope and expect it will, I hope that directors will look with favor on doing something in the way of dividend action this year."

Dividend accumulations on the $6 prior preferred stock of the Illinois company amounted to $18 per share as of January 1.

Domestic Stocks Of Lead Heavier

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Domestic refinery stocks of lead increased to 40,926 tons at the end of 1940 from 35,791 on November 30, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today. This compared with 58,777 tons at the end of 1939.

December production stepped up to 61,906 tons from 57,926 in November and was well ahead of 45,615 in December, 1939. Domestic shipments dipped to 56,755 tons from 57,510 in November. In December, 1939, shipments totaled 44,881.

Rail Issue Authorized

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Norfolk Southern Railroad to issue and sell to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation $938,000 of equipment trust certificates in connection with the purchase of 350 freight cars.

Multiple Trade Benefits Cited In SEC Fight

Clifford H. Reiter, president of the Cincinnati Stock Exchange, testified yesterday that enforcement of the New York Stock Exchange ban on multiple trade "means the very existence of our exchange."

Appearing at a Securities Commission hearing to determine whether it should order the Big Board to lift its ban, Reiter said he believed the Cincinnati exchange would "disintegrate" if it was unable to do odd-lot trading in ten securities listed on both the Cincinnati and New York exchanges.

Asked what he believed to be the advantage of maintaining regional exchanges such as that at Cincinnati, Reiter said that the minimum trading charge there was only $2.50 compared with a $3 minimum in New York, and that traders in Cincinnati got quicker confirmation of their transactions and were saved the New York State transactions tax and the mailing expenses.

He pointed out that half of the total volume on the Cincinnati floor was in ten stocks listed also in New York and in two other issues which were listed both in Cincinnati and on the New York Curb Exchange.

The ten stocks had first been listed in Cincinnati, he said, some of them as much as 30 years prior to their being put on the New York board.

Because of the New York rule, he said that the three odd-lot dealers who were members of both the Cincinnati and New York Exchanges were forced to drop their books in the dually listed securities.

Kenneth L. Smith, president of the Chicago Stock Exchange, testified that there was "not one iota" of connection between rule changes made by his exchange in December, 1939, and the fact that a special committee of the New York Stock Exchange was studying the problem of multiple trading.

Smith held steadily to that assertion under sharp questioning by Timothy Pfeiffer, New York Exchange counsel, who had him detail conversations and steps leading to revision of constitutional provisions by the Chicago association.

Month's Peak Seen In Auto Output

Detroit, Jan. 24 (AP).—Ward's Reports, Inc., today revised its estimate of the probable output of passenger cars and commercial vehicles this month by placing the figure at 525,000 assemblies.

This aggregate, if realized, would be 15 per cent above any previous January in the industry's history, and the best total for any month since May, 1937, when assemblies totaled 540,377.

Ward's estimated this week's production at 121,948 cars and trucks compared with 124,025 last week and 106,400 this week a year ago.

Pere Marquette Net Increases $924,910

By the Associated Press

Pere Marquette Railway announced yesterday its 1940 net income, after all charges, totaled $1,251,917, an increase of 924,910 over 1939. December net was $241,027, up $89,138 from December, 1939.

Nickel Plate Railroad

Nickel Plate Railroad in 1940 had $3,512,157 net income, up $239,519 from the preceding year. December net of $1,004,983 was $243,394 under December, 1939, because in the 1939 month a 4 per cent dividend was received on Wheeling & Lake Erie common stock whereas the regular 4 per cent dividend accrued over the entire 12 months in 1940, Nickel Plate explained. An extra Wheeling & Lake Erie dividend of 1¼ per cent was included, however, in accounts for last month.

Mercantile Activity Continues Lively

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Vigorous buying activity among wholesalers and manufacturers this week was reported today by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

The mercantile agency, in its weekly trade review, said: "Producers frequently reported orders in excess of current production, although operations were being pushed to new record-high levels."

Dollar sales in retail stores averaged 8 to 14 per cent above the like 1940 week for the Nation as a whole.

Italy Offers Issue Of 5 Per Cent Bonds

Rome, Jan. 24 (AP).—The government offered a new issue of nine-year five per cent bonds at 97.50 lire today to redeem nine-year bonds due May 15 and to raise funds needed by the treasury.

The last bond issue in February, 1940, yielded 16,000,000,000 lire (about $800,000,000).

(The lire is quoted in the New York foreign exchange market at 5.2 cents.)

Commodity Seat Gains

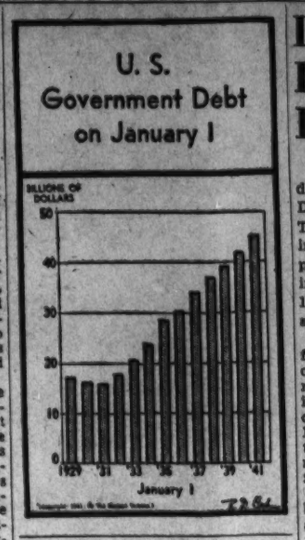
sold for $425. A A Cotton Exchange membership went for $,500, up $500 from the last sale.



Mortgage Bankers Urged to Supply Low-Cost Housing

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (AP).—Dean R. Hill, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, told his colleagues today the need for low-cost housing has become vital and unless they supply the demand "it will have to be met by someone else and that someone else of course can only be the Government."

He attributed the new demand to the national preparedness upturn in industry, and said in a speech prepared for the association's first regional clinic:

Rearmament means that our industrial machine is going to hum for some time to come, and it will create a deamand for really low-cost housing in a volume not foreseen as late as two years ago. . . . Millions of dollars of new housing must be built to sell for $40 a month or less, or the maximum sale price of around $4,000 with lot."

U. S. Silver Buying Sets 7-Year Low

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—The United States Government purchased 203,100,000 ounces of silver in 1940, least for any of the seven

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, January 15, 1941. A public hearing having been held on December 23, 1940, by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing certain street and alley areas in the District of Columbia, as hereinafter described, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings, and that the same are not detrimental to the public interests nor the interests of abutting property owners, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered, That pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 397, approved December 15, 1932, the street and alley areas as shown in green on plats filed in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, and numbered as Maps 2427, 2429, 2430 and 2432, are hereby ordered CLOSED, same to take effect on and after February 15, 1941, the title to the land comprised in said areas so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said maps; the said areas hereby ordered closed being described as follows: (1) Closing G Street, Chicago Street and California Street, west of 2nd Street, N. E., and closing of alleys in Squares 719, 720, 721 and 722; and providing also for a dedication of certain areas for street purposes adjacent to Union Station. (2) Closing part of an alley 12 feet wide in the rear of Lots 82 and 85 in Square 100. (3) Closing part of 36th Street at Minnesota Avenue and B Street, S. E., and closing of alleys in Square 5411. (4) Closing part of Meigs Place and part of Raum Street southeast of Trinidad Avenue, N. E." Any and all parties interested must file objections, if any, in writing, to said closings within thirty (30) days after the date of this publication; otherwise said order shall become effective on February 15, 1941, and the street and alley areas as herein described, shall on and after said date become closed, in accordance with the provisions of said Act. SUPERMAN — Reception Committee — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

BUT-!
THANKS FOR THE ORDER! AND-HAVE A PLEASANT TRIP!
HIDDEN IN SHADOWS, THE PSEUDO-WATSON SWIFTLY CHANGES TO SUPERMAN!
NO TIME FOR A SEA VOYAGE. IT'S BACK TO SHORE FOR ME!
SHOREWARD LEAPS THE COSTUMED FIGURE....
LATER-DISGUISED ONCE MORE AS EUSTACE WATSON, SUPERMAN NEARS THE OFFICE OF THE THIRD NAME ON HIS LIST....
THERE HE IS!
HE'D BETTER NOT TRY TO PULL ANY TRICKS THIS TIME!

JOE PALOOKA — How'd They Get Here? — BY HAM FISHER

IN HERE DOCTER.
WHAT ARE ALL THE GOLDIERS DOING HERE?
YEAH JOE!
I DON'T KNOW. IT'S VERY CURIOUS--AN' NOT VERY GOOD NEITHER.
I THINK YOU'RE MORE SORE THAN HURT. HOWEVER WHY DON'T YOU STAY OVER TONIGHT AND I'LL...
IS ANY-THING BROKE DOC?
I DON'T THINK SO.
BOY! HAVE YOU EVER BEEN SOCKED BY JOE PALOOKA--YA'D THINK A TRUCK HIT YA.
I'M GOIN' OUT A MINITE RED.

WINNIE WINKLE — Groggy — BY BRANNER

WOTTA TOWN! HOLLYWOOD! AND WOTTA BUSINESS! MOVIES!
THEY CERTAINLY MOVE YOU! ONE MINUTE YOU'RE UP IN THE SKIES--THE NEXT MINUTE YOU'RE IN THE DUMPS!
YOU'RE IN! YOU'RE OUT!!
YOU ARE UP! YOU ARE DOWN!
QUIT IT, WILL YOU-
I'M GETTING PUNCH DRUNK!

MR. AND MRS. — Appearances Are Deceitful — BY ARTHUR HOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

WHAT ARE YOU SCOWLING ABOUT?
SCOWLING? DIDN'T KNOW I WAS WELL, YOU WERE. YOUR FOREHEAD WAS ALL WRINKLES. WHAT'S THE MATTER?
NOT A THING
(BUT ON ANOTHER OCCASION)
WHAT'S SO FUNNY? WHAT ARE YOU SMILING AT?
SMILING? DIDN'T KNOW I WAS
WELL, YOU WERE. YOU WERE ALL OF A GRIN. LET ME IN ON THE JOKE
NO JOKE. NOT A THING. HONEST

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

IT'S RIDICULOUS! A MAN OF YOUR INTELLIGENCE FEEDING A LOT OF WORTHLESS ANIMALS. DOCTOR WETBLANQUET DOESN'T BELIEVE IN PETS. WAIT TILL I READ YOU WHAT HE SAYS IN CHAPTER NINE.

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — An Offer — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

BUT SURELY A LITTLE MATTER OF EIGHT OR TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS WON'T STOP YOU NOW--
WHY, THE HARD PART IS OVER--WE'VE GOT AN OIL WELL--
THAT MAY NOT SOUND LIKE MUCH TO YOU, MR. DRYER, BUT WE'VE ALREADY GONE THE LIMIT ON THIS VENTURE-AND HOW!
BUT SURELY YOU CAN GET THE MONEY AT A BANK--THAT'S WHAT BANKS ARE FOR!
IF YOU HAVE SECURITY FOR THE LOAN, YES--BUT THAT'S SOME-THING WE HAVEN'T GOT--
WE-ELL--SUPPOSE I ADVANCE THE MONEY PERSONALLY--ARE YOU WILLING TO SIGN OVER A HALF INTEREST IN THE WELL?
YOU MEAN--YOU'RE WILLING TO ADVANCE US THIS MONEY?
HOLD ON--OF COURSE HE IS--FOR HALF THE WELL--IT'S WORTH A FORTUNE!
BUT IF IT'S WORTH MONEY TO HIM IT'S WORTH MONEY TO US!

Amazing the number of authors who turn out to be residents of the Washington vicinity! A few weeks ago Lella Warren who has written the best-selling "Foundation Stone" was revealed as a Washington dweller when she appeared as a guest speaker on Vesta Eale's "Book Lady" program over WJSV. Frank Goodwin, who produced the popular biography, "Jonathan Swift," is another who has had a few words to say on the same broadcast which you hear every Saturday at 1 p. m.

Today still another has been uncovered. She's Cornelia Spencer who lives in Bethesda and who has written the recent "Chinese Trader." Miss Spencer's married name is Mrs. J. B. Yankey. She is a sister of that very popular novelist, Pearl Buck. They were the daughters of a missionary in China and Miss Spencer's new work her first book, deals with the birth of American trade with China around the turn of the century. The book incorporates some of the stirring episodes of the Boxer Rebellion, telling how the members of that powerful Chinese sect beseiged the legations of all nations at Peiping.

Incidentally, while it's still Vesta Eales's program, Vesta Eales won't be able to be present on it today because of an attack of the grippe. Subbing as interviewer for her will be her friend, the Washington newspaperwoman who's correspondent for the Des Moines Register and Tribune, Catherine Wilson.

The Post Radio Time Table

1:30, WJSV—For their offering on the Heroes of Democracy series, students of Miner Teachers College dramatize the life of Myrtilla Miner, one of the first American women to promote the cause of education for Negroes.

2:15, WJSV—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt addresses the National Housing Conference in New York on "Public Housing Policies, Plans and Needs."

5:30, WJSV—Ronald Cross, British minister of shipping, talks from London.

8:00, WINX—ASCAP on Parade. For those who've been missing the music of Irving Berlin, George M. Cohan, Oley Speaks and Rogers and Hart, these ASCAP composers join Deems Taylor, Oscar Hammerstein 2d and Billy Rose in this new Saturday night series.

9:35, WMAL—Alfred Wallenstein leads the NBC Symphony: Symphony No. 4 in E minor, Brahms; Triana from "Iberia," Albeniz; "Siegfried Idyll," Wagner, and Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz."

11:00, WJSV, WOL and WRC—Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Burns and Allen, Mickey Rooney and just about every one else in Hollywood join this "March of Dimes" hour benefit for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, headed by Eddie Cantor.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Smité and Flight — BY MILTON CANIFF

IT IS OBVIOUS THAT TANG INTENDED TO DESERT AND INFORM THE INVADER OF THE IMPENDING RAID!
OUT OF THE WAY, ANCIENT TURTLE! TANG DOES AS HE PLEASES!
BUT NOT AS DR. PING PLEASES! —THERE'S THE RUB! BACK TO YOUR BUNK!
MILTON CANIFF

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

PERHAPS IT WASN'T YOUR FIANCE WHO RAN THE OLD MAN DOWN, ELSA.. AFTER ALL, LARRY WYNN ISN'T SUCH AN UNUSUAL NAME!
I DON'T KNOW.. HE SOMETIMES RENTS A CAR TO TAKE ME OUT... WHEN HE HAS THE MONEY!
LISTEN! THE NEWS BROADCAST IS CONTINUING!
"ACCORDING TO POLICE, WYNN BLAMED THE ACCIDENT UPON THE FACT THAT HIS VISION WAS OBSCURED BY THE STORM!"
"HE ALSO ADMITTED, HOWEVER, THAT AT THE TIME OF THE ACCIDENT, HE WAS QUARRELING WITH HIS SWEETHEART, MISS JOYCE WARNER, 2049 WILDWOOD ROAD....."
"..YOUNG WYNN, WHO IS UNEMPLOYED, WAS DRIVING MISS WARNER'S CAR, A CUSTOM-BUILT ROADSTER..."
TURN IT OFF, MRS. WORTH!.. I..I BELIEVE I'VE HEARD ALL I CAN STAND!

500 Selects Given Physical Examinations

Washington's third contribution to the Nation's citizen armies last night started marching into six District hospitals.

Nearly 500 men were put through minute check-ups by a dozen specialists at Sibley, Emergency, Garfield, Georgetown, Providence and Freedmen's Hospitals.

From the 500 tested last night, and equal numbers to be examined Tuesday and Friday of next week, 353 Washingtonians are to be selected for calls to the colors starting February 19.

Show Little Emotion

Of the 500 examined last night, some went through the process smilingly, some half-heartedly, but most displayed little emotion.

The draft was not so much a novelty for them as it was for the first two Washington contingents and most of those examined had "broken the ice" with X-ray examinations last week.

Still ahead of them, if they are found to have survived last night's examinations, are rigid reexaminations by Army doctors in the induction at Baltimore's Fifth Regiment Armory. The swearing-in ceremonies in the Monument City are to be run off as follows: February 19, 49 District men; February 20 and 21, 110 Washingtonians, and February 24, a total of 84.

Tests Made to Conform

It is expected, however, that fewer selectees qualfying in the civilian examinations will fall by the wayside in the Army tests than on previous occasions. Civilian and Army tests have been made to conform more closely since wholesale rejections in early stages of the draft.

Registrants reported at hospitals as follows:

To Emergency, registrants from Boards 8, 91, 13 and 14, chief examiner, Dr. Linn F. Cooper; Garfield, Boards 4, 5, 7, 11 and 15, chief examiner, Dr. Stewart Foster; Georgetown, Boards 1, 2, 3, 6 and 10, chief examiner, Dr. Henry R. Schreiber; Providence, Boards 12, 21, 22, 23 and 24, chief examiner, Dr. R. W. Conklin; Sibley, Boards 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 25, chief examiner, Dr. E. Y. Davidson, and Freedmen's, Boards 11, 12, 15, 19 and 25, chief examiner, Dr. J. A. Keene.

Meanwhile local selective service headquarters announced the appointment of 25 Washington physicians to local boards.

The board number and the name of the physician appointed to it appear in that order in the following list:

1—Dr. John R. Cavanagh, 1836 I Street Northwest.
2—Dr. Joseph J. McHale, 900 Seventeenth Street Northwest.
3—Dr. Frank M. McChesney, 4629 Thirty-sixth Street Northwest.
4—Dr. Benjamin Newhouse, 4213 Sixteenth Street Northwest.
5—Dr. Clarence L. Miller, 3118 Sixteenth Street Northwest.

Houston Welcomes 260th Artillery

Special Dispatch to The Post

Houston, Tex., Jan. 24.—Headed by Mayor Cornelius E. Pickett, the city of Houston today greeted the First Battalion of the 260th Coast Artillery Regiment as it arrived here from Beaumont, Tex., approximately 85 miles to the east.

The battalion of 507 men was whisked from the city limits to the center of town, where the personnel of the convoy was quartered in the spacious Coliseum Arena shortly after 10 a. m. The trip was made in less than four hours.

Col. Walter W. Burns and his staff were given a welcoming luncheon in the city hall dining room by the mayor and his party.

Tonight the giant searchlights and antiaircraft guns will be placed on view near the city hall. The regimental band will stage a concert under the direction of Warrant Officer Joseph Berst. Later tonight the band will play for a dance at the coliseum. While here, the officers and enlisted men will be fed at the Rice Institute Cafeteria, three miles from the coliseum.

Since departing from Washington a week ago last Monday the convoy has traveled a distance of 1,097 miles. First mishap en route occurred this morning outside Beaumont, when a 7½-ton truck of Company D skidded into a ditch.

Tomorrow the convoy will embark for San Antonio, where it will bivouac over the weekend at Fort Sam Houston. The trip will be resumed Monday, when the regiment leaves for Del Rio.

Mileage from here to San Antonio is 206 miles. Lieut. Col. LeRoy S. Mann expected the entire outfit to arrive at San Antonio within seven hours' heavy running time.

Knudsen in 'Fine' Physical Condition

Cleveland, Jan. 24 (AP).—William S. Knudsen visited Cleveland clinic today for a physical checkup and was found to be in "fine" condition.

"He seems to be taking his duties very well," said Dr. William E. Lower, who examined the 61-year-old director of President Roosevelt's Office of Production Management.

Death Writes Finis To 'Mrs. Pepys' Diary'

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Baird Leonard, former author, columnist, and art and theater critic, died tonight of a heart ailment at her home.

For many years Miss Leonard, wife of Harry St. Clair Zogbaum and a native of Danville, Ill., was a contributor to leading publications and was best known for her syndicated column, "Mrs. Pepys' Diary."

Zogbaum was reported en route from Florida.

December Employment Gains Greatest In 11 Years, Reports Secretary Perkins

Approximately 540,000 workers entered nonagricultural employment during last December for the largest December increase in the last 11 years, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced yesterday. She fixed total nonagricultural employment now at 37,100,000.

In December, employment in the District reached 369,000 for an increase of 8,000 since November, and a gain of 38,000 above December, 1939, the Secretary announced.

In Maryland, nonagricultural employment during December reached 543,000. In Virginia it was 52,000, making the gains, respectively for the two States, 10,000 and 5,000 since November, the Secretary said.

The national employment figure is, she said, a "new high for recent years and is nearly 1,500,000 greater than in December of last year."

These estimates do not include the WPA, CCC or NYA, nor the armed forces.

"The major factor in the huge December increase in employment was the greater-than-seasonal gain of 430,000 workers in wholesale and retail trade establishments. The hiring of additional thousands of temporary employes to handle the best Christmas trade in years brought about the largest increase in trade employment on record. Manufacturing industries continued to expand under the spur of defense expenditures, adding nearly 120,000 workers in December, the Secretary stated.

Miss Perkins said there have been no labor troubles recently that were not amenable to the usual procedures of adjustment. She said she would provide for no stoppage of work pending mediation or arbitration.

Dr. C. W. Stiles, 74, Dies in Baltimore

Baltimore, Jan. 24 (AP). — Dr. Charles Wardell Stiles, 74, discoverer of hook-worm as a parasite on humans, and a recognized authority on medical zoology, died at Marine Hospital. Ten years ago he had retired from his post of surgeon for the United States Public Health Service.

Baering Down On the News

By Arthur (Bugs) Baer

International News Service Staff Writer

We're practicing blackouts and air raids in our town until now I'm so expert I can shave with a rubber boot over my head.

That sort of brings war closer than teamwork in an ant village.

I'm not trying to scare you, but I see no reason why you and me shouldn't start even.

I know for a fact that a young American flew a bomber from this continent to England in seven hours. That makes 3,000 miles of ocean fold up like a beach chair.

I wouldn't be surprised at a raid or anything because every time we wash our windows it rains or something else.

I'm headed for the root cellar like a sack of rutabagas. If the bombing starts, nobody is going to locate me by looking in the street directory.

If they want me to testify before the House Foreign Affairs Committee I'll tell them how to blackout so completely an octopus could not find the back of his neck with eight arms.

The first time I hear a bomb I want the folks in the Rocky Mountains to leave their gates open because I will be headed for high ground.

If the committee wants to know how I feel about foreign affairs, I'm against importing any more.
